IT'S FORTUNE OF WAR, SAYS CAPT. TURNER, RESCUED FROM WAVES

He Stuck to Bridge Until Lusitania Went Under and Then Clung to Floating Chair for Two Hours

LINER SANK IN TWENTY MINUTES AFTER ATTACK

Survivors Tell Graphic Stories of Disaster--No Censure for Officers or Crew of Lost Cunarder

(By Associated Press.)

QUEENSTOWN, May 8.—Captain Turner, commander of the Lusitania, has refused so far to make any formal statement. His first remark on landing was one of quiet irony.

"Well," he said, "it is the fortune of war."

The captain secluded himself during the night in apartments over the town bank but was able to be about today in uniform. He displayed great grief over the loss of his vessel, but has expressed no opinion on the action of the Germans.

Captain Turner remained on the Lusitania's bridge until the structure was submerged, and then climbed up a ladder, as would a diver from a tank. When he reached the surface he grasped an oar and then a chair. He clung to the chair for nearly two hours, and finally when the chair turned over he flung up a gold braided arm.

This was seen by a member of the crew in one of the boats, and thus the commander was saved. He was terribly broken down when he landed Friday evening, but after a strong cup of tea and a short rest, he seemed to recover and to be nearly normal today.

None of the survivors has any complaint to make regarding the actions of the crew. All agree that everything possible was done under the circumstances.

The first train loaded with survivors left Queenstown this afternoon en route to London.

PASSENGERS COMPLACENT.

"From the day we sailed we completely spoke of the possibilities of the German menace, but no one believed it. In we scorned the idea of being torpedoed," said F. J. Gauntlett, of Washington, who was traveling with A. L. Hopkins—among the missing—and S. M. Knox, of Philadelphia, who was saved.

A number of us were going over on business. It was shortly after two—possibly ten minutes past—and I was lingering in the dining saloon chatting with my friends, when the first explosion occurred. We knew at once what had happened. Shortly the ship listed perceptibly. I shouted to the others to close the ports. Some of us went to our berths and put on life belts.

"On making our way to the deck we were informed that there was no danger and we need not be alarmed, but the ship was gradually sinking deeper into the water and efforts were made to launch the boats.

"Fifty or more people entered the boat I was in and as it swung round to davits it fell suddenly. I think most of the occupants perished. Other boats were launched with the greatest difficulty.

"Swinging free from one of them as I descended, I struck out, swimming roughly and steadily, for a piece of wreckage which I observed. On reaching it I found it was one of the collapsible boats, but I had to rip the canvas with a knife before I could get it open. Another passenger climbed into it and between us we were able to get about thirty people out of water. While we were thus engaged I noticed that the Lusitania was gradually sinking.

"Women and children under the protection of men had clustered in [illegible] the port side and as the ship made her plunge, down a little by the head [illegible] at an angle of nearly 30 degrees, this little army slid down toward the starboard side, dashing themselves against each other as they went, until they were engulfed."

Mr. Gauntlett said that the heard only one explosion and the whole tragedy was over in twenty minutes.

Clinton Bernard, of New York, first cabin survivor of the Lusitania, said of his experiences:

"The German submarine made no attempt to warn anybody. We saw it for a moment just before it dived.

"Although it was a tremendous shock to everybody, there was not as much excitement as one would expect in such a catastrophe. It occurred so suddenly we had not much time to realize what was happening.

"When I saw the ship was sinking I jumped overboard just as I was. I had no life belt, but I picked up a bit of flotsam. Finally I got to an upturned boat and clung to that. Later, with some others who had swam to this boat, we managed to right it. Then we climbed in and started do rescue as many people as we could.

"The first torpedo struck us between the first and second funnels. The Lusitania shook, and settled down a bit. Two other torpedoes quickly followed and soon finished our ship. Four or five of our life boats went down with her, and the tremendous suction as the liner sank engulfed dragged many people down also.

"The noise of the explosion was not very great. The first torpedo burst with a big thud, and we knew that we were doomed.

"We had floated about two hours in our small boat before the first rescue steamers arrived. Previous to this time some small shore boats and fishing smacks came along and helped us."

The Rev. H. W. Simpson, a passenger in the second cabin, saved himself by clinging to an upturned boat.

"After a struggle we filled this boat and all we could rescue," Dr. Simpson said today. "We tied a pair of trousers to an oar and hoisted it as a signal of distress.

"A bit grawler came along and took us aboard.

"When we were struck I was in the British Official Statement Says Great Battle Near Ypres Continues--Other German Attacks Repulsed

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, May 8.—1:15 p. m.—The following official statement was issued by the war office tonight:

"There have been artillery engagements along the whole front. One of our battalions by a sudden attack captured a fortified work held by the Germans west of Lens.

"Three attempts by the Germans to attack in the forest of Lepretre were immediately checked.

"On the right bank of the Fecht river we have advanced nearly one kilometer (about two-thirds of a mile) along a front of 1,500 meters (nearly a mile) in the direction of Metzeral."

Submarines Sink Two Steamers, One Destroyer

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 8.—The British steamer Don, of Goole, has been torpedoed by a German submarine off Couquet island, near the Northumberland coast. The crew were rescued.

The British admiralty announced tonight that the destroyer Maori had been blown up by a mine.

A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Hull says the Wilson line steamer Truro was sunk this afternoon by the German submarine U-39 off Day island. No lives were lost. The crew of the steamer was landed at Rosyth Castle, Scotland.

The Truro was a small vessel of 272 tons. She was 106 feet long and was built at Dundee in 1898.

The following official communication was issued this evening:

"While operating off the Belgian coast the torpedo boat destroyer Maori, Commander B. W. Barrow, Royal Navy, struck a mine about two miles northwest of the Wellington lighthouse.

"The crew took to the boats when the ship was sinking. The torpedo boat destroyer Crusader, Lieutenant Commander G. L. D. Webbe, in command, which was in company with the Maori, lowered her boats to assist in picking up the crew of the Maori, but the enemy then opened fire from shore batteries and the Crusader, after being under fire for an hour and a half, had to leave her boats and retire.

"It is reported from German sources that the crew of the Maori and the boats' crews of the Crusader—seven officers and eight-eight men in all—were taken prisioners into Zeebrugge."

The Maori was 28 feet long and of 1,025 tons displacemen. She was built in 1909 and her complement was 71 men. he was armed with two 4-inch guns and two torpedo tubes.

Berlin Issues Statement on Sinking of Destroyer

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, May 8.—(Via London.)—An official communication by the German admiralty concerning the sinking of the British destroyer Maori says:

"The British destroyer Maori was sunk off Zeebrugge. The destroyer Crusader, which had come to its support, was forced to retreat and leave in the lurch lifeboats which it had launched.

"The entire crew of the Maori and the boats' crew of the Crusader were saved by our own vessels and taken to Zeebrugge. In all there were seven officers and eight-eight men.

"In the advance of our troops against Libau our Baltic sea forces supported the attack by bombarding from the sea."

Important Battle in Progress Near Ypres

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 8.—An official communication issued by the British war office tonight says:

"Yesterday fighting continued southeast of Ypres without any material change in the situation. We recovered a trench that we had lost the day before.

"This morning the enemy started a violent attack on our trenches on the front between the Ypres-Pelkapelle and the Ypres-Menin roads. The attack was preceded by a heavy bombardment. The fighting continued and counter attacks are in progress.

"On the remainder of our front there has been no fighting."

Loss of British Submarine Is Denied by Admiralty

LONDON, May 8.—The British admiralty this evening issued this official statement:

"The statement published recently by the German admiralty that a British submarine had been sunk in an encounter with a German air ship is false.

"On the contrary, the submarine has now returned uninjured and reports that she damaged the airship by gunfire and drove her off."

Austrians Claim Advance in Galicia Continues

VIENNA, May 8.—(Via London.)—The Austrian official press bureau today gave out the following:

"Headquarters in Galicia reports that the victorious battle for the Austro-German troops in West Galicia continues. Advancing forces of Austrians and Germans have reached the Wisloka river from Jas to Pilsno, while detachments have obtained a firm foothold on the other bank.

"All the passes in the Beskid mountains, with the exception of Lupkow, are in the hands of the Austro-Germans. The Russian columns surrounded on the northern slopes of the Beskids are making desperate efforts to break through.

"The fighting probably will last some

PROMINENT LUSITANIA VICTIMS

1,198 LIVES LOST WHEN LUSITANIA WENT TO BOTTOM

Little Hope Now of Recovering Any Other Passengers Besides Those Already Reported Saved

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—The latest estimate of lives lost as a result of the torpedoing of the Cunard liner Lusitania by a German submarine off the Irish coast yesterday is 1,198. It is believed that almost all, if not all, the survivors have been brought ashore and there is little hope of recovering any other passengers alive.

Of the dead many are women, the stories from Queenstown describing the bringing in of the bodies of a great number of women, many of them still unidentified. The Queenstown docks are the temporary resting places also of the bodies of several children. One dead mother still is clasping in her rigid arms the body of her three-months-old baby.

When the Lusitania left New York May 1 she had on board 1,901 souls; 1,215 passenger and 650 crew. The passengers were made up of 291 in the first cabin, 599 in the second and 361 in the steerage. The list of survivors shows, so far, that about ninety first class and 75 second class passengers were saved. The first cabin passengers were at lunch when the unheralded German attack sent the liner to the bottom. It is noticeable that comparatively few first class passengers were saved.

Among the well known Americans whose bodies have not been recovered and who consequently are believed to have perished, are Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Charles Klein, the playwright, Justin N. Forman and Elbert Hubbard and his wife. The body of Charles Frohman, of New York, the theatrical producer, already has been recovered and brought ashore at Queenstown.

The hospitals of Queenstown are filled with the injured among the survivors, and the morgues with the dead.

BOATS RENDERED USELESS.

Judging from the recitals of survivors, there was comparatively little room on board the Lusitania when she went down. Nor is there anything to show that the rule of the sea favoring women and children in the work of rescue was violated. Many of the liner's life boats were rendered useless by the fact that she listed so sharply that they could not be used.

Many of the passengers did not believe the Lusitania would sink as quickly as she did. Consequently they did not join in the rush for the life boats but evidently prefered to trust in their belief that the water-tight compartments of the vessel would keep her afloat until such time as help came out from the Irish shore, less than ten miles away. It is related that some of the passengers even disdained to put on life belts when these were handed to them.

MRS. CARMAN FREED ON HER SECOND TRIAL

Jury at Mineola Acquits Her of Murder Charge in Short Order

MINEOLA, N. Y., May 8.—After deliberating only a few minutes, the jury trying Mrs. Florence C. Carman on the charge of murdering Mrs. Louise Bailey at Freeport on June 30 last returned a verdict of not guilty.

The jury was agreed on the first ballot and the verdict was returned one hour and twelve minutes after the jury had retired. Mrs. Carman, who had been depressed all day, brightened as Justice Blackmar delivered his charge and beamed with happiness when the verdict was announced. She shook hands with all the jurors, then left with her husband for their home in Freeport.

In his charge to the jury Justice Blackmar said the state's case centered on the testimony of Celia Coleman, a negro maid in the Carman household, who testified that Mrs. Carman had darted into the kitchen after the murder with a revolver in her hand and announced, "I killed him." The Coleman woman also testified that Mrs. Carman had come to her room early the next morning and expressed repentance for having "killed that poor woman."

In his charge Justice Blackmar said: "It has been conclusively shown that she (Celia Coleman) was careless of the truth, but that is not conclusive. It is for you to decide, after considering all the circumstances, whether the primary question in this case is whether you believe Celia Coleman."

TOMMY ATKINS' GROG CUT DOWN BY ORDERS

Two Drinks a Week His Limit Now-- No Protest Made

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, British Army, France, May 8.—Contrary to popular belief, the British soldier in the field is not receiving his ration or any other form of alcohol every day. Coincident with, but not necessarily associated with the temperance agitation in England, the rum rations are now served only twice a week.

Warmer weather and the desire to cut down the use of stimulants is the explanation. So far as known there has been no protest from the troops. The two drinks a week amount to about half a gill each.

NATION'S CRISIS FACED CALMLY BY PRESIDENT; SITUATION GRAVE ONE

Some Officials Hold That Germany's Act Was Without Excuse---Warning Did Not Apply to Passenger Ships

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 8.—President Wilson, upon whom the eyes of the world are focused at the present moment, studied in quiet seclusion today the aspects of law and fact in connection with the sinking by a German torpedo of the British liner, Lusitania, with a consequent loss of many American lives.

The great human tragedy coupled with the responsibilities of the hour caused the president to deny himself to all callers, even to members of his official family, while he turned over in his mind the course to be pursued by the United States government in one of the most serious crises in its history.

The only glimpse of the workings of the president's mind was given when the White House tonight issued the first formal comment on the disaster, as follows:

"After a conference with the president at the White House this evening, Secretary Tumulty said:

"Of course the president feels the distress and the gravity of the situation to the utmost and is considering very earnestly but very calmly, the right course of action to pursue. He knows that the people of the country wish and expect him to act with deliberation as well as with firmness."

The official data upon which formal action will be based had not arrived. The president therefore did not communicate with Secretary Bryan or officials of the state department. Nor did he consult members of the cabinet or congress. He has been giving such close personal attention in the last few weeks to the particular questions involved that he was thought to be determined first to sift for himself the various questions and shape a policy to be submitted to the cabinet, probably on Monday or Tuesday.

THE COUNTRY UNDERSTANDS.

In the meantime public opinion was expected to crystallize and help point the way. Members of the cabinet called other engagements and held themselves in readiness for the president's call. At the state department when Secretary Bryan was asked if there was any advice to communicate to the American people at this time, he replied that he did not think this was needed, for the country understood the situation.

"This is no time to 'rock the boat'" he said.

It was the same sentiment which Chairman Stone of the senate foreign relations committee had expressed earlier in the day. The single phrase expressed the desire of the Washington administration that prejudices and passions be not thrust into the unstable equilibrium while the government endeavored to learn all the details.

One important fact was definitely ascertained by the Washington government today from the port autaorities at New York, who gave clearance to the Lusitania—that she carried no guns either mounted or unmounted, in accordance with the custom of the state department and British government early in the war. This disposed in the minds of officials of the claim that the German submarine had a right to attack the Lusitania because she was an auxiliary or armed cruiser. The officials of the Cunard line are understood to have stated that the Lusitania was not armed.

THE EXCUSE FOR ACT.

These facts in opinion of law offices of the American government left the German submarine no excuse under law or reason for an attack without warning on a ship with hundreds of noncombatants aboard, including neutral men, women and children. The position of the United States has been that the presence of contraband—even arms and ammunition—according to the rules of international law, including the Declaration of London, which Germany has upheld, cannot warrant the sinking of a merchantman without the previous exercise of the right of visit and search and the removal of non-combatants to a place of safety. The government has set forth in its last note to Germany, and at the same time issued a warning that the imperial German government would be held "to a strict accountability" by the United States for any loss of American vessels or lives.

The decision which the president and his advisers must reach, it was admitted in all quarters, is a momentous one. These officials conversant with the legal aspects of the case pointed out that the United States has a vigorous and serious problem of lasting importance in history, as all the world—neutrals and belligerents alike—will wait with acute expectancy for the course which the United States would pursue to preserve the rules of international law, particularly the rights of neutrals with respect to the safety of

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—In discussing the Lusitania disaster tonight, Senator Hoke Smith said:

"I am not prepared to say that an extra session of congress just at this time is necessary, but if one were called I think the United States should stop military supplies from being shipped to the allies until the rights of the neutral commerce of citizens of this country are respected by Great Britain."

LUSITANIA DISASTER WILL NOT CAUSE WAR WITH GERMAN EMPIRE

While Washington Does Not Condone Act It Offers No Reason to Embroil U. S., Says Hoke Smith

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 8.—While official Washington in no sense condones the terrible cruelty of the torpedoing of a vessel loaded with women and children, the belief is fast crystallizing that the Lusitania disaster offers no possible reason for embroiling the United States in war with Germany. The statement of Senator Hoke Smith today that the torpedoing of the Gulflight in the North sea presents a far more serious problem is regarded generally as reflecting the unofficial view of the Wilson administration.

Senator Smith tonight amplified his statement made earlier in the day. He said:

"The Gulflight was a vessel owned by citizens of the United States, and floating the flag of the United States. The Lusitania was a vessel belonging to British subjects, floating the flag of Great Britain, and understood to have been loaded in part by reserves intended to join the army of the allies, and with munitions of war intended to be used against Germany.

"All had been warned that Germany intended with her submarines to attack the Lusitania. It is astonishing that the British admiralty did not take more vigorous steps to protect it.

WARNING EXPLAINED.

"Reference has been made in the press to the letter from our state department warning Germany that the United States government would hold the Imperial German government to a strict accountability for certain acts of their naval authorities.

"This language did not apply to vessels of Great Britain, floating the flag of Great Britain. This language applied to American vessels, and to the lives of American citizens sailing upon the ocean under the American flag.

"While the public mind is inflamed by the heartless treatment of the passengers upon the Lusitania, we should not forget that Great Britain has violated international law in the exclusion of foodstuffs and non-contraband goods from neutral ports in her effort to starve and destroy the men and women of Germany, and that Germany practically agreed to the proposition suggested by the United States to withdraw her submarine attack upon passenger and merchant vessels if Great Britain would cease to exclude from Germany the necessaries of life required from other countries by the citizens of Germany.

"Great Britain refused to agree to the adjustment, and today vessels and cargoes belonging to citizens of the United States are being detained and unloaded in British ports in utter defiance of the recognized rights of American citizens."

FRANK PROBABLY WILL BE SENTENCED MONDAY

Judging From Past, Date of Execution Expected to Be About June 18

Leo M. Frank will be sentenced to death for the murder of Mary Phagan for the fourth time probably on Monday.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey's petition for habeas corpus, asking that Frank be brought into court and the date for the execution of the sentence fixed again, is already in the hands of Judge Ben H. Hill.

Judge Hill is generally expected to sign the writ bringing Frank into court on Monday when, it is thought, he will be resentenced and the date of execution set.

The law allows the presiding judge a wider latitude on the resentencing of a prisoner than it does when the original sentence is imposed. Judge Hill has already resentenced Frank twice; once he fixed the date for 39 days from the date of resentencing, and the second time for forty-three days from the date he was arraigned. As a result it is generally believed that he will sentence Frank to death on or about Friday, June 18.

salon. Life belts were handed around, but the people did not want to put them on, and they rushed off to the deck just as they were."

INJURED BY WRECKAGE.

A cabin steward gave the following account:

"The passengers, a large number of whom were seriously injured by the explosion and by splinters from the wreckage, were all at luncheon. The weather was beautifully clear and calm. We were going at about sixteen knots, and were seven or eight miles south of Galleyhead when we were struck by one torpedo and in a minute or two by two more. The first explosion staggered us and the others finished us, shattering the gigantic ship. The Lusitania disappeared in twenty minutes after the first torpedo struck.

"It was a terrible sight, but the passengers were surprisingly cool. We did not get a moment's notice from the submarine. It appeared suddenly above the surface, on our starboard bow. It disappeared as suddenly as it came into view, and was not seen again. It did not attempt to save men, women or children, but left them to drown like rats in a trap when the great ship sank like a stone.

"The scene was frightful as the ship went down. About 100 jumped overboard and clung to floating wreckage or upturned boats before the ship by the explosion."

R. BIRCH TELLS STORY.

W. G. Meyers, of Stratford, Ont., a lad of 16, on his way to join the British navy as a cadet, said:

"I had just gone to the opper deck after lunch to play a game of quoits with two other boys. One of them, looking over the side, saw a white streak in the water and shouted: "There's a torpedo, coming straight at us." We watched until it struck us, with an awful explosion. Then we rushed to the boat deck. Just as we got there a huge quantity of wood, splinters and great masses of water flew all around us.

"A second torpedo struck us about four minutes later. I went below to get a life belt and met a woman who was frenzied with fear. I tried to calm her, and helped her into a boat. Then I saw a boat which was nearly swamped. I got into it and with others helped to put it out. Then a crowd of men clambered into it, and nearly swamped it.

"We got only 200 yards away before the Lusitania sank, her bow first. Many persons sank with her, drawn down by the suction. Their cries were shrieking. We had to pull hard to get away, and as it was we were almost dragged down. We saved all the women children we could, but a great many of them went down."

William Brown, of Alaska, another survivor, said he decided not to join the rush for the boats. "It came to the conclusion that a life belt was the thing for me," he said, "so I went to my cabin and secured one.

"When I did slid down a long rope into the water. Subsequently I got into a boat."

H. Smethrust, a steerage passenger, was saved in the same way. He had put his wife into a life boat, and in spite of her urging he refused to accompany her, saying the women and children must go first. After the boat with his wife in it had pulled away, the husband put on a life belt, slipped into the water and floated until he was picked up.

Tragic Scenes at N. Y. Office; Many Other Ships on Way

NEW YORK, May 8.—With some of its best known citizens among the passengers on the Lusitania, whose fate had not been accounted for, and with a growing realization of the awfulness of the catastrophe and the gravity of its international significance, New York today was a sober city.

Awakening this morning to find that the sinking of the night before that the Lusitania's passengers had been saved were premature and that the loss of life might reach two-thirds of those aboard, the whole city seemed stunned. Depression was in evidence among people in all public places.

The Cunard line received and posted shortly before 10 a. m. an incomplete list of survivors, which was anxiously scanned by friends and relatives. There were touching scenes when women, the names of whose loved ones were among the missing, gave way to their emotions.

To the list of survivors received from abroad several names were added today by friends of passengers who had received private cablegrams from the passengers themselves, saying that they were safe. Knowing, however, that the list still was incomplete, hope lingered with many.

Gloom spread over the theatrical district when it became known that the body of Charles Frohman, the theatrical producer, had been picked up among the dead, and that Charles Klein, another theatrical producer, was among the missing. There was similar depression among friends of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Robert Hubbard, Justus Miles Forman and others from whom no word had been received.

The financial district gave evidence of having recovered its poise, lost yesterday when first news of the catastrophe precipitated a violent decline in stocks. Today after a preliminary break the market recovered and behaved normally during the remainder of the session. Leading bankers, it was said, had entered the market with supporting orders.

In shipping circles there was much concern for ships now in or approaching the German war zone and many unfounded rumors were in circulation of other ships having been torpedoed.

Maritime records show that eighty-eight ships now are passing through or due to arrive in the zone. Of these thirteen are passenger ships. One is the American liner New York, due in Liverpool tomorrow. The American liner steamed today with cabins full. Passengers pointed to the Stars and Stripes floating at the liner's stern when the possibility of danger was suggested.

What was taken in shipping circles as an indication that Germany had no intention of abating its program of torpedoing British ships from American ports was the reappearance in the newspapers this morning of the advertisements of the German embassy warning travelers that they took passage on British ships at their own risk.

It was reported that the advertisement would appear regularly every Saturday in the near future.

GERMANS WANT TO FORCE U. S. INTO WAR, DECLARES BERESFORD

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 8.—"I think the Lusitania has been torpedoed deliberately for the purpose of making the United States declare war," said Lord Charles Beresford today. "I foretold the whole present situation in February and gave my reasons for thinking Germany meant to bring America into the war."

645 IS TOTAL NUMBER OF SURVIVORS, SAYS U. S. CONSUL.

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 8.—A cable to the state department tonight from Consul Frost at Queenstown places the total survivors of the Lusitania at 645. Probably 1,200 bodies have not been recovered. The persons not listed to the department, he reports, are "almost to certainty dead."

CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE TAKES UP LUSITANIA DISASTER IN RESOLUTION.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 8.—Resolutions "relative to the president's request for an expression of public opinion," on the sinking of the Lusitania were introduced in the California senate and assembly today and referred to committees.

Resolved, that the legislature convey to President Wilson the message that its people will indorse whatever action, no matter how severe he may deem warranted, and that the legislature recommends immediate steps to increase the strength of the navy for adequate protection of the honor of the nation and the lives of its citizens."

NAMES OF MANY MORE SURVIVORS GIVEN OUT

NEW YORK, May 8.—Alphabetical lists of the first and second cabin survivors of the Cunard liner Lusitania are given herewith. They are followed by a third list containing the names of survivors among the steerage passengers and crew of the Lusitania, differentiated when possible.

When the Lusitania left New York May 1 she had on board, according to the latest available information, a total of 1,901 persons. Of these 1,251 were passengers and 650 crew. Of the passengers there were 291 in the first cabin; 500 in the second, and 261 in the steerage.

CHAS. FROHMAN NOTED FOR AVOIDING PUBLICITY

Few New Yorkers Knew Famous Star-Maker Who Died in Disaster

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—Charles Frohman, who went down on the Lusitania, was one of the most successful New York theatrical managers, but at the same time one of the least known publicly. It was only a few years ago that the first picture of him was published, although he had been in the theatrical business, in various capacities, since 1874. His modesty was so real that it amounted almost to shyness.

Mr. Frohman was born in Sandusky, Ohio, in 1860. His brother, Daniel, who is seven years older, when private secretary of Horace Greeley, sent for Charles, then a lad of twelve, and gave him a place as night clerk in the Tribune office here. In 1874 he sold tickets at Wooley's theater in Brooklyn at night and worked on a newspaper by day.

In 1877 Charles Frohman went west to take charge of the Chicago Comedy company, of which John Dillon was the star. The next year with J. H. Haverly he organized the Haverly Minstrels, which he subsequently took to England. In the years immediately following he was associated with Augustin Daly in the management of several successes and established himself as a play broker. Mr. Frohman's first real hit for fortune was in November, 1888, when he obtained the American rights to Bronson Howard's play, "Shenandoah," which made $500,000 from this. In recent years Mr. Frohman's activities had centered around his favorite theater here. Since 1897 he had made many productions in London.

The Frohman galaxy of stars includes Maude Adams, John Drew, Ethel Barrymore, Billie Burke, Blanche Bates, William Gillette and Otis Skinner. His belief in the star system—there are more now under the Frohman management than ever before—and his loyalty to the older school of English dramatists have been the distinguishing characteristics of his career as a producer. Two of his most famous productions, "Peter Pan" and "Chanticleer," were by foreign authors.

Mr. Frohman was associated with Klaw & Erlanger in the lease of the Atlanta theater.

MANY PERSONS ON LUSITANIA BELIEVED SHE COULD NOT SINK

Hundreds of Those Lost Did Not Realize Ship Was Doomed Until It Was Too Late to Reach Safety

LONDON, May 9.—Of those who left New York a week ago on the Lusitania, less than 700 survived after that vessel was torpedoed and sunk by German submarines off Kinsale, Ireland, Friday afternoon.

A full list of the survivors, who include every one of the first class passengers, is not yet available, but probably there are not many names to add to those who already have been made public. All the evidence goes to show that the first class and many of the second class passengers had such confidence in the ability of the Lusitania, because of her watertight compartments, to remain afloat if she received the first blow that they did not concern themselves about taking to boats or even providing themselves with life preservers.

When the passengers did realize the Lusitania was doomed, they found that most of the boats on the port side were so jammed because of the great list in the vessel that they could not be lowered and the last seen of them by the more fortunate passengers who had secured places in the starboard boats, or who had jumped overboard and had been picked up, they were lined on the sloping decks awaiting their fate, doubtless even then believing that with land so close they would still be saved.

However, the torpedoes had torn such gaping holes in the liner that she did not remain afloat for more than twenty minutes, and calls for help which the wireless sent out, although answered quickly could not bring the rescuing steamers in time to be of any service.

There is much difference of opinion as to how many torpedoes struck the ship and as to whether an explosion of her boilers followed. In fact, after the first torpedo hit the Lusitania forward, the crew were busy getting to the stations and the passengers who escaped in getting to the boats and providing themselves with life belts, in shipping circles and among many survivors the impression prevails that more than one German submarine attacked the Lusitania and that two or more torpedoes found their mark.

This view is held by the Cunard officers at Liverpool, but the officers of the ship will make no statement until the inquest of the admiralty inquiry brings out their evidence.

Scenes at Queenstown, where the survivors were landed and where there are many bodies of victims were heartrending. Many women separated from their husbands have been searching the hotels, hoping to find them alive, or, failing in that, have been looking for them in the morgue, only to go on to Cork, while still others left yesterday afternoon for London.

At the London and Liverpool offices of the Cunard company, large crowds again assembled yesterday, hoping against hope that those whom they had expected to meet Saturday at the latest, might still appear, but there was little consolation for those who had not already heard from their expected friends or relatives.

Nothing that the Germans have done since the outbreak of the war has aroused the anger and determination of the British people as the sinking of the Lusitania.

This anger is shared by the Americans in London who had relatives or friends aboard.

Members of the stock exchange insisted upon the withdrawal of all members of German birth, although nationalized. At many places throughout the country, these nationalized British subjects were made to suffer for Germany's actions. In one large shipbuilding plant at Wallsend the workmen threatened to strike unless those employes with German names were discharged, and the company, although badly in need of workmen, was compelled to grant the demands. German barbers and other Germans, whose presence in the country has been tolerated since the war began, also found themselves boycotted. But there have been no disorders of any kind.

According to several members of the crew of the Lusitania, whose statements are corroborated by passengers, the swamping of the lifeboats was due to the high speed of the vessel. They say that after the first torpedo exploded the captain gave the order for full steam ahead, and that the vessel was making 21 knots when the second torpedo severed the steampipes from the engines. This made impossible the immediate slacking down of the engines.

The speed with which the Lusitania plunged ahead, notwithstanding her heavy list to starboard, caused the lifeboats to foul the davits.

Many of the survivors had remarkably good fortune. Mrs. Grace Howley of Yorkshire, seized a piece of rope attached to some wreckage. A little girl also was floating near her and grasped her dress. Both were picked up. The girl was Edith Williams, who lost her mother and five little sisters.

There is much conflict in the various stories of the launching of the boats, but the officers and the Lusitania's crew upheld the tradition of heroism in the British mercantile marine.

Thomas Brady, a member of the crew, stated that the Lusitania's speed had been reduced in the morning, when the liner was off Fastnet. Later it was increased, and the order to resume full speed was given just before the first torpedo was fired.

The first torpedo entered the ship's bunkers hurling a shower of coal as high as the upper deck. The captain immediately headed for shore but the second explosion followed quickly. This torpedo is believed to have killed or injured many passengers who were lunching in the dining saloon.

The funerals of a large number of victims will be held Monday.

Marked Coincidence In Sinking of Two Great Ocean Liners

Comparisons of the sinking of the Lusitania to the Titanic tragedy have been on every man's lips. That on each vessel should have perished three Americans who were leaders in three indentical professions, is the coincidence that has been most marked in this terrific record of disaster.

On the Titanic were lost Henry B. Harris, prominent theatrical manager and producer; Jacques Futrelle, brilliant writer and journalist, and John Jacob Astor, one of the wealthiest men in America.

Believed to have perished on the Lusitania were Charles Frohman, one of the foremost producers in the theatrical world; Elbert Hubbard, writer, lecturer and publisher, and Alfred G. Vanderbilt, millionaire.

Russian Mine Sinks German Destroyer; Heavy Land Fight

(By Associated Press.)

PETROGRAD, via London, May 8.—The following official statement was issued by the war office tonight:

"German cruisers and torpedo boats appeared in the vicinity of Libau yesterday and bombarded the port. One of the enemy's torpedo boats was sunk by one of our mines.

"To the southwest of Mitau, our offensive is developing successfully. There were engagements yesterday in the direction of Jonevicj, Bestagola and Rossciony (in the Baltic provinces).

"To the west of the Niemen, skirmishes of an obstinate character brought to light the fact that the enemy advance guards and outposts are in the district of the Upper Szeszupa. In the direction of Mlawa we repulsed yesterday, a new German attack against the Pomicany farms.

"On the left bank of the Vistula all is quiet. Between the Vistula and the Carpathians, continuous fighting continued on Friday. The attacks of the enemy, which were made along most of the front and which were in the nature of frontal attacks, met with no success.

"The enemy who suffered enormous losses, is showing signs of fatigue, while our counter attacks are becoming more frequent.

"Those our retreat in the direction of Dukla, large forces of the enemy occupied the roads and surrounded the Austro-Hungarian military corps, which this division, under the leadership of General Kornilloff, cut its way through the ranks of the enemy and succeeded, with heavy losses, in rejoining its parent corps yesterday.

"There has been only occasional firing in the direction of Stry. On Friday, on the Upper Lornitza, certain elements of the enemy while advancing, the ranks of the enemy which had ascended the pulsed with heavy losses."

ONLY FEW FIRST-CLASS PASSENGERS WERE SAVED

Sir Edward Grey Cables First Official Information of Lusitania Disaster

WASHINGTON, May 8.—First official information of the sinking of the Lusitania reached the British embassy from London today in the following cablegram from Sir Edward Grey, timed 11:30 a. m.:

"Following is the latest official information with regard to the loss of the Lusitania, torpedoed by German submarines off the Head of Kinsale May 7. Torpedo boats, steamers and armed trawlers have landed 658 survivors and 45 dead. It is possible that Kinsale fishing boats may have a few more. An armed trawler and fishing trawlers are bringing in 100 further bodies. Only a few first class passengers saved. Ship sank in from fifteen to twenty-five minutes and it was reported she was struck by two torpedoes.

"The Cunard agents give 2,160 as the total number on board. The Cunard company has reported the nationality of the passengers as follows: Salon passengers British, 177; American, 106; Greek, 3; Swedish, 1; Mexican, 1, and Swiss 1. Second class: British, 52; American, 65; Russian, 3; Belgian, 1; Dutch, 3; French, 5; Italian 1; unknown, 2. Third class: English, 204; Irish, 39; Scotch, 13; Russian, 59; American, 17; Persian, 21; Greek, 2; Finnish, 1; Scandinavian, 4, and Mexican, 1."

Loss of Life Deplored by Berlin Newspaper

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, May 8, via London, May 9.—Commenting on the destruction of the Lusitania, the Berliner Tageblatt says:

"With deep emotion we learn of the destruction of the Lusitania in which countless men lost their lives. We lament with sincere hearts their hard fate, but we know we are completely devoid of blame.

"We may be sure that through the English telegrams communicated to the world indignation will again be raised against Germany, but we must hope that calm reflection will later pronounce the verdict of condemnation against the British admiralty.

"The many who now are sorrowing may raise complaint against Winston Spencer Churchill, British first lord of the admiralty, who by conscienceless instructions which must bring him the curse of mankind, conjured up this cruel warfare."

The article continues:

"The Lusitania was a war ship on the list of English auxiliary cruisers and carried armament of twelve strongly mounted guns. She was more strongly mounted with guns than any German armored cruiser. The military observer, she must have been prepared for attacks.'

Brother of Former Secretary of Interior Safe and Well

ITCHY SALT RHEUM

Sometimes Called Eczema—Removed by Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Salt rheum is one of the worst and unfortunately one of the most common of all diseases. How it reddens the skin, itches, oozes, dries and scales, and then does this all over again! Sometimes it covers the whole body with inflamed, burning patches and causes intense suffering, which is commonly worse at night.

Local applications may do some good, but they cannot permanently relieve. The disease will continue to annoy, again and perhaps agonize, until the blood has been purified and the general health improved.

Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla, the good old reliable family remedy. It has given perfect satisfaction in thousands of cases. Insist on having Hood's Sarsaparilla, for no substitute acts like it. Get it today.—(Advt.)

GEORGIA MAN IS RESCUED IN TIME

Resident of Woodstock Finds Himself Restored After His Physicians Failed

T. A. Lewis, who lives out on Route 1, Woodstock, Ga., was the victim of stomach troubles for a long time. He tried the treatments of many doctors, but tried all sorts of remedies also.

Then he tried Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. Just as it always does, the first dose proved to him what could be done for his ailment. He took the full treatment; then wrote:

"I have taken your wonderful remedy and am feling better than I have felt in four years.

"Your remedy does just what you claim it will do.

"I had several doctors, but they did me no good. I am glad that I have found your wonderful remedy. I have recommended it to some of my neighbors who need it."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results in cases of gas in the intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee. Dr. Mayr's factory money will be returned.

Advertising in The Journal Sells the Goods.

When Anybody Finds a Cure He Is Generally Willing To Tell His Neighbor

The willingness of one neighbor to tell another neighbor in a private way of the benefit received from Peruna, explains the popularity of Peruna more than all the advertising that has been done.

The fear of the publicity undoubtedly prevents the majority of such people from writing a testimonial to be used in the newspaper. But in spit of that we are receiving fine testimonials continually.

ANEMIA—Mrs. F. A. DeWitt, Marengo, Ohio, says: "I before any run down condition of the system."

SPRING COLDS—Mrs. Rhoda Stuffabeam, Bunch, Iowa: Coughed. Could not sleep. Feared consumption. Thanks to Peruna, I am a well woman today."

CATARRH—Mrs. Sadie Allen, Joseph, Oregon: "My little boy is entirely cured of catarrh of the ears by Peruna. Am thankful for your good advice."

SPRING TONIC—Mrs. Wm. McRoberts, Brown Valley, Minn.: "Taken Peruna in the spring Peruna tones up the system, acts as a tonic. I consider Peruna a whole family medicine chest."

How did they hear of Peruna?

Simply because one neighbor is always willing to tell another one he has found a cure. Neighborly conversation of grateful patients has done more for Peruna than advertising. Much more.

Death of Many American Citizens Arouses Capital

NATION'S CRISIS IS FACED CALMLY BY PRESIDENT WILSON

The suggestion that the warnings by the German embassy in newspaper advertisements should have been sufficient to deter Americans from traveling on such ships flying the British flag was widely commented upon among diplomatists. At the state department Secretary Bryan revealed that the embassy's warning had never been officially communicated to the state department and that, since the announcement by the German admiralty in February of its proclamation of a war zone, the American protest and the reply from Germany saying the government would disclaim responsibility for accidents to neutrals, the subject for several weeks had not been officially mentioned between the Berlin and Washington governments.

Among a few diplomatists there was a disposition to criticise Americans for minimizing these warnings, but some officials pointed out that it was never conceived that the German submarine campaign would be extended to passenger liners, which usually carried scores of neutrals, without specific warning that such a step would be attacked.

With respect to the reports that the state department had discouraged the travel of Americans to Europe, Secretary Bryan said:

"We have discouraged ever since the beginning of the war the going abroad of any naturalized American and have declined to give passports to Americans who wanted to go abroad for pleasure, but have given them to those going on business."

The appalling nature of the disaster, bringing home to those who had friends on board the Lusitania the human side of the occurrence was apparent in the demeanor of high officials.

They were grieved—sick at heart. They made no effort to conceal this feeling, preferring to maintain silence, until the American government is ready to speak on the human as well as the legal aspects of the case.

The consular and diplomatic machinery of the government in the meantime brought information from every available source concerning survivors and lost and in the interval the diplomatic quarters in Washington the incident continued the greatest attraction. While the president and ministers were intensely interested in what the policy of the American government would be.

BERNSTORFF MISSING.

Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, was still away and no comment was made at the German embassy, among German officials and diplomats in sympathy with the Germanic allies, there were reiterated the arguments which German has insisted upon as justification for submarine warfare on merchant ships. It was reiterated that Great Britain, by preventing foodstuffs from reaching the civilian population of Germany, threatened her non-combatants with starvation. In the face of such an act, they declared, Germany made whatever reprisals were possible, however severe. The proclamation by the German admiralty of a war zone around the British Isles, and the subsequent warning were held to have been sufficient warning to Americans not to hazard their lives on belligerent vessels. The presence on the Lusitania of cases of cartridges was pointed to as a potent argument for the vessel's destruction.

No comment was made on the statement of Chairman Stone that the attack on the American steamer Gulflight without warning was in his opinion a more serious case for the American government to deal with than the Lusitania.

The impression prevailed tonight that the Gulflight case, the attack on the British steamer Falaba which resulted in the drowning of Leon C. Thrasher, an American citizen and the attack by German airmen on the American steamer Cushing would be grouped together in general representations from the United States to Germany. While the Falaba was sunk after several minutes had been given for the passengers to escape, President Wilson began a careful investigation of the legal aspects of that case, so that the torpedoing of the Lusitania, without time for research further in that connection. The problem before him had therefore resolved itself, it was understood, into a matter of policy—what steps would be taken—in accordance with the American warning that Germany would be held to a "strict accountability."

MANY SUGGESTIONS.

While not from the slightest intimation came from the White House, officials in department circles heard a variety of unofficial suggestions. It was suggested was that a note be sent to Germany demanding an explanation of the submarine attack with a request for an immediate disavowal. Another was that American vessels hereafter be convoyed by American warships. Still another was that the rupture of diplomatic relations without an actual declaration of war with Germany would be the next formality.

Some telegrams reaching the White House said the president would be supported even if he thought war was necessary to defend American rights on the seas. Other messages counseling moderation declared the country was not prepared for becoming involved in a European conflict.

Steps so far taken by the American government have been confined to formal notes. Ambassador Gerard was instructed to present the German foreign office to obtain through the admiralty a report from its submarine as to what happened to the Lusitania and to ask for the views of the German government. This will be developed in subsequent correspondence after the facts are gathered from German official sources.

Ambassador Page was also instructed to obtain all the facts which the British government could furnish and to present to the embassy at London. The American consuls reported as rapidly as they compiled the lists of names of the American survivors.

All other government business was temporarily overshadowed. The far eastern situation in which overnight a crisis had been averted was lost sight of, as was the reported annexation of Belgium by Germany. There was but one topic of conversation everywhere—the dramatic sea tragedy.

MRS. ALFRED G. VANDERBILT, wife of the millionaire who was on the Lusitania. Before her marriage to Mr. Vanderbilt she was Mrs. Margaret Emerson McKim, of Baltimore, sister of Mrs. Jack Horner, of Atlanta.

THRILLS EXPERIENCED CROSSING SUBMARINE ZONE ARE DESCRIBED

Charles E. Russell, Newspaper Man, Tells How Goose Flesh Rose as Ship's Passengers Strained Eyes for Periscopes

BY CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL
(Copyright, 1915, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.)

LONDON, April 29.—Everybody watched the sailors. They are getting every life boat out of its bed and swinging it outboard all ready to launch. This looks like business.

Ordinarily the life boats rest on their beds from port to port and year to year.

Next the stewards tack black paper over the stateroom ports, screw down the dead eyes, blanket the sides in canvas and put out all the deck lights.

That is the most shivery of all; you put your head out of the cabin door and seem to be stepping into a bale of black wool.

At this terrifying news the careful male passenger takes down the life preserver from the top shelf of the closet and dutifully himself and his womenkind, if such there be, in its use.

Also he advises them, if they go to bed that night, to have the life preservers and warm clothes handy. Open boats at night are colder than Greenland's icy.

Some of us improve on this sound advice by putting on the warm clothing and the life preserver over that and sitting up all night. I may observe here that at this stage of the voyage nobody talks about submarines, battleships nor sunken vessels.

By some secret psychology the whole subject is dropped. Also we bear ourselves with an elaborate unconcern. But one thing betrays us. At dinner there is a sudden crash of machinery somewhere below and half of the company jump up breathless. Tension—we all feel it.

When we are shot fairly into the danger zone 200 pairs of eyes sweep incessantly that stretch of dull gray water. No periscope the size of a man's hand could escape that scrutiny of the volunteer guard. The boom of a peaceful trawler in the mist brings out every pair of glasses in the two cabins!

OH, WHERE ARE THE CONVOYS?

And now, where are those convoys? We are right in the midst of the danger field. On this spot the Lusitania was sunk last week with all hands; over there the city of Shoreditch was struck down. Where are the convoys?

Ask the winds far away that disperse the wreaths of fog. One loyal Englishman hopefully suggests they may be so far ahead of us we can't see them, and he is right, for soon as they are at least 500 miles ahead and somewhere in the North sea. The afternoon grinds away this fevered fashion. Then the foggy evening descends. We are not stopped, nor interfered with, nor challenged, so far as we can detect, if we were a German pirate we could sail right up the nearly and shell Liverpool itself.

But when with the lamps of the city ahead, the stewards turn on the deck lights and the boats are swung in again, you can tell what weight has been on the passengers' minds by the cheer they raise—a cheer and more than one huge sigh of relief.

But how about those convoys, any way? Why, there weren't any." The British government didn't provide them. The ship is one of the nation's dearest possession and costs staggering sum to which the government contributed, but the government didn't provide any guard for it, and it might have been sunk as easily as the Falaba, the Wayfarer and the rest of the great fleet of recent merchantmen that now paves the Irish sea.

When you are about to board a steamer for Liverpool and you read in the shipping news that all the waters thereabout are alive with submarines zealously sinking everything that floats, the news is not exhilarating. Here is an account of a steamer like yours torpedoed close by Liverpool lightship itself—the audacious undersea raiders! It jolts you up a lot inside, there's no use denying it.

The most of us would fain die a dry death, if any, and anyway, to be spilled in the middle of the night from a warm bed into the icy waters of the Irish sea is no way to treat a man of peace. It gives you goose flesh to think of it.

The goose flesh idea and the weird terrors of the German submarine fleet struck home to a flock of the passengers booked for the ship I sailed on. At the last moment the thing was too much for them and they skipped ashore. It was a great, new, handsome ship under the British flag, and the neutral-flagged vessel in which these cautious ones now took refuge was a marine antique seasoned with the odors of a thousand voyages.

SNOBS FLED, SLOBS STUCK.

There was a howling old northeasterly gale and the other ship must have navigated alternately on either end all the way across, but the actual afflictions of bilgewater and tilting decks seemed to these people less than the pictures their imaginations painted of a ship load of passengers dumped into the sea while a submarine's crew should watch them drown. There's no accounting for tastes.

For the honor of plain folks I point out that all of the band that developed cold feet on this occasion were members of our highest circles and with names familiar to the financial and society reporters. The snobs fled, but the slobs remained.

This to a group of English friends that apparently without profit had traveled rotten ships and seemed to be a fact of great moment. One of them dwelt much upon it in the smoking room and said, learnedly:

"Now, if your upper classes run away like this at the first sign of danger, you can't have any hope for the rest of your people, you know. What would you do in time of war?"

But the cloud of international criticism lifted when a sturdy son of the west made answer.

"Do?" says he. "Do what she has always done. Make leaders out of tanners, railsplitters, teamsters, farmers' boys or anybody else that is fit, and leave what you mean by the upper classes to grab off the fat contracts and sell rotten ships and meat to the government, as they always have. The kind of people that count in war time ain't running away so you could notice it."

Still, I shall always maintain that goose flesh is only in good form when roasted and brought to the table with apple sauce. It has no proper business to come bothering around when you lie in your berth and count up how many steamers have been torpedoed in St. George's channel, toward which you are now flying. So to cheer us up they speculated that somewhere in the convoy of British warships (which never came) to see us safely across.

But everything has an end and finally the great Lusitania tied up at the dock in Liverpool.

THE DAY MANIA IN ENGLAND.

We are going down the gangway from the steamer to the landing stage. Who are all these tense slaves, furtive looking men that go snooping about, plainly watching the passengers? Scotland yard detectives, no less! A whole drove of them; and the business of landing is drawn out five hours that they may investigate everybody. They pick out six of our passengers and have them detained by the police, being under the impression that a wife murderess—this these are bloody minded spies. One is a decent looking matron of Holland. She goes with the rest. The spy mania! Because of the war it is epidemic in England now and anybody that wears well fitting clothes and doesn't chant his speech is liable to arrest.

Anyway, he is certain to be followed. Among our passengers was a little band of the most obviously typical tourists you ever saw, utterly harmless, and one of the Scotland yard sleuths shadowed them about the pier and over to Birkenhead, peered into their compartment on the train, and dogged them half over a zigzag tour of England's show cities under the belief that they meditated mischief against the king. But when the spy mania comes in of course all reason goes out.

GREAT BATTLE RAGES IN THE CARPATHIANS

Berlin Claims Taking of Port on Baltic--French Claim Advance

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Hostilities by land and by sea are proceeding vigorously. Land battles are in progress at various points along both the western and eastern lines, German submarines continue their sinking of ships and a British torpedo boat has been sent to the bottom by striking a mine in the North sea.

The hardest battling on land continues in the Carpathian region, where the Austrians say the Teutonic allies continue to make progress. Petrograd, on the other hand, while admitting that heavy fighting is going on, asserts the attacks against the Russians between the Vistula and the Carpathians have had no success, and that the Teutons have suffered enormous losses and that they are showing signs of fatigue.

Berlin says the important port of Libau on the Baltic has been taken by the Germans and that in so doing German sea forces bombarded Libau. Petrograd admits that torpedo boats shelled the port of Libau, but adds that one of the hostile craft was sunk.

Artillery engagements have taken place along the whole front in France, and Paris records that the French have advanced on the right bank of the Fecht river about two-thirds of a mile over a front of nearly a mile in the direction of Metzeral.

German Submarine U-39 Sank Steamer, Is Report

(By Associated Press.)

GENEVA, May 8, Via Paris, May 9.—A dispatch from Munich, Bavaria, received at Basel, says the German submarine U-39 sank the Lusitania.

"There were great rejoicings today in Southern German according to the advices. Towns were beflagged especially along the Rhine and the children had a half holiday in honor of the event. The rejoicings are said to have spread even to Vienna and Budapest. It is said the general feeling in Germany and Austria is that the Americans on board the steamer had been warned previously of their danger and that therefore they undertook the voyage at their own risk.

China Bows to Will of Japanese, Says Report

(By Associated Press.)

TOKIO, May 8.—China has accepted the Japanese demands, according to a Peking dispatch printed in an extra edition of the Asahi.

The foreign office today denied the statement that during the negotiations Japan declined China's request to be permitted to take minutes of the conference on the Japanese demands. Denial also was made that China had ever demanded the restoration of Kiao-chon.

Turks Claim Defeat of Allied Infantry

(By Associated Press.)

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 8.—Via London, May 8.—In the hour yesterday the Turkish infantry broke down an allied attempt at a forward movement at Sedjul Bahr. Although the retreat "attack" was well prepared by the ships' guns, they were put to full flight near Avi Burnu the Turkish forces were successful.

Italy Now Threatening War With the Turks

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 8.—(Via Paris.)—A Tribune dispatch from Rome says Italy has decided, owing to the recent uprising in Tripoli, to notify Turkey that it considers void the treaty of Lausanne. Such a notification, the Tribune says, would amount to a declaration of war.

LIGHTS OF PARIS DULL SINCE WAR IS ON

PARIS, April 27.—Sixteen thousand lamps—electric and gas—light Paris now from 10 o'clock until midnight, and 5,500 only are left burning from midnight on. In times of peace 55,000 are burning all night.

STOCK MARKET BEARS UP WELL DESPITE DISASTER

Those Who Expected Havoc Would Be Created in Quoted Values Disappointed

NEW YORK, May 8.—To those who expected developments from the sinking of the Lusitania would create havoc in quoted values, today's stock market must have been a disappointment. Prices fell in heading fashion at first, but recovered with such ease on substantial buying as to leave few traces of early declines.

In the first fifteen minutes losses of 3 to 10 points were general but absorptive power overcame selling pressure and restored values all around. Net changes showed few material losses, except in the group of speculative specialties and even there initial recessions were largely effaced.

Wall street began the day with many misgivings. There were informal conferences between its officials and leading banking interests, the result of which was apparent in supporting orders that followed the initial decline. The situation was thoroughly in hand and at no time was any necessity seen for exercise of repressive measures.

TREMEAU MERCILESS IN CRITICISM OF ARMY

PARIS April 27.—General Tremeau, who recently died from injuries sustained in an automobile accident, was virtually the commander-in-chief of the army during the period of his service as vice president of the higher war council. He is well remembered by all the officers who served under him for his vigor, quickness of decision and plain way of speaking. After the annual army maneuvers in 1910 in the Champagne province, he addressed the general officers as is usual under such circumstances. He started out in the usual honeyed tone and finished as follows:

"Gentlemen," he said, "if the great emperor had been able to come back among us and witness the maneuvers that we have just accomplished upon the scene of his glorious exploits, he would find that we have borne ourselves in a particularly pitiable manner."

The severity of his criticisms made him a great many political enemies, and it was this more than anything else that brought about his resignation in 1911.

BRITISH NAVY LIST CUTS OUT NAMES OF VESSELS

LONDON, April 27.—The first official navy list ever issued without the names of ships has just appeared. It was evidently considered necessary to conceal from the Germans any data which might reveal the full strength of the British navy.

The list of officers and men on active service covers eighty pages of double columns, while the royal naval reserve and the volunteer naval reserve occupies eighty-seven pages more. A large number of the volunteer reservists hold temporary commissions. Among them are the following rated as lieutenant commanders: The Duke of Manchester, the Duke of Westminster, Filson Young, novelist, D. C. Calthorp, novelist; Lord Aughborough, of Olympic games fame; L. G. Chiozza-Money, the writer on economics, and others.

There are several pages of names of ladies composing Queen Alexandra's royal naval nursing service. The list of sick quarters in all parts of the United Kingdom covers eight pages.

BRITISH NAVY LOSES 8,593 MEN IN WAR

LONDON, April 27.—The British naval losses in the entire war up to April 1 are given as follows in an official statement:

	Officers.	Men.
Killed	332	4,981
Wounded	61	640
Interned	41	1,524
Missing	7	73
Prisoners	11	924
	452	8,143

SHIP'S OWNERS MUST BEAR ALL THE BLAME, SAYS GERMAN GOV'T

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Via Wireless to London, May 9.—The following official communication was issued tonight:

"The Cunard liner, Lusitania was yesterday torpedoed by a German submarine and sank.

"The Lusitania was naturally armed with guns, as were recently most of the English mercantile steamers. Moreover, as is well known here, she had large quantities of war material in her cargo.

"Her owners, therefore, knew to what danger the passengers were exposed. They alone bear all the responsibility for what has happened.

"Germany, on her part, left nothing undone to repeatedly and strongly warn them. The imperial ambassador in Washington even went so far as to make a public warning, so as to draw attention to this danger. The English news sneered then at the warning and relied on the protection of the British fleet to safeguard Atlantic traffic."

All Most Prominent Persons Aboard Liner Are Now Believed to Have Perished

(By Associated Press.)

QUEENSTOWN, May 8.—The body of Dr. F. S. Pearson, of New York and Lowell, Mass., was identified in one of the morgues here this evening.

It is now regarded as virtually certain that all of the most prominent persons aboard the Lusitania perished.

Inquest proceedings were formally opened at Kinzale this afternoon to facilitate the transfer to Queenstown of a number of bodies lying there.

One of the bodies is that of B. Matthews. It is in the body of a beautiful woman who is believed to have been his wife. A paper found on the body of Mr. Matthews contained the words "First prize ladies' photograph, won by Mrs. Matthews."

Many of the survivors report that they lost large sums of money, much of which was deposited in the ship's safe.

The bodies of the following Americans have been landed at Queenstown: Mrs. May Brown, J. Fellman or Fillman, L. Jones, Bessie Hare, George Arthur, David Samuel, T. B. King, W. Brunell, jr., J. V. Merriman and Miss McBeyth, probably Americans; Miss Mary Grenston and William Rennie.

The consul adds that 1,200 bodies probably will not be recovered.

Amsterdam Paper Declares People Justly Indignant

AMSTERDAM, Holland, May 8—(Via London.)—The Handelsblad says:

"The feeling that the Lusitania has caused a profound impression here. A people such as ours, which always has been a champion of human right and it is its duty to express its indignation at the most barbarous manner of German warfare on the sea, which violates that which always has been recognized.

"We raise our voice, however powerless it may be, in protest."

The Vlid says:

"Neutrals who in these lamentable times have so often imposed restraint upon themselves, in order to silence their feelings of horror and indignation must now acknowledge that another incident can be added to all the previous violations of laws, to the atrocious interpretations of treaties and to the inhuman and cowardly conveyance which Germany has been guilty of using in committing murder on a great scale.

"The commander of the German submarine which sank the Lusitania can look with pride upon his work. Is not this so, Satan?"

C. E. Paynter Drowned When Ship Went Down

(By Associated Press.)

MOBILE, Ala., May 8.—Gregory M. Luce, president of the Bay City Export Company, received a cabled message today from Miss Irene Paynter, of Liverpool, saying that her father, C. E. Paynter, British representative of the export company, was drowned when the Lusitania went down. Miss Paynter was also a passenger, but according to the cablegram, she "miraculously escaped."

The Paynters were returning to Liverpool from Mobile.

Mr. Paynter's name had been included in the latest list of survivors.

More Americans Are Identified Among Dead

WASHINGTON, May 8.—American Consul Frost at Cork cabled late today that among the list of identified dead of the Lusitania's American passengers were, besides Charles Frohman, Mrs. Amelia McDonald and Patrick Callon.

WILSON PARDONS HUBBARD JUST BEFORE DEPARTURE

President Enabled Writer, Believed Lusitania Victim, to Obtain Passport

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Elbert Hubbard, the writer, believed to have been lost on the Lusitania, obtained a pardon from President Wilson just before sailing for Europe, it was learned today, in order to have his civil rights restored and thus obtain a passport.

Hubbard pleaded guilty in Buffalo to a charge of misuse of the mails in 1913 and was sentenced to pay a fine of $100. The matter objected to appeared in Hubbard's magazine. President Taft denied him a pardon the same year on the ground that his petition was premature.

Last month Hubbard called at the White House and announced that he wanted to go Europe to write about the war but could not obtain an American passport because of the conviction hanging over him. The pardon was signed by the president.

Congressmen on Tour May Hurry Back Home

(By Associated Press.)

HONOLULU, T. H., May 8.—In view of the grave situation caused by the torpedoing of the Lusitania and the possibility of an extra session of congress the congressional party touring the Hawaiian Islands discussed a plan today to secure the cruiser Maryland for a rush trip to San Francisco.

LET THEM THINK, SAYS BERNSTORFF, OF AMERICAN VIEWS

German Ambassador Refuses to Comment on Sinking of Lusitania When Cornered by Newspaper Reporters

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—After remaining in seclusion at his hotel here the entire day, Count von Bernstorff, German ambassador, left for Washington tonight. It was not, however, before he had run a gauntlet of newspaper men who had been awaiting him at the entrance of his hotel and who pursued him to the Pennsylvania station and into his car in their determination to obtain an interview.

"Let them think," he was quoted as saying when asked what he thought the American people would think of the torpedoing of the Lusitania. His final statement, after refusing to answer a quick fire of questions was that he would say nothing until proof was furnished that the Lusitania had in fact been todpedoed by a German submarine.

At the railroad station the ambassador was confronted by a battery of interrogations, including the reference to the American public opinion.

"Not one word," he said, "let them think."

"I am my government's representative; I can not say a word," he shouted later to another query.

The newspaper men persisted, however, one of them making reference to newspaper comment upon the embassy's action in publishing its war zone advertisement.

"I don't care what the papers say," was the reply.

Pressed again for a statement, the ambassador asked in a quiet tone:

"Do we know that the Lusitania was torpedoed?"

He was referred to the statements of the British admiralty.

"What proof has been furnished?" asked the ambassador again.

"Does that mean that you will make no statement until it is proved that the Lusitania was torpedoed by a German submarine?" said an interviewer.

"That's it, exactly," he replied. "I haven't sufficient information on which to make a statement."

Italy Stirred Up at Loss of Citizens on Cunarder

ROME, May 8.—(Via Paris.)—The sinking of the Lusitania has caused a profound impression in Italy.

Anxiety is increased by the fact that there were several Italians among the passengers.

The feeling in Rome may be described as one of indignation at the killing of neutrals. Measures to end such proceedings are being urged on all sides.

What's In the Cup?

The flavour may be agreeable, but appetite isn't the only thing to be considered.

The average cup of coffee contains about 2½ grains of caffeine, a powerful drug which is a frequent cause of indigestion, constipation, nervousness, heart trouble and other ills.

Some persons are strong enough to use coffee for a time without apparent harm, but repeated doses of its subtle, cumulative drug, caffeine, sooner or later affects even the strong man or woman.

Any coffee drinker will benefit from a change to

INSTANT POSTUM

This pure food-drink has a snappy tang, very like the Old Gov't Javas, but it contains no caffeine, nor any other harmful ingredient. It is made of selected wheat, a little wholesome molasses and is pure, invigorating and delicious.

And Instant Postum is so easy to make. Put a level teaspoonful in a cup, add hot water, and sugar and cream to taste.

The convenience of Instant Postum is seen at a glance. Sold in 30c and 50c tins. Some prefer Postum Cereal—the original form—which must be well boiled, 15c and 25c pkgs.

Grocers sell both kinds, the flavour is equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

HORSE SHOW AT PARK TO AID THE INCURABLES

Southern Owners Invited to Enter Their Animals and Win Prizes

A charity horse show, the proceeds of which will be given to the Home of Incurables, will be held at Piedmont Park on May 18 and 19. J. K. Ottley will be judge.

Anyone having a saddle or harness horse or pony is eligible and, as only amateurs will be admitted, there will be plenty of comedy thrown in. The show will be a Southern in scope, and entries can be made from any part of the territory around Atlanta.

Appointments as to rigs and harness will not be considered in awarding prizes, but the exhibitors are asked to provide the best equipment possible.

In sending entries, the class number should be mentioned. Miss Marguerite McKee is in charge of the entries, and she may be communicated with by telephone or mail care of H. L. McKee, Piedmont avenue. The color and name of the horse, the height and sex should be specified.

Nym McCullough said yesterday that the city and county mounted police, both officers and privates, had been invited to enter the competition for prizes.

Mr. McCullough said also that cups had been donated by Fairfax Harrison, president of the Southern railway, Captain J. W. English and others. The Georgia Railway and Electric Co. will furnish the illumination free. There are already fifty entrants.

The classes follow:

SADDLE HORSES.

Class 1.—Police mount, open to both city and county officers. The rider, horse and equipment all to be considered. Prize, silver cup.

Class 2.—Saddle ponies, under 46 inches, boy or girl to ride. Prize, silver cup.

Class 18.—Jumping class, open to all, ladies and gentlemen to compete, included in which will be members of the Governors' Horse guard, owning jumping horses. Prize, silver cup.

An entrance fee of $1 will be charged on all entries.

CHINESE COUPLE MAKE UP IN HOSPITAL AFTER ROW

Husband Sent to Station and Wife to Grady, but Later Both Go Home

Grady hospital internes and nurses stood in perplexed amazement in the emergency ward Saturday night and watched Y. T. Daniel, a Chinese laundryman, embrace and kiss his Chinese wife while she exhibited the marks of his fingers on her throat and angrily jabbered an intelligible jargon.

A short while before, Officer Kirk had interrupted the two of them in the midst of a scuffle at Daniel's home, 71 Orme street. The policeman was attracted by the woman's screams and forced open the door to find the Chinaman choking her. The woman was taken to the hospital in an ambulance, Daniel to the police station, where he put up $25 collateral.

He then hurried to the hospital and insisted on seeing his wife. The woman, an almond-eyed little creature apparently about 19 years old, flung her arms around her husband and refused to be torn away from him. She showed him the marks on her neck and he kissed them. Their reconciliation became so violent that the woman was in hysterics and the hospital authorities made Daniel leave her. Later she prevailed on them to allow her to go home.

Neither would tell the cause of their quarrel, but it is expected the details of the affair will come out in recorder's court.

DEFER SUFFRAGE PLAY UNTIL SOLONS MEET

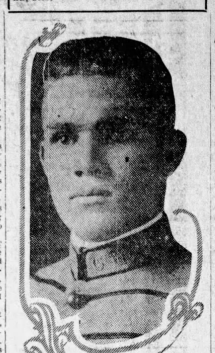
The one-act suffrage play entitled "How the Vote Was Won," which was scheduled for presentation at the Tech Y. M. C. A. next Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Fulton and DeKalb counties branch of the Equal Suffrage Party of Georgia, has been postponed until the Georgia legislature meets, the exact date to be announced later. A number of prominent Atlanta women, including Mrs. Beaumont Davison, Mrs. W. C. Jarnigan, Miss Jane Cooper and others, will take parts in the play, and Miss Carolyn Cobb is directing rehearsals. The postponement will permit of an enlargement of the program among the added features being several tableaux vivants in which some of Atlanta's prettiest girls will participate.

PLAN GREAT MONUMENT FOR FALLEN GERMANS

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, May 6.—A mammoth monument is to be erected in the little East Prussian city of Osterode to mark the resting place of the German soldiers who have fallen in the east. A huge cemetery will be laid out in a little wooded section nearby, in the center of which will be the monument. Dr. Albert Hannacher has been selected as the architect and has already begun work on the stone. The names of all soldiers buried in Osterode will be inscribed on bronze tablets attached to the monument.

C. D. WOODWARD, Atlanta boy who has complied with entrance requirements to the United States Naval Academy, at Annapolis.



C. D. WOODWARD WILL ENTER ANNAPOLIS SOON

Son of Col. J. C. Woodward Has Passed His Entrance Examinations

C. D. Woodward, son of Col. J. C. Woodward, president of the Georgia Military academy, has passed his entrance examinations to the United States Naval academy and will enter Annapolis in the near future.

Several weeks ago he stood the examinations and his name was among those of the successful applicants received in Atlanta Saturday. Young Woodward is well known here and has many friends who will congratulate him on his success.

NEW HOE IS PATENTED BY A CORDELE WOMAN

Farm Implement Has Teeth Like Harrow Instead of Straight Cutting Edge

A hoe with teeth like a harrow instead of a straight edge, like the old style hoe, has been patented by Mrs. Stephens Neal, of Cordele, Ga., and is being manufactured in Atlanta and agents are selling it throughout the south.

The hoe was invented by Mrs. Neal's husband, the late Dr. Stephens Neal, of Cordele, but was not patented by him. He invented a thermometer for use in the distillation of turpentine, patented the thermometer, and introduced it in the turpentine industry with great success. So much of his spare time was devoted to his thermometer enterprise that he never took the trouble to patent his hoe.

After his death, Mrs. Neal, who has a taste for gardening, and had thoroughly demonstrated the merits of the hoe in her own yard, decided to try its possibilities. She is meeting with very encouraging success.

The teeth of the hoe are about one-half an inch wide and between the teeth are cutting edges about the same width. The ends of the teeth are pointed and both sides of the teeth are sharpened. The teeth go down into a mat of grass or weeds and pull them up with very little clinging soil.

Mrs. Neal passed through Atlanta yesterday on her way to Philadelphia to make arrangements for increasing her capital and manufacturing the hoe on a much larger scale.

MONUMENT TO FRENCH SOLDIERS IS ERECTED

PARIS, May 6.—The first general monument raised to the memory of soldiers fallen in battle has just been completed by reservists of the engineering corps near Meux. It is a truncated pyramid of stone and cement on a massive foundation bordered with a mosaic of broken stone. It bears on a marble slab in front this inscription in red letters:

"To the memory of the soldiers of the army of Paris who died upon the battlefield of the Ourcq, September, 1914."

Another marble slab bears Hugo's lines:

"Glory to our eternal France;
Glory to those who died for her."

The monument stands on the extreme edge of the field where was fought the battle that turned the tide in favor of the allies, and made possible the victory of the Marne.

Swish! Corns Gone! We Use "GETS IT!"

2 Seconds, 2 Drops—Corns Vanish!

For everybody with corns, there is in every drug store in the land one of the real wonders of the world, and that's "GETS-IT" for corns! It's the first and only corn-cure ever known that removes any and every corn or callus without fail, without fussing with thick bandages, tormentors, corn-quelling salves, irritating ointments. It's applied in 2 seconds—bing, bing—2 drops, the work is done, the corn shrivels up, your corn agony ends and the corn leaves for-ever! All the limping, the pains that dart to your heart's core, the crucifixion of having to wear shoes over screaming corns, the danger of blood poison from making them bleed by using knives, razors and scissors—are gone at last! "GETS-IT" is the new way, the sure, simple, painless way. Try it for corns, calluses, warts and bunions.

ENGLISH RELIEF FUND IS SEVERELY CRITICISED

About a Third of $25,000,000 Raised Has Been Spent, Many Kicks

LONDON, April 27.—Widespread criticism is heard in England over the administration of the Prince of Wales' National Relief fund, which now amounts to $25,000,000. About a third of this has been expended thus far.

The criticism comes from two sides. The Workers' National committee complains that $7,000,000 has been spent in relieving dependants of soldiers and sailors, and only $1,000,000 for the relief of civil distress, which the committee declares was the principal object of the fund. On the other hand, families of soldiers and sailors complain that there are unreasonable delays in making allowances and payments, and that the administrators of the fund have taken no notice of many cases of genuine distress.

The Workers' National committee, which is understood to have the backing of the trades unions, has asked the executive committee of the fund for "a full statement of receipts and expenditures, together with an explanation of the policy which has been pursued in the administration of the fund."

In Glasgow, a serious situation has arisen through a notice circulated a few days ago by the local branch of the relief fund executive committee, stating that the fund would not continue to pay the weekly rent of 9,000 dependants. The Glasgow secretary at the same time stated that this action was taken against the wish of the local committee, which had in good faith made promises to the soldiers' relatives which it was now unable to fulfill.

The defence of the general executive committee is thus given in the Times: "The committee admits that the local administrative machinery for the payment of allotments and allowances is not yet working smoothly. But this work was undertaken only to relieve the unprecedented strain which the war had imposed upon the army pay department, and the committee hopes that before long the fund will be entirely relieved of this charge upon it.

"At the beginning of the war, the army pay office had on its books only 1,500 soldiers' wives. The number entitled to separation allowances is now close to 1,000,000, and they are paid weekly. The number of households granted relief by the fund has been over 500,000. So far as practicable the money thus expended is being recovered from the war office.

"Substantial sums have been granted for the temporary relief of wounded soldiers and sailors, and for the provision of employment and training for the partially disabled.

"Grants from the fund for the relief of the civil population are made solely on the recommendation of the government committee on the prevention and relief of distress, of which the president is Herbert Samuel, president of the local government board.

"Unemployment, as everyone knows, is much less serious than was anticipated, and it has not been necessary to make any very heavy demands on the fund for the assistance of cases of distress among the civil population. So long as the government's demand for labor on government work remains unsatisfied, it would be impossible to regard without grave anxiety the continued reliance of men and women on relief funds. The committee therefore urges its local committees to scrutinize carefully the circumstances of all applicants for civil relief."

BERLIN DANCERS FIND WAY TO EVADE ORDER

BERLIN, April 27.—The police order closing all the dance halls in Berlin was not able to dampen the ardor of the dancers, for whom a way to evade the order was promptly found. This was the establishing of "dancing hours" by hundreds of dancing masters, most of whom were as little dancing masters as their clients were pupils. To put an end to this the police have ordered that notice of such "lessons" be given to the proper police station in advance, and that the names of the "pupils" and the hour when they are expected be included in this notice. The "lessons" may not last more than two hours, and not more than fifty persons may be present.

MARION, S. C., May 8.—An unknown negro is being pursued by a sheriff's posse after firing at the sheriff at close range and later killing Elwell Cook, a contractor. Efforts to surround him have failed up to a late hour.

Mishap—Misuse

The Only Clouds That Ever Dim the Glory of Fortified Tires

To Our Coming Friends

When you join the army of Goodyear tire users, do not expect the impossible. No tire ever built is exempt from mishap or misuse. Goodyears sometimes meet ill-luck, like others.

But they average best. That is amply proved, and there is ample reason for it. Some give wondrous mileage, some meet accidents. But on the whole they mean much lower tire bills, much less trouble.

A 5-Million Average

Remember, please, that men have tested nearly five million Goodyear tires, on perhaps 500,000 cars. The tests have covered 15 years. And long ago those tests placed Goodyears at the top.

Last year we sold 1,479,883 pleasure car tires—about one for each car in use. Yet we have some hundred rivals. Doesn't that prove that men in general have found that Goodyear tires are best?

Five Major Reasons

The Goodyear Fortified Tire has five exclusive features. One combats rim-cuts, one blowouts, one loose treads. And all in the best ways known. One is the ideal anti-skid—our All-Weather tread—very thick, very tough, with sharp, resistless grips. And one gives security.

Note that all these features belong to Goodyear alone. They are extras on which we spend millions of dollars. And those are the main reasons why Goodyears rule.

Still Greater Value

On February 1st we made another big price reduction—our third in two years, totaling 45 per cent. Never has any fire offered such value as Goodyears give today. That results from our mammoth output.

We count all motorists among our coming friends. Tires which excel in so many ways appeal to all tire users. Try them and judge them fairly. Any dealer will supply you. (2274)

The dealers in the list below are Goodyear Service Stations.

In spite of larger profits on some lesser tires, they offer Goodyears. They know men WANT these tires, and that extra volume well makes up for smaller margin on a single sale.

And with these Goodyear Tires they give the maximum in Service. They deserve your business.

ALAKSAN RAILROAD TO TAP RICH TIMBER LAND

100,000 Acres of Timber Land Will Be a Great Boon for Pulp Industry

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
WASHINGTON, May 8.—Of Alaska's 375,000,000 acres there are 100,000,000 acres of practically virgin forest and woodlands. Twenty million acres of this land is covered with real forests—trees ranging in height from 75 to 100 feet and in diameter from 12 to 24 inches.

The other 80,000,000 acres of woodlands is covered with trees, a fair percentage of which are of value as saw material and the rest for fuel purposes.

The coast forests alone contain approximately 75,000,000,000 feet of merchantable saw timber, of which the annual cut is estimated at 27,000,000 board feet.

This is merely touching the forests, however, for practically the entire forest of the coast region is overmature. It has been accumulating for ages and only slightly injured by fire or cutting.

It is predicted, however, that the building of Uncle Sam's railroad from Seward to Fairbanks will boom the timber industry along the Kenai peninsula by providing a quick and cheap way of getting the timber out. Already Seward, the southern terminal of the road, has several big sawmills.

In the coast forests of southeastern and southern Alaska the species are chiefly western hemlock, Sitka spruce, western red cedar and yellow cedar, with occasional specimens of lodgepole or shore pine, black hemlock, Alpine fir, black and white spruce, balsam poplar, black cottonwood, Oregon alder and several birches and willows.

Logging in the southern part of Alaska is now carried on in the crudest methods. Although logging machinery was tried out in the early days, it is now carried on entirely by hand. The result is that only the best trees and those convenient to waterways are cut. The logs are frequently made the whole length of the tree and are jacked up and rolled into the water, where they are tied into huge rafts and floated to the sawmills by tugs.

The forests of interior Alaska are practically all included within the drainage basins of the Yukon and Kuskokwim rivers and are chiefly of the woodland type.

The best timber of spruce, birch and poplar grows in the valleys of the streams, particularly along the Tanana and fine birch and aspen are found on the slopes of creeks which have a silt soil.

This is particularly true in the Fairbanks district, which is to be the northern terminal of the United States owned railroad, where 60,000 cords of wood are cut annually for use in Fairbanks and the nearby mining regions. The town alone uses 15,000 to 20,000 cords a year. And yet the woodlands in that region, except where fire has got in its work, are tangled and overmature.

With the opening of the government railroad Alaska will eventually export considerable lumber as well as coal, although it is not likely that it will ever seriously compete with the fine grades of lumber grown in Oregon and Washington.

The most promising future is in utilizing the wood for pulp. Both spruce and hemlock are good pulp woods and taken together they comprise almost the entire forests of Alaska.

TREES from 75 to 100 feet high—and there's 20,000,000 acres of such forest land in Alaska.

LOCUST INVASION IN EGYPT SERIOUS MATTER

CAIRO, Egypt, May 8.—The locust invasion in Egypt and Palestine is proving a far more serious matter than war. The locusts, nothwithstanding energetic measures taken by the government and farmers, have spread the length and breadth of Egypt and are more numerous than at any time within twenty years. They constitute a very serious menace to the cotton crop, which is already well above ground.

BORAH TAKES OCCASION TO RAP MEXICAN POLICY

Senator From Idaho Says He Does Not Favor "Peace at Any Price" Attitude

(By Associated Press.)
BOISE Idaho, May 8.—United States Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, a member of the senate foreign relations committee, tonight issued the following signed statement:

"I do not anticipate any decisive action or any change of policy upon the part of the authorities at Washington based upon the sinking of the Lusitania. That disaster and the loss of the lives of American citizens would be calculated ordinarily to arouse great feeling throughout the country, and doubtless the American people do feel deeply upon the subject, but to my mind the sinking of the ship of a foe upon which happens to be found American citizens is by no means to be compared with the act of hunting out, robbing, ravishing and murdering American citizens in a neighboring country.

"We have lost more citizens in Mexico than we will lose on the Lusitania, and as our policy with reference to Mexico seems to be well settled and accepted, there is no possible reason why we should apply a different policy toward Germany. I don't anticipate any change of policy because of this unfortunate affair.

"I am expressing my view as to what our policy will likely be rather than what it should be. I don't hesitate to say that I do not agree with the 'peace at any price' policy.

"This republic should face a world in arms rather than have it said that American women may be ravished and American citizens murdered on the very doorsteps of the republic.

"And yet in saying this I would not expect war as a result of such a policy. We are far more likely to keep out of war in the long run by a bold, determined policy of protection to American citizens than by the policy of indifference. The world accepts the standard we ourselves set up and treats us accordingly.

GROCERS GIVE WAY TO NEWCOMERS' BIG NIGHT

Meeting Postponed From Tuesday to Thursday on Account of Celebration

O. T. Camp, president of the Retail Grocers and Butchers' association, announces that the regular meeting of the association would be postponed from Tuesday night until Thursday night, so as to give every grocer and butcher in Atlanta an opportunity to join with the Rotarians in their newcomers' celebration Tuesday night.

"And I hope every grocer and butcher in town will go to the Rotarians' celebration and help make it the success that it deserves to be," said Mr. Camp.

MODERN VIKING WHIPS MIGHTY SHIP OWNERS

BY JACK JUNGMEYER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., May 8.—Wherever toilers of the sea foregather the name of Andrew Furuseth is spoken almost in reverence. In ship-owning circles it is anathema. The public, when it realises the full significance of his stupendous achievement, will hail him one of the stalwarts of this generation.

For Andrew Furuseth, 50 years old, stands today the emancipator of the men before the mast. After 21 years of relentless fighting to drive barbarism from the seas, this tall, lean, weather-beaten Viking of the twentieth century has given sailors their "Charter of Freedom."

He has done more. He has enormously increased the safety of marine travel. These humanitarian accomplishments are clinched in the enactment of the new seamen's law recently signed by President Wilson. Senator LaFollette polished and championed the bill, but its structure was Furuseth's.

REVOLUTIONIZING BUSINESS.

Naturday this means revolutionizing the shipping business, not alone of this country, but eventually of much of the rest of the world. And that is why the ocean kings are cursing the name Furuseth.

It is a powerful drama, the story of this man's life from the time he shipped out of Norway as a cabin boy, through years of able seamanship to a commander's berth, and his coming ashore in grim resolve to wipe out by law the things that had made the forecastle a synonym for hell.

From that day, twenty-one years ago, to this, he has been the Nemesis of conscienceless ship-owners. Year after year he besieged congress to pass a seaman's liberation act. He was defeated as regularly as clockwork, for arrayed against him were interests whose pooled power represented over a billion dollars. But Norseman Andrew Furuseth would not quit, no matter how often he was licked.

SINGLE-HANDED.

Before his effective aggression the bucko mate passed from the Pacific, the crimp was forced to yield, the "shanghaier" routed—all that infamous breed that pandered to calloused ship owners.

Almost single-handed he accomplished this along the west coast, by welding sailormen into closer protective organizations and by rousing and directing public indignation.

As head of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, Furuseth's word today is gospel on the foredecks of a thousand vessels. For two decades he has been the prophet, avenger and hope of marine toilers. He experienced their injustices, miseries, cruelties. The tang of the sea is in his blood. He is today as much a sailorman as he was when he went rigging up aloft, although his fight for human rights has kept him ashore twenty-one years.

The landlubber will probably never know what Furuseth's triumph means to seamen.

"I have," said Furuseth, "seen sailors deliberately commit crime to contract a loathsome disease when ashore in order to get away from enforced servitude aboard ship."

HIS REVENGE.

All the brutalities Furuseth experienced were hoarded against the day of reckoning now at hand for the masters. He has known how to turn his wrath to constructive account—to suffl farreaching account that a hundred thousand men, comrades of the sea, have seen the dawn of a new epoch.

This has been the revenge of the most portentious figure the sea has produced in a generation. But in the hour of his triumph he does not gloat or boast. Furuseth is too big for that; too much in earnest. His modesty matches his power, and achievements. He will not speak of himself. A newspaper photographer who attempted to snap his picture was almost mobbed by his sailor friends because that sort of publicity was looked upon as an outrage by Furuseth.

"As far as I myself am concerned—well, that is insignificant," he said, tamping his pipe with plug-cut. "It is the seamen's law, a law that sets them free, that counts," and the fighting glint of his grey eyes flashed under aquiline brows.

"To get able men back to the sea, American men, by making the life fit for human beings, is of national, racial and personal significance. What I or any other man has suffered or accomplished is of little consequence, except as it has helped alter conditions.

★Note Well

"I purchased my CASE during the early months of 1910, and have driven it more than 45,000 miles, under all conditions, and with the exception of tire and fuel expense, which, too, has been very economical, I have only paid out $1.50 for repairs. The motor has never been taken down, and today runs almost as well as a new one.

I cannot recommend this car too strongly, as nothing too good can be said of the famous CASE, and as a further appreciation of the services derived from this car, I expect to place my order for one of the new CASE cars, completely equipped, within the next few days."

(Those request, name supplied)

★Only $1.50 for repairs

in the last four years. This is merely one of hundreds of records sent to us by satisfied users. Think of it—45,000 miles with only $1.50 for upkeep! This is not an isolated record—all over the country CASE Cars are known for their economy.

It is just such economy as this that proves two things:

1. The "Hidden Values" of the CASE Car give it that remarkable vitality that withstands troubles.
2. It costs less in the long run than other cars of its class, and no more than higher priced cars.

Have you seen the new CASE Car? Do you fully appreciate how much money this famous car is saving for its thousands of owners?

If not, we would suggest that you become acquainted with this vital information. It will mean saving where you otherwise might spend—it will mean satisfaction where otherwise you might be continually annoyed.

Costs Less

We maintain that you pay less for the CASE Car at first—regardless of its later economy—because we include in its equipment the accessories you'll have to buy later. Such as extra tire casing and extra inner tube on rim with cover, Weed non-skid tire chains and eight-day clock. Including this extra equipment the price is only $1350—5% discount if cash. As you know, you'd have to add the price of these accessories to the price of any other car.

Another Saving

What we save in selling expenses goes into the car in better material and workmanship. For CASE Cars are sold by our ready-organized sales organization. For 72 years we have been in the field—so CASE Cars carry no undue burden of selling charges.

It wouldn't take you long to take a "first look" at the CASE. So why not come in today? We are always glad to explain its superiorities.

WEAR A WHITE FLOWER IN TRIBUTE TO MOTHER

Special Sermons Will Be Held in Atlanta Churches in Observance of Day

This Sunday is Mother's day.

Men will wear white flowers in their buttonholes today in memory of the one woman who thought they could do no wrong; women and girls will wear bouquets of white; in Atlanta's churches sermons will be preached and special services held in honor of mothers.

May sunshine in plenty is promised to make the day bright; mothers who are gone will today fill the thoughts of sons and daughters—thoughts white as the flowers they will wear; the mothers themselves, after this day celebrating their name, will quietly continue in the future to make every day as much their day as they have done in the past. Which is the privilege of mothers.

In the First Methodist church, special programs will be observed in honor of mother's in both church and Sunday school; Dr. H. M. DuBose, the pastor, will preach morning and evening sermons. Infants and children will be baptised at the morning service.

AT DRUID HILLS.

The men of the congregation of Druid Hills Presbyterian church are requested to wear a white carnation in their buttonholes in memory of their mothers. Dr. D. M. McIver will preach the morning sermon on "And Thy Mother."

At the First Baptist church a Mothers' union will be organized in the Sunday school at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. All mothers are asked to be present.

Rev. Fred A. Line, pastor of the First Universalist church, will preach at 11 o'clock on "Mother's Love and Influence."

The Tabernacle Baptist Sunday school will hold a love feast at 9:30 o'clock to "The Sweetest Mother in the World." All atending are requested to wear white.

Rev. O. L. Jones, pastor of the East Point Baptist church, will preach at 11 o'clock on "Men's Mothers." All who attend are requested to wear a white carnation.

Rev. Hugh H. Harris, pastor of the Wesley Memorial church, will preach a special sermon at 11 o'clock to the mothers of the congregation.

Rev. Henry Pace, pastor of the Kirkwood Methodist church, will preach a special sermon to mothers at the morning service.

Trinity Methodist church will be beautifully decorated in honor of mothers' day. Rev. C. O. Jones will preach special sermons.

"A Tribute to Mother" will be the subject of the morning sermon at the Baptist tabernacle, delivered by Dr. Jacob L. White.

Dr. A. R. Holderby will preach at 11 o'clock at the East Point Presbyterian church on "The Power of Mother's Love." Everyone is requested to wear a white flower.

CIVIC ORDER LEAGUE WILL MEET THURSDAY

The Atlanta Civic Law and Order league will meet at the Baptist Tabernacle, 78 Luckie street, next Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, when the subject for discussion will be "The True Function of the Recorder's Court, Police Force and Police Commission in the Prevention of Crime."

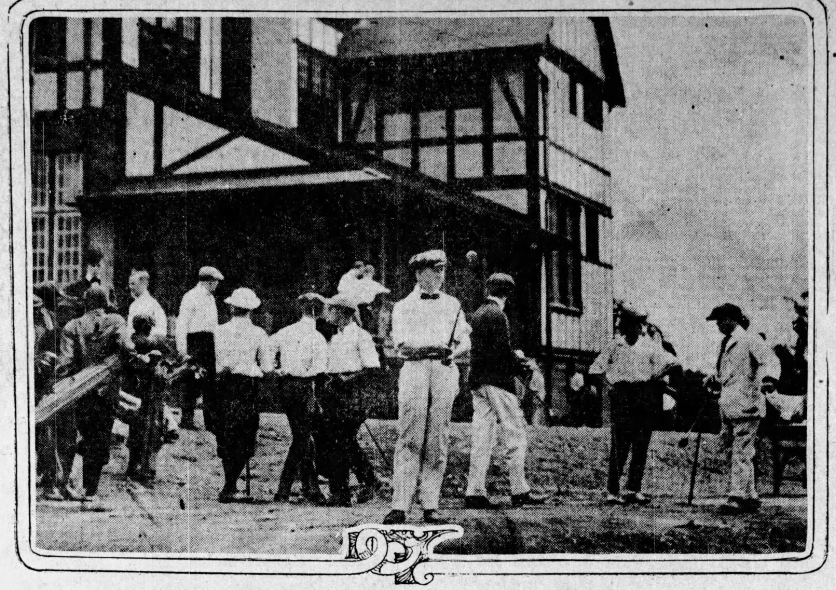
There will be fifteen-minute talks by Judge George E. Johnson, on the recorder's court; Col. E. E. Pomeroy, on the police force, and Chairman W. P. Fain, on the police commission, and five-minute discussions by Dr. J. L. White, pastor of the Tabernacle, and others.

EICHELBERGER AND COPP AT DRUID HILLS CHURCH

Dr. G. W. Eichelberger and Dr. Zed H. Copp, of Virginia, will speak at the Druid Hills Methodist church, 43 Seminole avenue, on Sunday evening at 8 o'clock.

The subject announced for both ministers is "Building a Highway, Without Toll Gates, for Young People to Walk On."

ALL GREENS AND TEES of the new East Lake golf course were in play yesterday afternoon fir the first time since the completion of the course. A tournament, which was begun with the opening of the new club house, was virtually a christening of the new course. The East Lake links now are perhaps the best in the south. No. 1 tee is shown here.



DRAINAGE CONGRESS TO MEET ON MAY 12-13

Fourth Annual Session of Organization Will Be Held in Albany Next Week

The fourth annual meeting of the Georgia Drainage Congress will be held at Albany, May 12-13. The congress was organized in 1912 to promote drainage of swamp lands and steam control, and has grown in size and importance every year.

"We need more legislation and must present a united front to perfect the law and give encouragement to the utilization of Georgia's large acreage of overflowed lands, rich in agricultural possibilities, but now useless for want of state encouragement and co-operative effort," says A. R. Lawton, president.

It is with this aim in view that such prominent men as Dr. Joseph H. Pratt, of North Carolina; S. W. McCallie, state geologist; S. W. McCrory, United States expert; E. J. Watson, of South Carolina, and others will speak at what promises to be the most successful meeting since the formation of the congress.

PEACOCK THANKS HIS FRIENDS FOR SUPPORT

Prof. A. T. Peacock, of the Georgia School of Technology, who was elected a member of the city council from the Tenth ward last Monday, desires to thank his friends in the ward for their hearty indorsement of him.

Alderman J. N. Ragsdale, who nominated Mr. Peacock, declared that he received an indorsement of Mr. Peacock signed by several hundred voters of the Tenth ward.

CANDIDATES FOR CITY OFFICES STARTING EARLY

Campaigns for Municipal Jobs Already Being Launched in Fifth Ward

Although a number of months will elapse before election time, campaigns for municipal positions are already being launched in the Fifth ward.

It is reported that John D. Sisson, a member of the police board, will make the race for alderman, and he already has the indorsement of a number of citizens. Jesse B. Lee, whose term in council expires this year, will also be in the race for alderman to succeed J. W. Maddox, who cannot be a candidate for re-election.

It is also reported that W. E. Bessemer is going to enter the fight and make it a three-corned affair.

For councilman to succeed Lee, A. C. Burton is already announced, and Leonard Bell, who represents the Chastain town section, which has not had a member in council for several terms, will likely enter the race.

E. L. Brooks, who was at one time said to be a candidate, has announced that he will not run because of the pressure of business.

ASK EARLY HEARING IN CASE OF LEHON

Associated Press dispatches from Washington state that attorneys for the city of Atlanta have joined with attorneys for Dan S. Lehon in asking that the United States supreme court grant an advanced hearing on the validity of the Atlanta city ordinance requiring private detectives to be licensed.

Lehon was charged with violating this ordinance while gathering evidence on the Frank case. The ordinance was sustained in recorder's court, appealed to the superior court and sustained, appealed to the state court of appeals and again sustained and then appealed to the United States supreme court.

DECATUR PLANNING FOR BIG "PROSPERITY DINNER"

Program of Speakers Completed for Celebration Next Tuesday Night

The program of speakers, which has been arranged for the big "Prosperity dinner" of the Decatur board of trade in the court house at Decatur next Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock, will be the most interesting ever given by the Decatur organization. An elaborate menu will also be served the members and their friends. The program follows:

"The Program of the Evening"—President W. J. Dabney.

"Agnes Scott College and Decatur"—Dr. F. H. Gaines, president of Agnes Scott college.

"What Emory Means to DeDecatur, DeKalb, Georgia and the South"—Bishop Warren A. Candler, chancellor of Emory university.

"Oglethorpe University, Its Plans and Purposes"—Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe university.

"The Benefits of Highways"—W. T. Anderson, editor of the Macon Telegraph, and a commissioner of the Hooper-to-Dixieland highway.

"DeKalb County, the Nation and Decatur, Its Capital City"—Congressman William Schley Howard.

"The Program of the Decatur Board of Trade"—C. D. McKinney, past president of the Decatur board of trade.

The prominence of the speakers will make the occasion one of statewide interest and it is expected that one of the largest crowds in the history of the board will be present.

The reservation prices for plates will be $1 for gentlemen and 50 cents for ladies. A cordial invitation is extended to the members of the board to bring their friends with them.

PEARL RYAN'S TRIAL DEFERRED TO TUESDAY

Hazlerigs, the Alleged Drug Victim, Still Ill in Grady Hospital

The arraignment of Pearl Ryan, alias Pearl Couch, and J. W. Maulding, who are accused by Luther Hazelrigs, of 265 East Hunter street, of putting poison in his beer while they were taking lunch in a Decatur street restaurant, was postponed from yesterday afternoon in the recorder's court until Tuesday afternoon. Hazelrigs is still in the Grady hospital.

A. S. Pickett, proprietor of the Georgia hotel, 22 1-2 West Mitchell street, states that Essie Owens, one of the young women arrested in the Hazelrigs poison case, but later released by the police, does not live at his hotel.

While the woman gave her address as the Georgia hotel, and it was so placed on the police blotter, Mr. Pickett says that neither the Owens woman nor any of the others arrested in the case lives at the Georgia hotel.

LIQUOR CASE DECIDED BY COURT OF APPEALS

Holds Thomasville Mayor Was Disqualified in Case of George T. Porter

A mayor who has offered a reward for the arrest and conviction of a person for a violation of a municipal ordinance cannot, in the eyes of the law, if he sits as judge upon the case, afford the defendant a fair trial, and is therefore disqualified to pass upon the guilt or innocence of the accused person.

This is the ruling of the state court of appeals, made Saturday in the case of George T. Porter vs. the City of Thomasville. Porter was arrested on a charge of selling liquor. He was tried before Mayor W. E. Beverly, who found him guilty and sentenced him to ninety days on the street gang and a fine of $100.

The man who claimed to have purchased the liquor from Porter testified that he had been employed to do so by a policeman who gave him a dollar to buy the whisky, and who told him that Mayor Beverly had promised to give $50 to use in working up the case against Porter, and that he, the policeman, would give this money to the witness if Porter was convicted.

The offer of the reward of $50 by the mayor was not denied at the trial and Porter's attorneys sought to have the mayor disqualify himself to sit as judge upon the case, but he declined, whereupon they certiorariated the case to the Thomas superior court, where the judgment of Mayor Beverly was affirmed by Judge W. E. Thomas.

Porter then appealed to the appellate court. That tribunal, in its decision reversing Judge Thomas, says:

"One charged with the violation of a municipal ordinance is, equally with those charged with greater crimes, entitled to a fair and impartial trial; and that an alleged violator of a municipal ordinance cannot obtain a fair trial (within the legal intendment of that term) before a mayor who has offered to pay $50 for the conviction of the particular defendant of the particular offense with which he is charged, is a proposition which does not admit of argument."

ANNUAL SERMON WILL BE DELIVERED SUNDAY

SEASON AT WRIGHTSVILLE IS OPENING MUCH EARLIER

Some Cottagers Have Already Moved In--Many Improvements Are Being Made

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH, N. C., May 8.—The season at Wrightsville is opening several weeks earlier this year than is customary. Some of the cottagers already have moved in, while repair work on the walks, stations and bath houses is under way.

Extensive changes are being made in the Oceanic hotel. Carpeters and decorators are busy putting the finishing touches to the elaborate improvements which will be in evidence next Friday, May 15, when the Oceanic will open its season.

The new management is headed by S. E. Clayton, who has laid plans for a brilliant season, in which dancing will be very prominent.

CHORUS OF ATLANTA OF UNIVERSITY TO SING

The chorus of Atlanta university (colored) will sing S. Coleridge-Taylor's "Wedding March" from Hiawatha at the university next Friday night, May 14, at 8 o'clock, under the direction of Sidney Woodward, a member of the chorus. The occasion will be a joint recital by the vocal and musical departments of the university.

Clear Your Skin

Eczema, psoriasis, ring worm, pimples, scales and crusts are due to myriad deeply buried germs in the skin. To secure relief and cure these germs must be destroyed and eliminated.

The D. D. D. Prescription, a mild compound in liquid form of oil of wintergreen, thymol and other healing elements, will give instant relief in all cases. Unlike salves, it penetrates to the deeply buried germs, kills and washes them out.

ESCAPED CONVICT IS CAUGHT IN MILWAUKEE

Hiram Lepper, Who Fled From Federal Prison With Tom Dally, Is Recaptured

Hiram Lepper, one of two men who escaped from the Atlanta federal prison last Christmas night, has been caught in Milwaukee, and will be brought back to Atlanta to finish serving a fifteen-year term for raising the denomination of paper money.

This information was contained in a telegram received Saturday night by Warden Fred Zerbst at the prison. It was from the Milwaukee chief of police and stated Lepper is in custody there. Warden Zerbst told The Journal that he will send a man to Milwaukee Sunday to bring back Lepper.

With Lepper when he fled the prison was Tom Daley, under five years' sentence for postoffice breaking. No word of him has come back to the prison since his escape.

The two men were patients in the outdoor tuberculosis camp at the penitentiary when they made their getaway. Taking advantage of the liberties allowed tubercular men and the rainy, wet night, they secured a 2x4 scantling sixteen feet long from lumber for a small house being built in the camp, ripped it open with a saw so as to make two pieces sixteen feet long, spliced these two pieces together, bored holes through them at intervals of two feet apart, inserted in the holes iron rods they broke from their beds, thus making a long ladder with steps. Then cutting through a barbed wire fence which divided the camp from the prison wall, they took their scaling ladder to an unused guard box on top of the wall, hooked it on the top and scaled the last barrier to freedom. On account of the fog which crept over the prison their absence was not discovered for some time. Saturday's telegram from Milwaukee was the first news of either since their escape.

Lepper was received at the penitentiary May 11, 1914, from Baltimore. He had several aliases, Charles Straile, George Briggle and George Smith, and was said to have been in prison four or five times before.

Tom Daley, the other escaped man, was received at the prison June 24, 1914, from Atlanta. There is a $60 reward out for his capture and return, and the same sum was on Lepper.

SOCIOLOGICAL MEETING ASSEMBLES IN HOUSTON

Main Purpose of Congress Is to Perfect Model for Health Crusade

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

HOUSTON, Tex., May 8.—The Southern Sociological congress assembled for its fourth session May 8-11. Former annual sessions have convened in Nashville, Atlanta and Memphis.

Governor Ben Hooper, of Tennessee, called the first meeting, and was for two years its president. At which time he has been succeeded by Ex-Gov. William H. Mann, of Richmond, Va., James E. McCulloch is the general secretary.

Formerly its program has been based on the broadest study of economic, industrial and social interests in the south, its slogan: "The Solid South for a better nation". The objective at the Houston meeting is represented by the one word, health, personal, community and national health, physical, mental, moral and social health.

The purpose at Houston is to develop a program of inquiry and information which will make a working model for a health-Crusade in any and all the cities of the south. This will be called "The Houston Plan."

At the opening session of the Auditorium Saturday night Governor Ferguson, of Texas, makes the address for the state, Mayor Ben Campbell, for the city of Houston, and Ex-Gov. R. M. Cunningham, of Mobile, Alabama, delivers the main address on "A Worthy Substitute for War: The War Against Disease."

Other noted speakers and their subjects at the Sunday sessions will be:

Dr. Oscar Dowling, president Louisiana state board of health, New Orleans: "What Preventable Diseases Cost the South"; Henry F. Cope, D. D., secretary national religious education of Chicago, "Religious Education As Health Education"; Dr. J. L. Kesler, of Waco, Texas, "Health: The Knowledge, the New Attitude, the New Responsibility"; Samuel Z. Batten, secretary of American Baptist Social Service Brotherhood, Boston, "Modern Miracles of the Church in the Conservation of Health"; Orin C. Baker, secrtary Traveler's Aid Work, New York City, "Protecting Health of the Traveling Public"; Orin G. Cocks, advisory secretary National Board of Censorship, New York, "Safeguarding Amusements in Interest of Health"; "The Nation's Greatest Need: A National Department of Health," Seale Harris, M. D., Southern Medical association, Mobile, Ala.

The Municipal Band, The Vanderbilt Quartette, and the Jubilee Singers of the Prairie View Negro school will furnish music.

FENCE OR NO FENCE IN WALKER COUNTY

Voters to Decide July 7--Also to Vote on Bonds

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

LAFAYETTE, Ga., May 8.—Two elections of importance to Walker county will be those of July 7, when the qualified voters of the county will have opportunity to vote on the question of fence or no fence. Several districts in the county already have the stock law and the other districts have turned in to the ordinary petitions for a general election in July. There has been some dissatisfaction over the stock law in Walker but it is thought that as a county measure the no-fence will carry.

The other eletcion of county significance is the bond election on the above date for a new court house and for the construction and maintenance of good roads in the county. The issue is for $150,000, $75,000 to be used in building a new court house and $75,000 to be as a road fund. Whether or not the issue carried will not affect the building of a court house, since the county commissioners have ordered it built either by a bond issue or direct tax.

DR. H. B. ROBERTS DIES AT HIS CORDELE HOME

CORDELE, Ga., May 8.—Dr. H. B. Roberts, a pioneer citizen, prominent physician, chairman of the county board of education and representative of Crisp county in the legislature, died this afternoon at his residence from Bright's disease. He was sixty-three years old.

Dr. Roberts was elected representative in the last general election. Funeral services will be conducted Sunday afternoon from the Methodist church, and interment will take place at Sunnyside cemetery.

BISHOP TURNER DIES AT WINDSOR, CANADA

Body of Widely Known Negro Will Be Brought to Atlanta

Bishop H. M. Turner, colored, of the African Methodist Episcopal church, died at noon yesterday at Windsor, Canada, where he had gone to preside over the conference of the Michigan Diocese.

Although he was 83 years of age his death was unexpected. Advices to members of his family here simply state that he collapsed suddenly, and that his body is now lying in state in a Detroit church. The body will be brought to Atlanta, reaching here probably on Tuesday, and the funeral will be conducted from the Big Bethel church.

H. M. Turner was one of the best known negroes in the United States. He was born during the days of slavery in South Carolina, and before the war was brought to Georgia by his master, who moved here. While still a slave he became a preacher. After the outbreak of the civil war he went north and was appointed a chaplain in the federal army by President Abraham Lincoln, and as a chaplain he returned to the South.

After the war and during the reconstruction period he was elected to the Georgia legislature and served several terms as a member of both the house and the senate. At one time he was appointed postmaster of Macon, Ga., and he held that position for four years.

He was elected bishop of the A. M. E. church about forty years ago, and since that time he has made his residence in Atlanta. Bishop Turner retired from active work because of his advanced age a few years ago and was succeeded by Joseph S. Flipper. A few months ago Bishop Carmell of the Michigan Diocese, which embraces several states on the Canadian border and part of Canada, died and Bishop Turner was asked to fill his position until the conference, when a new bishop could be elected.

Besides his church work Bishop Turner founded the Morris Brown college, which is one of the few institutions for negroes which is supported principally by them. He served as dean of the institution until a few years before his death.

He leaves a wife, Laura Turner, two sons, several daughters, one of whom is the wife of Cornelius King, steward of the University club, and numerous grand children and great-grandchildren.

FAMILY REUNION AT SENATOR SMITH'S HOME

Four Children and Four Grandchildren Will Be Together for First Time

(BY RALPH SMITH.)

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The four children and four grandchildren of Senator and Mrs. Hoke Smith will all meet together for the first time at the senator's home tomorrow, with the arrival of Marion Smith and wife and their twins. Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Ransom, with Miss Barbara, aged four months, arrived yesterday. Lieutenant Austin Simpson returned tonight to join Mrs. Simpson and their son, Hoke Smith Simpson, aged three weeks.

TERRITORIALS PRAISED BY SIR JOHN FRENCH

British Militia System Not Affected by Politics, as in America

LONDON, April 27.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The more he has seen of the territorials, says Sir John French in his Neuve Chapelle dispatch, the more he has been impressed with their value. Sir John's words, "they acquitted themselves with the utmost credit," have taken all of the wind out of the campaign to fix conscription on Great Britain.

The British territorial system is practically the same as the national guard of the United States, without the political weaknesses of the American. So far as organization, service and equipment go, the systems of the two countries are identical. The men enlist for the same period and in peace times drill for about the same number of hours weekly and spend the same length of time in annual maneuvers. They wear almost the same uniform. But instead of suffering from state politics, as in America, the British service is directly under the war department, which appoints the colonel in command. The colonel, in turn, passes on the qualifications of the officers, who receive commissions from the war office. This method of officering the territorials is much more effective both as to discipline and efficiency than the American method of letting the men elect their own officers on the basis of personal popularity instead of professional fitness.

Territorials in time of peace enlist for home service only. But by the simple process of volunteering for foreign service, they become volunteers without the elaborate process of transferring accounts from state to federal government as in vogue in the United States, which involves a vast amount of clerical work and red tape.

In the present war over 80 per cent of the territorials are known to have volunteered and of these the larger part are already serving in France or Egypt. They enlist under the general volunteer act for the three years or the end of the war.

One advantage of the territorial army over the regular lies in the various kinds of skilled men in the ranks, who with little training can turn their trades or professions to the use of war. The territorial supply of doctors has been a needed help.

WAYCROSS IS READY TO ENTERTAIN ELKS

Barbecued Bear Meat in Okefenokee Swamp Feature of Program

WAYCROSS, Ga., May 8.—With a force of decorators at work here today, final steps were taken for the state convention of the Georgia Elks' association which convenes here next Wednesday for a two-day session. The program has been completed and is as follows:

May 12, 9 a. m.—Local Elks and band assemble at Phoenix park to greet all visiting Elks who arrive on special trains and cars.

10 a. m.—Convention called to order at the Grand theater by the president, Walter H. Andrews, of Atlanta.

Address of welcome—Mayor Scott T. Beaton.

Response for the Elks—Walter P. Andrews.

Business session.

2 p. m.—Elks guests of honor at baseball game between the Waycross and Thomasville teams of the Georgia State league.

3 to 5 p. m.—Informal reception and music at La Grande hotel.

5 p. m.—Automobile ride over the proposed route for the Dixie highway. One hundred automobiles will participate in this parade.

7:30 p. m.—Ceremonial session at the gymnasium of the city Y. M. C. A. at which not less than twenty-five candidates will be initiated.

10 p. m. to 2 a. m.—Band concert and outdoor ball, Parker street.

May 13, 8:30 a. m.—Elks assemble at Beauty park and take special train over Waycross and Southern for Billy's Island, in the heart of Okefenokee swamp. On Billy's Island a fish and barbecue dinner will be served, with bear steak. Guests desiring to fish in the famous Billy's lake will be furnished tackle and bait.

8:30 p. m.—Bands and Elks assemble again on Parker street for music and outdoor ball.

12 midnight—Closing ode will be sung by the Elks and the convention officially closed.

Estimates on the attendance for the convention run from 1,000 to 1,500. The convent.on will prove one of the largest Waycross has ever entertained and will bring to Waycross some of the most distinguished citizens of Georgia.

Elaborate decorations are being used throughout the city, the business section especially being made attractive in the Elks' colors, purple and white. The white way posts will be draped in the Elks' colors, with the top globe of each post purple. Arches will be built across the principal streets, the purple and white color scheme being used with American flags, an Elk's head to center each arch. Practically every merchant in the city will have his store decorated for the convention and the colors of the Elks will predominate in the numerous pretty window displays the stores are arranging.

J. E. T. Bowden, vice president of the Georgia association, is chairman of the executive committee in charge of the convention arrangements. Various committees of the local lodge of Elks have been busy for weeks on the different details of the convention. Nothing that will add to the pleasure of the hundreds of visitors has been left undone and everything today points to the most successful convention Georgia Elks have yet held. Because of the fight the Atlanta delegation is going to make for the 1916 national convention much interest is taken in the approaching meeting in Waycross.

DIABETES

IF BLADDER OR KIDNEYS BOTHER, OR IF WEAK

Try the Favorite Recipe of Old Folks--Stuart's Buchu and Juniper Compound.

The following are the symptoms: Urine becomes cloudy, an unsual flow of urine, scalding, dribbling, straining or too frequent passage from the bladder—head and back aches—ankles or eyelids are swollen or puffy, spots before the eyes, leg cramps, shortness of breath, sleeplessness and despondency, dizzy spells, dropsy, diabetes. Don't waste time wondering if you will get Bright's disease or diabetes, but get from any reliable druggist a bottle of Stuart's Buchu and Juniper Compound. Take a spoonful after meals. In a day or so your kidneys will act fine and natural. Stuart's Buchu mixed with Juniper has been used for years to clean out impurities from the kidneys and bladder, also to neutralize the uric acid and sugar in the blood and urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending all kidney and bladder weakness and doing away with all irritating symptoms. Stuart's Buchu and Juniper is a fine kidney regulator and strengthens these organs. It is old folks' recipe for these troubles. Try it—(Advt.)

THIS TAKES THE PLACE OF DANGEROUS CALOMEL

New Discovery! Dodson's Liver Tone Acts Like Calomel But Doesn't Gripe, Salivate or Make You Sick—Don't Lose a Day's Work—Harmless Liver Medicine for Men, Women, Children—Read Guarantee!

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you may lose a day's work.

Calomel is mercury, or quicksilver, which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile, crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," or if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated, or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it can not salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe, and they like its pleasant taste.

WESTMINSTER MAGAZINE TELLS OF OGLETHORPE

Story in Current Issue Reprinted and Circulated Among Subscribers

Some very interesting stories concerning the progress of the campaign among southern Presbyterian churches for subscriptions to Oglethorpe university in Atlanta are contained in the current issue of the Westminster Magazine and have been reprinted in folder form and circulated among the subscribers to the university fund.

As an example of the splendid liberality with which Presbyterians are rallying to the cause, attention is called to the fact that the gross amount of subscriptions to date is $600,000, and new subscriptions are being secured at the rate of $100,000 a year.

The university cause is being presented to the Presbyterian churches of the south by Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, of Atlanta, the man who conceived the idea of refounding in Atlanta the old Oglethorpe which was destroyed in the Civil war, whose enthusiasm and indefatigable energy carried the idea to success, and who was elected president of the university by the board of trustees.

CHURCHES VISITED.

Among the churches recently visited by Dr. Jacobs and mentioned in the Oglethorpe stories in Westminster Magazine are the following:

Raeford, N. C., church which subscribed $2,500; Cordin, Miss., church, which subscribed $1,050; Pulaski, Tenn., church, $1,250. Central Presbyterian church, Anderson, S. C., $1,700; Kingstree, S. C., church $2,795; Clover, S. C., church, $1,210; Franklin, Tenn., church, $4,390; Yorkville, S. C., church, $1,000.

In connection with these stories of recent subscriptions, there is given the Oglethorpe "roll of honor," which consists of the churches giving $1,000 or more to the university. The list follows:

ROLL OF HONOR.

NUNNALLY CO. TO OPEN STORE IN JACKSONVILLE

Has Leased Valuable Property on One of Main Streets

The Nunnally company, candy manufacturers, are now fitting up a branch store. J. S. Jetton, the advertising Jacksonville, Fla., having leased the property there for a term of years.

A large force is now at work on the Jacksonville store installing fixtures, refrigerated candy cases and a large sanitary soda fount. No expense in being spared. Winship Nunnally, vice president and general manager of the company, left for Jacksonville yesterday to give his personal attention to the store. J. S. Jetton, the advertising manager, will also attend the opening.

The extension of the company's business is significant as J. H. Nunnally, its president, is connected with various other business enterprises, and is well posted on financial conditions.

INSURANCE IS PLANNED FOR PEACH ORCHARDS

To protect peach orchards belonging to the members of the Georgia Fruit exchange from damage against hail, an effort is being made by that body to secure an insurance policy covering such loss, which will be payable to that member of the exchange who is so damaged.

General Manager R. J. Christman has taken up the question of the issuance of such a policy with one of the leading insurance companies in the country, which makes a specialty of policies against damage by cyclones, tornadoes, storms, floods and other natural causes.

ATTORNEY OF ST. LOUIS ADDRESSES LOCAL MASONS

ANTHONY F. ITTNER.

Tells of History and Work of Order of Veiled Prophets

Anthony F. Ittner, a prominent young attorney of St. Louis, addressed a large audience of Atlanta Masons at the West End Masonic Temple, corner of Gordon and Lee street, last night.

Mr. Ittner came to Atlanta at the special invitation of Arsarat Grotto to fully explain to the members the history and work of Mystic Order Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm, the many Masons present.

Mr. Ittner is the active monarch of the Alhambra Grotto, of St. Louis, and deputy grand monarch for the order in North America.

PARTICIPANT IN DUEL TUBERCULOSIS VICTIM

I. J. Nash, Who Fought Pistol Battle With F. M. Brunson, Returned to Hospital

I. J. Nash, who engaged in a pistol duel with F. M. Brunson, a young dental student, last Wednesday evening, when he caught Brunson walking with his wife, is back at Grady hospital.

Yesterday Nash's wounds had improved sufficiently to permit of his removal to police station, but further examination disclosed that he is suffering with tuberculosis and he was returned to the hospital. Arrangements are now being made to send him to Battle Hill sanitarium. He will be kept under surveillance, as he must answer to the charge of shooting Brunson when he is able to leave the sanitarium.

Meanwhile, Brunson, who first was not expected to live, is said to be improving. He was operated on yesterday, a bullet being removed from his shoulder and another from his leg.

TO BORROW $250,000 FOR BRIDGES AT ROME

ROME, Ga., May 8.—At a special meeting of the board of county commissioners this afternoon it was decided to borrow a quarter of a million dollars for the purpose of erecting concrete bridges across the rivers in Rome. The money will be raised by a special direct tax levy this year. Bids were called for to build a macadam road between Rome and Cave Spring.

SEATTLE GETTING READY TO ENTERTAIN SHRINERS

Preliminary Outline of Program Is Sent to Forrest Adair, of Atlanta

A preliminary outline of the program for the forty-first annual session of the Imperial council, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, which will be held at Seattle the week of July 11, has been received by Illustrious Potentate Forrest Adair, of Yaarab temple, Atlanta.

It is of unusual interest here because last year's annual imperial council convention was held in Atlanta, bringing here the largest crowd ever gathered in a southern city for any purpose. Such a great hue was registered with Shriners all over the country by the street decorations at the convention here that Seattle this year has decided to follow in every detail the lighting and decorative scheme used in Atlanta.

Requests were made some weeks ago for complete plans of the "White Way" embellishments which made Peachtree and Whitehall a blaze of beauty and much of the equipment used here will be sent to illuminate the streets of Seattle.

Judging from the program received, Nile temple at Seattle is preparing to entertain the Shriners of North America as elaborately as they were entertained in Atlanta.

The first day, which is Sunday, will be given over to services at the churches. In the afternoon there will be an automobile ride and band concerts in the evening.

The second day will be known as "Canadian Day," and there will be auto trips, banquets, dinners and other elaborate functions.

The third day will be known as "Tacoma Day," when the big parade will be held. Yaarab temple of Atlanta has the distinction of having been selected as escort for the imperial potentate.

The fourth day will be, "Portland Day," and the fifth day will be "Montana Day."

Yaarab temple and other Georgia temples are planning to send a big delegation, most of the members of whom will take occasion to visit the Panama-Pacific exposition during the trip.

EMPIRE DAY CELEBRATION WILL BE HELD ON MAY 24

Atlanta British Association Announces Meeting Will Be Held in Hotel Ansley

Dr. A. D. Smelle, chairman of the entertainment committee of the Atlanta British association, announced yesterday that the Empire day celebration will be held May 24 at the Hotel Ansley.

He said also that the first celebration of the chorus, which will be a part of the entertainment, will be held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the studio of Miss Robinson in the Forrest building, Peachtree street and Forrest avenue.

Lady singers are wanted for this chorus, which will be under direction of Prof. A. Gerrard Thiers.

Keep the Children Bright and Happy

Happy youngsters must be healthy. The digestive organs of children get out of order as readily as do those of their elders, and the result is equally distressing. The little bowels are clogged with an accumulation of refuse from the stomach the child naturally becomes cross and fretful from the discomfort, and is often punished for temper when medical attention is really what is needed.

The next time your child is cross and unhappy, without apparent reason, try giving it a mild laxative. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a mild, pleasant tasting combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, and is especially recommended for children because of its freedom from all opiate or narcotic drugs and its gentle action. It is sold in drug stores everywhere. A free trial bottle can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 452 Washington St., Monticello, Ills.

HUNTER'S RELATIVES NOT INFORMED OF THEIR FATE

Parents in Scotland Did Not Know They Were Coming to Visit Them

The news that Mr. and Mrs. George H. Hunter, of Atlanta, were passengers on the Lusitania and in all probability are lost, will come as a total surprise to their parents and other relatives in Scotland, according to friends of the family here.

The trip of the Hunters home to Aberdeen, said people who knew them in Atlanta, was planned as a surprise for Mr. Hunter's father and mother, and no one in Aberdeen was notified of their coming. They had not been back to Scotland since crossing to America nine years ago.

Mrs. Nellie Inglis, sister of Mr. Hunter, cabled her father Saturday to hasten to Queenstown and notify her at once what news there is of the two. This cable will be the first intimation Mr. Hunter receives of his son's probable death.

PREACHER-POLICEMAN ATTEMPTS HIS LIFE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WRIGHTSVILLE, Ga., May 8.—James M. Bryan, formerly a Methodist preacher and Sunday school superintendent, but a policeman here for the past two years, attempted to commit suicide at his home here yesterday by swallowing fifteen grains of bichloride of mercury. A physician was summoned two hours later and worked hours and finally succeeded in saving him but little hope is held out for him. Financial troubles are said to have prompted this rash act.

Mr. Bryan belongs to one of the most prominent families in this section, being a son of Rev. R. B. Bryan, deceased. He has a brother teaching in Yale, a brother in a bank in Americus, a brother who is practicing law in Americus, and a brother, a prominent insurance man here. Mr. Bryan has been president of the Johnson County Sunday School association since its organization four years ago.

FINE PROGRAM PLANNED FOR FREE ORGAN RECITAL

Number of Best Singers in the City Included in Big Chorus

At the regular free organ recital this afternoon at the auditorium armory, Dr. Edwin Arthur Kraft, Atlanta's city organist, will be assisted by a chorus composed of a number of the best singers in the city under the direction of Mr. J. W. Marshbank and Miss Eda E. Bartholomew, organ accompanist.

The chorus will present a cantata, "Christ Triumphant," by H. Clough-Leighter, which promises to be a treat for all music lovers. A glance at the names of the soloists and chorus is sufficient assurance in itself of the character and quality of the music to be sung. Following well known artists make up the personnel of the chorus:

Soloists, Mrs. T. H. Wingfield, Mrs. J. W. Hurt, soprano; Mrs. John M. Cooper, Mrs. Helen T. Conyers, contralto; Mr. Solon Drukenmiller, Mr. John M. Cooper, tenor. For the chorus work, Mrs. W. W. Stanley, Mrs. W. C. Jarnagin, Mrs. Chas. A. Sheldon, Jr., sopranos; Mrs. F. S. Sands, Mrs. H. H. Hoey, Miss Harriet Milledge, contralto; Mr. A. B. Turner, Mr. Chas. T. Brown, Mr. E. P. Sutton, tenor; Mr. L. D. Scott, Mr. E. A. Werner, Mr. R. C. Werner, Mr. E. H. Barnes, bass.

In addition Mr. Kraft will render several organ numbers from the best compositions of organ work in two parts. The recital will begin promptly at 4 o'clock, and those who attend are urged to be in their seats at that hour. The following is the program in full:

1. James H. Rogers, concert overture.
2. H. Clough-Leighter, cantata, "Christ Triumphant."

This splendid composition is made up of numbers for organ work in two parts, the first symbolizing the Crucifixion of Christ, and the second Christ Risen Triumphant. It is closed with the great Hallelujah chorus by Handel.

3. Charles Marie Widor, Toccata.

CONSERVATION TO BE TAKEN UP AS SOON AS CONGRESS OPENS

Whole Force of Administration to Be Put Behind Program to Save Water Power for the Nation

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—In a recent statement Secretary of Interior Lane announced that the water power leasing bill, for the federal control of water power development on the public domain, passed by the house of representatives last session, will be introduced upon the convening of the sixty-fourth congress. This means the first gun has been fired in the fight for conservation legislation which the administration will make in the new congress.

The secretary's statement also indicates that the whole force of the administration will be thrown behind the conservation program. This legislation failed of passage in the senate last session because of the threatened filibuster by a combination of states' rights and anti-conservation senators, led by Smoot, of Utah; Borah, of Idaho, and Shafroth, of Colorado. Secretary Lane's statement is accepted here as the gauntlet to the opposition forces.

The senators who opposed the conservation legislation, as passed by the house last winter and reported to the senate, made the proposed water power legislation the main point of attack. Mr. Lane in his statement calls attention to the necessity of water power legislation to safeguard the public interests. He points out that the recent consolidation of western water power companies in Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Montana and Washington, when consummated, will place under one corporation the control of about 50 per cent of the developed water powers of the western states. Mr. Lane further said regarding this merger.

DANGERS OF MERGER.

"Such a consolidation involving widely separated power plants, inter and intra state transmission lines, and federal questions beyond the scope of state utility commissions, emphasizes the necessity of federal control and regulation in the interest of the people."

Those who oppose the legislation lay much stress upon the states' rights theory. But the futility of state control is pointed out by Mr. Lane as follows: "It is apparent that if the water power sites of the west are allowed to pass into private ownership without restriction it will be practically impossible to regulate or control monopoly in this important resource or to regulate this product in the interest of the consumer.

"The possibilities connected with the utilization of the water power of the United States are not at this time realized, nor can anyone predict what changes in the method of development and control will be required by the public interest 50 or 100 years from today. Only by retaining the fee to these lands and rights in the federal government and a measure of control can the interests of the public, present and future, be properly safeguarded."

In addition to the water power bill, one of the measures which passed the general leasing measure, which provides for the development and use, under rules and regulations, of the coal, oil, phosphate, potash and other similar minerals now in federal ownership. This bill was one o fthe measures which passed the house last fall. It is probably around this legislation that the strongest fight will come because Senator Borah, of Idaho, whose potentiality as a Republican presidential nominee is well known, will lead the opposition to this measure, which he likens to the legislation enacted by the British parliament in the days of the Revolution, to "taxation without representation."

REACTIONARY LINES.

In other words, Mr. Borah sees himself, or perhaps thinks the western people will see him, as the Patrick Henry of his day. It is evident that Mr. Borah's efforts will be assisted by a bipartisan combination, including senators like Smoot, of Utah; Fall, of New Mexico; Penrose, of Pennsylvania; Clark, of Wyoming, and Lodge, of Massachusetts, and Democrats of the old states' rights school like Shafroth, Bankhead, Thomas, Smith, of Arizona; Overman, of North Carolina; Ransdell, of Louisiana, and Tillman, of South Carolina.

With the administration backing this conservation legislation, it is apparent there are interesting days ahead in Washington. It will be a line-up of reactionaries against radicals, regardless of party. It is accepted here that the president will strongly indorse Secretary Lane's program, and there is an impression that Mr. Wilson, in one or two speeches this summer, will urge the importance of these constructive measures.

Whether the administration will be able to pass this legislation in view of the unknown quantity of the new congress remains to be seen.

WOMEN CONDUCTORS ON CARS IN CARDIFF, WALES

CARDIFF, Wales, May 6.—The first women conductors appeared on the Cardiff street cars on April 23 and were received enthusiastically by the townspeople. Almost the entire population of the place made an effort to obtain a ride on one or another of the cars officered by the new conductors, with the result that the novices experienced a rush which would have tried the ability of a veteran.

That the new conductors were somewhat nervous was quiet evident during the first few hours, but before the day was over they had become more confident. All the passengers, they said, were very polite, except over occasional mistakes in making change. Some of the men who boarded the cars seemed to be in doubt as to whether or not to remove their hats inside the cars.

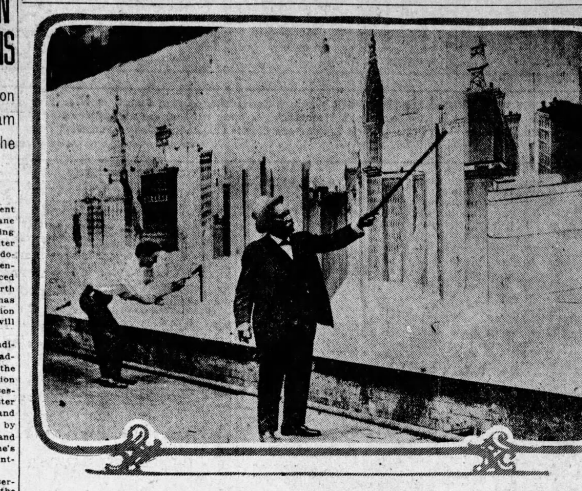
For the present, the women will start work at 10 o'clock in the mornin and quit at eight in the evening.

BARACA AND PHILATHEA MEETING AT ROME

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ROME, Ga., May 8.—Two hundred delegates arrived this afternoon, and eight hundred more are expected tomorrow morning to attend a three-day joint convention of the Georgia Baraca and Philathea unions. A special train from Atlanta will arrive Sunday morning. There will be special Sunday school services and sermons, to be followed by a great parade, with 2,000 young people clad in white and each wearing a white rose in honor of Mother's day. Judge Moses Wright will deliver an address on "Mother" in the open air at Hamilton park. Dr. W. L. Pickard, president of Mercer, delivered the convention address tonight.

THIS is the great oil painting of Atlanta in 1965 which will be exhibited at the Rotary Newcomers' celebration on Tuesday night at the auditorium. This photograph shows Mayor Woodward choosing his office in the new city hall which the imagination of the artist has erected.



DISCUSS VICE BULLETINS IN CIVIC FORUM DEBATE

Merits of Forward Movement Discussed Pro and Con Without Decision

Arguing warmly the merits and shortcomings of the Men and Religion Forward movement bulletins, the young men of the Civic Forum held a lively debate Saturday night in the chamber of commerce hall. After a two hours' discussion, in which many caustic attacks were made on the Men and Religion movement and its leaders, with just as warm defenses by the speakers of the other side, the debate came to a close without the rendering of any decision.

By an advanced agreement of the speakers, the usual practice of having a decision by judges was abandoned by the Forum for this articular debate and when the meeting was over everyone was satisfied with shaking hands over the issues which had been contested, leaving the debate for each individual to decide for himself.

The affirmative of the debate was led by L. S. Hulbert and John W. Crenshaw, both of whom spoke in praise of the Men and Religion bulletins for their work in arousing public opinion on the question of evils which they seek to abolish. The two principal speakers on the negative were Hasil Stockbridge and John P. Hausson, who criticised the bulletins on the ground of advertising Atlanta in a bad light to the outside world and thereby hurting the good name of the city.

After these four speakers, with their many and varied arguments and rebuttals, the question was then thrown open to the audience for impromptu discussion. Among those who responded with short talks on the affirmative in defense of the bulletins were Dr. G. E. Eichelberger, president of the Anti-Saloon league, and Dr. E. C. Cartledge. Speaking impromptu on the negative, and attacking the bulletins and the motives of their authors were R. A. Friedson, Carl F. Hutcheson and H. G. Bell.

The names of Marion Jackson and Chief Beavers were brought frequently into the debate, both of them being the subject of severe criticism by speakers on the negative. Several glowing tributes were paid to them by the affirmative, however. The meeting was presided over by Leonard J. Grossman, president of the Forum.

ENGLISH ARE LAYING IN BIG SUPPLY OF LIQUOR

LONDON, April 27.—The demand for whisky, in anticipation of government action either in the direction of largely increased taxation or of prohibition, has been so great that dealers' stocks have been depleted and retailers have begun to speak of the possibility of a scarcity. There have been exceptionally large withdrawals of stocks from bond.

In the national drink bill prepared by George B. Wilson, secretary of the United Kingdom Alliance, the annual expenditure of Great Britain in drink is computed at over $821,300,000. Over $517,000,000 is spent in beers, $50,000,000 in wines and the rest in hard spirits. This puts the average expenditure for each individual at .69 gallons of spirits, $8.78 of beer and .26 of wine, costing $17.50.

bed of new ideas, planned this unique night, and the Ad Men's club, the chamber of commerce, and nearly every other commercial and civic organization in Atlanta joins in to make it a dazzling success.

NO CHARGE FOR NEWCOMERS.

Each newcomer will be admitted free, and after he is inside, a prize worth 25 cents to $25 is awaiting him. Hundreds of gaily colored toy balloons will be liberated in the auditorium, with coupons attached, calling for the various prizes. These prizes, in the aggregate, are worth more than $500.

The auditorium will be decorated for the occasion, and facing the entrance will be three great oil paintings—one showing the Atlanta of fifty years ago, an Atlanta that Mr. Newcomer didn't know; the second showing Atlanta of today, the Atlanta that Mr. Newcomer has chosen for his home; the third showing the Atlanta fifty years hence, the Atlanta that Mr. Newcomer will help to build. These three paintings will later be taken to the Panama exposition at San Francisco for the purpose of Advertising Atlanta.

All the older Atlanta citizens are urged to attend this big night to make things pleasant for the newcomers; the old Atlantians will be charged admission of 25 cents each; as has been said, newcomers will be charged nothing.

Invitations are being mailed as rapidly as possible to all new Atlantians who have moved in since January 1, 1914, but, if you fall within this class, whether you receive a printed invitation or not, you are now hereby invited to be present. Atlanta wants you.

FINDS A CURE FOR PELLAGRA

All Skin Eruption Gone, Doctors Now Convinced Mrs. Vaughn Is Entirely Well

Mrs. C. H. Vaughn, Millville, Ala., writes: "There is nothing I ever could do but what I can do it now. There is no sign of skin eruption. One of our local doctors told me that my cure was one of the grandest things that ever happened—not only for me, but for the whole community, to let them know that there is a cure for pellagra.

"All the doctors that waited on me are convinced that your remedy is a real cure."

There's the true word from a cured patient. If you have Pellagra, or know of anyone who suffers from Pellagra, it is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn, who has fought and conquered the dreadful malady right in the heart of the Pellagra belt of Alabama.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off; sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red with much mucous and choking; indigestion and nausea; either diarrhea or constipation.

There is hope. Get Baughn's Big Free Book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., Box 2002, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—(Advt.)

DUTCH TROOPS READY TO PROTECT COUNTRY FROM ANY INVASION

Foreign Soldiers of Either Side Will Not Be Allowed to Cross Border Without Desperate Fight

BERGEN-OP-ZOOM, Netherlands, April 27.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Dutch soldiers under arms stand at intervals along the Dutch-Belgian frontier near here, keen observers of the movements of the Germans in devastated Belgium, for Holland is determined she will not permit without fighting the entry of foreign troops from whatever side they may come.

The Dutchmen, themselves not at war, live through at least some of the excitement of actual fighting, for in the stillness reigning over the peaceful agricultural districts about here they can hear from time to time the roar of cannon from the direction of Zeebrugge. Also they are often witnesses of the chase by German troops of young Belgians making a dash for the frontier in an effort to get to Holland and thence across the channel to England to join the Belgian army in Flanders.

The German sentries just over the river separating the two countries never cease their vigilant lookout. These young fellows and the precautions they have taken to prevent them crossing the line are very stern. Bushes have been cut down and obstacles in the way of a clear view of the landscape have been removed. On the bare ground barbed wire entanglements have been erected to a depth of many rods.

Yet the young Belgians dare everything. They crawl beneath the wire in the night and with luck manage in many cases to get through at the expense of torn clothing and flesh. Then, however, there is the open space before the frontier to negotiate. This is closely guarded by German landsturm troops, but the Belgians often try to cover it in a desperate dash under the fire of the sentries. Numbers of them succeed, for the Germans take good care not to fire in the direction of the frontier, as they would thus run the risk of shooting the Dutch sentinels on the other side of the line and in this way committing a breach of neutrality.

Once within Dutch territory the Belgian youths are free. As they are not yet soldiers, they cannot be interned and most of them make their way to a port for shipment across the channel.

The Dutch troops on other portions of the frontier have also to keep a sharp lookout for smugglers of contraband from their own territory into Germany. These smugglers, owing to the rich profits in case of success, are very daring and tricky, and they do not hesitate to use violence against their own countrymen.

Gasoline and horses are the most profitable to the smuggler. The former brings at least treble its price in times of peace.

Sound horses of any age fetch extraordinary high prices from the Germans, anything up to $500 being paid for draft horses.

All roads leading to the frontiers are closed to traffic. Directly on the border line at wide intervals are single sentries with their loaded rifles resting beneath their arms. About 200 yards further back is a second line of sentinels and behind these some distance in the rear are pickets of a dozen men with a non-commissioned officer.

The smugglers naturally keep to side paths or go across country. In case they should be seen by the pickets they are at once arrested and their loads confiscated. Often, however, at night they succeed in passing through the gaps between the pickets.

A WOMAN'S WISDOM

What Experience Does.

The worried mother wakes up to hear her baby's heavy breathing—a little cough—perhaps the croup. She does not want to send for the doctor when perhaps the trouble does not amount to much. She is in a "stew" and does not know what to do. Finally, she thinks of this medical book her father gave her, the "Common Sense Medical Adviser." She says, "Just the thing to find out what is the matter with the little dear." Two million households in this country and Europe have this useful book in the home. It is a good adviser in any emergency. It is for either sex, contains a thousand pages of useful information and can be had for three dimes, or stamps to pay cost of wrapping and mailing by sending to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

When a woman has ills and pains that she cannot bear—when life seems dark for any woman, she should confide her troubles to a physician of standing in the community, or to one who has a national reputation. There is every reason why she should write to some specialist—one who has made the diseases of women a specialty, like Dr. Pierce, of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. All correspondence is held sacredly confidential, and his staff of Specialists give advice without charge, also 126-page book on women's disease sent free.

The woman of today recognizes that it is her duty to make an effort to develop her body and her mind, and there is no reason why she should suffer periodically from pains. Then again women approach the ordeal of maternity with great fear because of a run-down constitution owing to such periodic sufferings. All such women should turn to the right person for free consultation and good advice. In most cases Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will fit the needs and put the body in a healthy condition. It has made thousands of melancholy and miserable women cheerful and happy, by curing the painful womanly diseases which undermine a woman's health and strength.

Mothers, if your daughters are weak, lack ambition, are troubled with headaches, lassitude and are pale and sickly, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is just what they need to surely bring the bloom of health to their cheeks and make them strong and healthy.

If you are a sufferer, if your daughter, mother, sister need help get Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in liquid or tablet form.

The modern improvement in pills is Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They help Nature, instead of fighting with her. Sick and nervous headache, biliousness, constiveness, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels are prevented, relieved and cured. Easy to take as candy.—(Advt.)

Chance to Lay in Supply at Cut Prices

Here's the greatest liquor bargain ever offered—all pure, high-class, old-fashioned goods, made in the last old-fashioned still to remain in the country—the famous old Moore Distillery at Girard, Ala.

Now the law has closed this still—has put it clear out of business. Stock has been moved to Chattanooga—must be sold at a sacrifice to raise some cash.

Never again will you get a chance to get such good whiskey at such low prices. Our misfortune is your gain. What we lose you make.

Liquor Keeps Best in the Wood

Goods all put up in wood kegs. You pay for the liquor only—no fancy labels, no expensive glass bottles, no costly wrappers—just plain kegs full of good liquor; all this is a saving to you.

Whiskey in wood continues to improve. Lay in a supply of these kegs and let your whiskey age as long as you like. Keep it a month, a year, or several years; it will improve all the time. Have a good supply on hand in case anything should happen to prevent you getting shipments later.

Never Will You Have a Chance Like This

Not much of this goods left. Supply will not last long. First come, first served. No favorites. Those who get their orders in first will get the shipments. To take advantage of this cut price offer, you must send it in on accompanying coupon. You must act quickly. Rush your orders in today.

All This Week In Atlanta Movies

New Pickford Picture, First Apearance of "Diamond From the Sky," Opening of Another Theater and Week's Run of Only Six-Reel Comedy Ever Filmed--Big Features of the Week in Local Theaters

The movies loom big in Atlanta this week. One new theater is added to the list of local houses, long-awaited feature films are announced and many favorites of the screen world are booked in pictures that will appeal to Atlanta fans.

The $10,000 prize photo-play, "The Diamond From the Sky"—the story of which will be found in the magazine section of today's Journal—makes its local debut, the first chapter at the Vaudette Monday and the second Friday. The first chapter will also be shown at the Alamo No. 1 Wednesday.

The Victoria theater has opened at its new location, 4 Peachtree street, and announces daily programs of Mutual pictures. The Strand continues to show Mutual Masterpieces and Metro features and has also booked Fox Film attractions. The Alpha has the pick of Universal and Mutual pictures and advertises Charlie Chaplin twice this week.

At the Alamo No. 2 one of the big features is Wednesday, "The Tigress," a Metro production starring Olga Petrava. The Montgomery all this week is showing "Tillie's Punctured Romance," the only six-reel comedy ever filmed in which Marie Dressler and Charlie Chaplin pull a continuous roar of slapstick stuff.

Prominent among the pictures at the Grand this week are a new Mary Pickford release, "Fandom the Cricket," Monday and Tuesday, a film dramatization of George Barr McCutcheon's "Graustark" and the first episode of "The Goddess," the serial written by Gouvernor Morris.

CHAPTER ONE OF "DIAMOND FROM SKY" VAUDETTE MONDAY.

Chapter one of the "The Diamond from the Sky" will be shown at the Vaudette again Monday, chapter two Friday. Owing to inclement weather Friday many local movie fans missed the initial showing of this great Flying A serial, and the management of the Vaudette has been besieged by hundreds who don't want to miss the first installment. So it will be repeated Monday of this week.

Eight hundred thousand dollars was spent to produce "The Diamond from the Sky," $10,000 was won by Roy McCardell, whose scenario was picked as the best among 19,000 contestants. An additional $10,000 will be offered to the movie fan who makes the best suggestion for a sequel. An Atlantian may win it.

The story of "The Diamon from the Sky" begins today in the magazine section of The Journal. Therein is set forth how the life of Arthur Stanley, daredevil scion of an English family, was saved from death at the stake by Virginia Indians by the meteor which fell from the sky a hundred years ago. This was the heirloom which was handed down from generation to generation in the Stanley family and became the center of a plot in our modern day and time in which love, romance, thrills and mystery chase each other in rapid succession.

NEW VICTORIA THEATER OPENS NEAR THE VIADUCT.

The Victoria theater, Atlanta's latest motion picture house, opened its doors Saturday at its handsome location, 4 Peachtree street—opened it to crowds that swarmed within all day and unanimously agreed that in comfort, policy and pictures the Victoria has set a high mark.

Manager I. Berger has arranged with the Mutual service to show its latest releases, including Keystone comedies and such fine Thanhouser, Reliance, Kaybee and Majestic dramas as feature William S. Hart, Florence LaBadie, Shirley Hamilton, Wallace Reid and other stars.

Manager Berger promises his patrons the best in pictures, the best in comfort and convenience, with special attention and courtesy given to ladies and children.

This week's program is a corker. Chief among the features is "The Roughneck," Wednesday, in which William S. Hart, that famous portrayer of western characters, takes the lead. Florence LaBadie, the beautiful Thanhouser star, appears Monday in "The Cycle of Hatred," and on the same day there is a Keystone comedy, "Mr. Droppington's Devilish Deed." For a complete list of this week's pictures at the Victoria see The Journal's Guide.

"TILLIE'S PUNCTURED ROMANCE" AT MONTGOMERY ALL WEEK.

The one big splash in the millpond of moving pictures is booked all this week at the Montgomery. It is "Tillie's Punctured Romance," a six-reel comedy, produced by Mack Sennett, of Keystone fame.

The star is none other than the robust and genial Marie Dressler, famous farce comedienne, loved and laughed at by thousands of theatergoers for various and sundry years. Supporting the portly Marie is that prince of eccentric laughmakers, Charlie Chaplin.

But these are not all the prominent people in the picture. There is that charming little southern beauty, Mabel Normand, who is the "other girl" in the comedy. Then there is Charles Murray, of Murray and Mack fame; Mrs. Roscoe Arbuckle and any number of other well-known players whom you will recognize when you have seen the picture.

"Tillie's Punctured Romance" is a straight farce comedy and has a well-defined plot, and this plot has much to do with the fun. Tillie is a country girl who gets hold of some money when "Charlie" happens along to help her spend it. Then the "other girl" appears on the scene to provide a few complications, and "Charlie" leaves with her. Tillie is a lucky soul, though, and a bunch of money falls her way this time. "Charlie" learns of it and hurries back for a quick wedding. The ensuing situations and final complications with these funny players would make the saddest grouch come right out and shake hands with his bitterest enemy.

KEYSTONES, CHAPLIN, MUTUAL, UNIVERSAL DRAMAS AT ALPHA.

All the prime favorites of Universal and Mutual pictures are at the Alpha this week, with "The Blac kBox" for the serial attraction and Charlie Chaplin for special features both Monday and Saturday.

"The Inherited Sin" is the title of Adventure Eight of "The Black Box" Monday, and Anna Little and Herbert Rawlinson, favorites of this Universal serial, have some thrilling escapades in two reels of the Oppenheim story. On the same day the Alpha offers "His Trysting Place," a screaming Keystone comedy, with Chaplin as the star.

Billie Ritchie, the Universal's funny man, is at the Alpha Tuesday in "Father Was Neutral," and two other stars, Ben Wilson and Dorothy Phillips, appear in "Rene Haggard Journeys On," a wonderful Rex drama.

"Father's Money," with Harry Meyers and Rosemary Thebe, is billed for Wednesday, with "The Winged Messenger," a two-reel Domino drama, and "The Rent Jumpers," another Keystone comedy. Thursday Cleo Madison stars in a three-reel Gold Seal drama, "The Faith of Her Fathers." King Baggot is there the same day.

Another Keystone comedy and two Mutual dramas are booked for Friday, and besides Chaplain Saturday there will be "Shorty Turns Actor," a Broncho special.

STRAND GETS FOX FILMS; SERVICE POEM ON SCREEN.

Patrons of the Strand there will rejoice to hear that Manager B. Lee Smith has booked for the Strand all attractions of the Fox Film corporation, so that in the future this popular house will have in addition to its wonderful Mutual Masterpictures, the big features of the Fox company.

The program at the Strand this week is varied and attractive. Monday will be shown "Rumpelstiltskin," a Mutual Masterpicture based on one of Grimm's fairy tales which children and grown-ups alike will watch breathlessly for its beauty and magic witchery.

"The Shooting of Dan McGrew," Robert W. Service's poem classic, is the foundation for a wonderful feature picture at the Strand Wednesday and Thursday. It is not a western play where there is nothing but cowboys and gun men, but is laid in the great snow-covered north, on the trail to the Yukon, where the lure of gold led hundreds to their doom. The ever-changing scenery in this big Metro picture is a source of wonder and delight, and there are thrilling incidents sufficient to make the blood run cold in one's veins, while the action is all that could be required.

Love sways all in "Strathmore," Ouida's famous novel, which is the basis for a great Mutual Masterpicture in which Charles Clary and Francelia Billington take the leading parts. While the story is woven in love, there are many smiles and thrills intermixed that will hold one from the first flash until "finish" follows the last scene, and then—you will want to see it again. This feature will be shown Friday, and will be accompanied by a Keystone comedy.

CHAPLIN AND "DIAMOND FROM THE SKY" AT ALAMO NO. 1.

Charlie Chaplin in a number of roaring comedies, the first chapter of "The Diamond from the Sky" Wednesday and feature films of the United bookings are announced on this week's program of the Alamo No. 1, the popular Five Points theater.

Few patrons of the Alamo 1 will care to miss the opening installment of "The Diamond from the Sky." This exciting adventure serial is based on the famous Stanley diamond, which fell from the heavens, legend says, just in time to save the daredevil scion of the family from death at the hands of Indians in the Virginia wilderness a hundred years ago. There is romance, mystery and heart interest in the film, and thousands of dollars were spent to produce it. Lottie Pickford and Irving Cummings play the leads. Atlanta fans have a chance to compete for the $10,000 prize offered for the best suggestion for a sequel.

A picture of unusual interest coming soon to the Alamo 1 is "The Spender," a powerful two-reel drama released by the United service. The author is Rev. C. J. Harris, the Oklahoma minister, who fought with the theater managers through two fierce legislative sessions in the interests of a sane censorship instead of the emotional hysteria which is manifested by many so-called reformers.

OLGA PETROVA AT ALAMO 2 WEDNESDAY IN "THE TIGRESS"

"The Tigress," a five-reel feature produced by the San-Metro corporation, with Olga Petrova in the leading role, will be shown at the Alamo No. 2 Wednesday.

Madame Petrova has world-wide fame. She excels in nearly every department of dramatic art. She is a singer, a mimic, a tragedienne, and now as a motion picture star she is adding new laurels to her record. Her mother was a Polish noblewoman, her father an Englishman. She herself speaks nearly every modern language fluently.

"The Tigress" is an ideal play for a woman of Madame Petrova's temperament. Critics have compared her to a serpent, to a lioness; but she is able to convey nearly any emotional value to those who see her and in "The Tigress" she has many strong scenes wherein she exercises her talent and ability to the fullest. She has able support from a large cast.

Other pictures at the Alamo 2 this week are "A Sister's Burden" Monday, a two-reel Kalem romance in which Alice Hollister and Harry Millarde star; Anita Stewart and Earl Williams Tuesday in the first episode of "The Goddess"; and "Gussie Rivals Jonah" Saturday, a Keystone comedy featuring Sydney Chaplin.

IT'S CHILD'S HOME DAY AT THE STRAND TUESDAY

If you're a strong moving picture fan, if you drop in occasionally to see the screen artists, or if you're that wierd and unusual human being to whom the movies make no special appeal—no matter how you regard the pastime offered by the nickel theaters, if you're in Atlanta next Tuesday, May 11, you are cordially asked to visit the Strand theater on Peachtree street.

For that day is to be Child's Home day at the Strand. A general percentage of each admission that is taken in will go to one of the most interesting and worthy charities of the city—the Atlanta Child's Home.

The ladies who have this plan in charge have been working diligently selling tickets to every person they could interest—and that was practically everyone they approached. But Atlanta is a big town and there are very few of the ladies, so it is entirely reasonable to see that they couldn't see everybody personally.

A FEW OF THE FAVORITES AT LOCAL THEATERS THIS WEEK: 1, Rhea Mitchell, star in Mutual Masterpieces at Strand. 2, Mary Pickford in "Fanchon the Cricket," Grand Monday and Tuesday. 3, Irving Cummings in "The Diamond From the Sky," Alamo No. 1 Wednesday. 4, Earle Williams and Anita Stewart in "The Goddess," Alamo No. 2 Tuesday. 5, Lottie Pickford in "The Diamond From the ky," Vaudette Monday and Friday. 6, Marie Dressler and Charlie Chaplin in "Tillie's Punctured Romance," Montgomery all week. 7, Billie Ritchie in "Father Was Neutral," Alpha Tuesday.

THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY

Owing to the inclement weather of Friday—the day that the opening chapter of "The Diamond From the Sky" was scheduled to be run at this theater—many of our patrons were unable to see this first installment of this famous $800,000 "Flying A" serial. We have been besieged by hundreds of people to repeat this first installment and have decided to produce this first episode again of

WHAT'S DOING ON FILM ROW

Are you a movie fan? Watch this column in The Journal every Sunday for advance news of your favorites. Do you manage a theater? You will find here what's what and when it's coming.

JOE WEBER AND LEW FIELDS SIGN WITH WORLD FILM.

The World Comedy Stars Film corporation has signed the two world-famous comedians, Joe Weber and Lew Fields, to appear exclusively in fifty-two releases which will be exhibited at short intervals for a period of two years and which may be booked by exhibitors through the Atlanta branch, Forsyth building, J. Walter Lamb, manager.

The comedians have begun work, and already one picture, "Two of the Finest," has been finished. This is a comedy by the well-known playwright, Mark Swan, who has been writing many of the Comedy-Star's previous releases. The World Film release date set for this first picture is May 3. Although this is not the screen debut of Weber and Fields, it is said by many who have witnessed the rough proof that it will greatly excel any previous efforts on their part.

Mr. Fields, it will be remembered, starred in the recent World Film production, "Old Dutch," in which he made immediate nation-wide success as a screen artist. He also has been playing during the season in "The High Cost of Loving," a farce that was warmly received in many cities. Mr. Weber has not played with his partner for some time, having spent the winter producing such successes as "The Only Girl" and other plays.

UNIVERSAL EXHIBITORS SEE "UNDER THE CRESCENT" FILM

Exhibitors of Universal films have been invited to offices of the Consolidated Film and Supply company in the Rhodes building next Saturday to view a preliminary showing of the first release of "Under the Crescent." "Under the Crescent" is one of the most unique and sensational films ever produced by any concern. In it Princess Hassan—who gained fame on the American stage as Ola Humphrey—reveals the life of the harem, how she was wooed and won under romantic circumstances by the eldest son of the Sultan of Egypt, found her mistake and later rescued. This story is true and it is reproduced with exceeding faithfulness by the Universal people.

This release is part of the regular Universal program, and so will be the films of famous books and famous plays, with famous actors and actresses in leading roles, which are planned for release soon.

KLEINE MOVIE STARS SEE SELVES ON SCREEN.

Last Friday was visiting day at the Kleine offices in Chicago. George Le Guere, who is supporting Jane Cowl in "The Songbird" at Cohan's Grand Opera House, took a delightful witness of his own work in "The Commuters," In which he plays Larry Brice opposite Irene Fenwick. This film is now being booked by exhibitors through the Kleine branch in Atlanta, 71 Walton street. Miss Cowl and the entire cast of "The ongbird" were present.

Richard Thornton who is playing in "Along Came Ruth" at the Olympic theater, Chicago, and who handled the role of King Louis XV in George Kleine's "Du Barry," was another visitor. "The making of 'Du Barry' was one of the pleasantest experiences of my life," said Mr. Thornton. "Mr. Kleine is a delightful host and made our stay in a foreign country an unforgettable memory. I know that the other members of the cast share my impression. Mr. Kleine's unfailing kindness and generosity made the trip more an excursion than a work-a-day grind."

Berlin Business Activity

BERLIN, April 25.—Evidence of considerable business activity is found in the latest returns of the postoffice check system. For the week ended April 3 the total turnover reached for the first time since the system was established six years ao one billion marks ($238,-095,000.)

FLORENCE LABADIE, star in "The Cycle of Hate" at the Victoria theater this week.

MARY PICKFORD AT GRAND TWO DAYS IN NEW PICTURE

Mary Pickford in the most elaborate production of her career, "Fanchon the Cricket," and Anita Stewart in the Vitagraph's stupendous serial masterpiece, "The Goddess," will be two of the coming week's big offerings at the Grand theater.

Daniel Frohman and the famous Players' Film Co., have spared no pains or expense to make 'Fanchon the Cricket' Mary Pickford's greatest vehicle. She is utterly fascinating in the character of the mischievous imp, who, through her mimicry and daredevilitry, has become the scorn and by-word of the village, but, later, graudally developing a goodness and change of disposition, eventually gains the heart of the man she loves and gloriously conquers her own people. It appears at the Grand Monday and Tuesday.

Many of the scenes of "The Goddess," the serial drama by Gouverneur Morris in which the leading roles are portrayed by Anita Stewart and Earle Williams, stars of the Vitagraph's masterful "The Juggernaut," were staged in the hills of north Georgia. "The Goddess" is at the Grand Tuesday only.

Francis X. Bushman, perhaps the most popular male favorite of the screens, is starred in the third big Vitagraph-Selig-Lubin-Essanay feature release, "Graustark," George Barr McCutcheon's stage and literary triumph, at the Grand Wednesday and Thursday. The picture is a Lubin production, and Bushman is supported by such big favorites as Edna Mayo, Helen Dunbar and Bryant Washburn.

All readers of worthy fiction cherish in memory the novel by Henry Kitchell Webster, "The Butterfly," which ran several months ago in the Saturday Evening Post and is now one of the best sellers on the market. "The Butterfly," picturized by the Shubert-Frohman Amusement company, and staged in the World studios is the Grand's offering for Friday only. Howard Estabrook with Barbara Tennant, are the impersonators of the leading roles. Saturday comes the gigantic Paramount feature, "The Moth and the Flame," replete with adventure, thrills and romance.

"THE BELGIAN'S RELIEF" AT GRAND THEATER TODAY

A benefit performance is on at the Grand today from 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. "The Belgian's Relief," the motion picture made here by the Al Bartlett Film company, will be shown continuously, and prominent Atlantians will sing. There will be no admission charged, but a contribution box will be placed at the door, the proceeds to go to the Georgia branch of the Belgian relief commission.

MOVIE STAR SURVIVOR OF LUSITANIA TRAGEDY

The list of first and second cabin passenger survivors of the Lusitania, as given out by the Associated Press last night, contains the name of Rita Jolivet, a popular and beautiful movie star.

Rita Jolivet was last seen in Atlanta in "The Unafraid," produced by the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play company, and released April 1, through the Paramount service. She played opposite House Peters, another star.

GOOD BILL BOOKED AT FORSYTH THEATER

Montgomery and Moore Head Program--Dorothy Toy and Bill Pruitt Help to Make It Lively

Montgomery and Moore, favorites of many of Broadway's musical successes, make their first Atlanta appearance at the Forsyth theater this week at the head of what is designed to be the most elaborate bill of the season.

William J. Montgomery and Florence Moore in "Hanky Panky" were responsible in a large measure for the triumph of the show. As funmakers, Montgomery and Moore hardly have an equal in vaudeville.

Foster and Ball will give their "Since the Days of '61." In the role of a civil war veteran, Ball calls quaint humor, philosophical meditations and infinite pathos have won him an enviable rank. He is, however, a no more capable performer than his partner, Mr. Foster, late star of many Broadway legitimate productions.

The Beaux and Belles, another added feature, is one of vaudeville's most worth-while spectacles, brimming with pretty faces, elaborate costumes, new songs and music.

Bill Pruitt is the Montana cowpuncher now renowned as the cowboy Caruso. His career is without an equal. Discovered by theatrical scouts on a Montana ranch, he was transplanted into grand opera. Pruitt has a marvelous voice, ranging over three octaves.

Emerson and Baldwin, the stage's foremost jugglers, recently made a triumphant tour of Europe, and returning to America introduced many new feats. Their act is funny and at times intensely thrilling.

The bill is closed by the Cycling Brunettes, a cycle spectacle that has no peer. Pretty faces, pretty figures and a repertoire of thrilling cycle feats will serve to keep an interested audience gripped in its seats.

Pathe news and comedy pictures will be more interesting and laughable than ever.

Wagon Contract Let

Contracts for twelve dump wagons, costing $1,254; twelve dump carts, costing $552, and one steeel tank wagon, costing $345, all for road improvement work, were awarded by the public works committee of the county commissioners, of which W. Tom Winn is chairman, Saturday. The Western Wheeled Scraper company, of Aurora, Ill., got the dump wagons and carts contract; W. E. Austin Machinery company, of Atlanta, got the tank wagon contract.

EIGHT DEAD IN WAKE OF CAROLNA TORNADO

Town of Manning Loses Four Persons and $150,000 of Property

(By Associated Press.)

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 8.—Detailed reports obtained this afternoon of the life and property loss resulting from the tornado which late yesterday swept Marlboro and Clarendon counties stated eight persons, five of them white, were killed, and damage probably approaching $250,000 was done to property.

Two buildings were left in the business section of Manning, where damages approaching $150,000 was done to property and four persons killed.

VAN AMBURGH SPEAKS AT CABLE HALL TODAY

Pastor W. E. Van Amburgh, of New York City, will deliver a lecture at 3 o'clock today at the Cable Concert hall, Broad street near Peachtree, on the topic, "When Men Shall Live Ten Thousand Years."

The service is to be conducted under the auspices of the local branch of the International Bible Students' association, and according to their usual custom, no admittance fee is charged, no collection taken, and all are welcome.

STEAMER IS GROUNDED IN TENNESSEE RIVER

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 8.—The steamer J. Horton Fall, Captain T. G. Rymann, struck a rock five miles this side of Gainesboro, Tenn., today and was beached on a sand bar. The passengers, numbering thirty, escaped injury and a quantity of stock aboard was saved. The boat, a comparatively new one, is owned by the Nashville Packet company and is the largest on the Cumberland river.

DECATUR INTERESTED IN MOTHER GOOSE PAGEANT

Dress Rehearsals for Big Show May 15 Begin This Week

Great interest in Decatur centers in the Mother Goose pageant which the school children of that place will present at Agnes Scott college Saturday, May 15.

Dress rehearsals begin this week. The costumes, representing animals and birds of all descriptions, have nearly all been completed and present a most grotesque appearance with their wings, feathers and features of cloth. The making of these costumes has occupied scores of mothers of Decatur for several weeks.

This pageant will differ from other festivals of its kind in that the entire episodes will be enacted according to the interpretations of the children and their imaginations will not be hampered. The scenario has been arranged by Miss Caroline Cobb.

Miss Cobb has named the managers of costumes and the episodes as follows:

First episode, manager, Mrs. W. H. S. Hamilton; costumes, Mrs. Charles Bothwell; second episode, manager, Mrs. Charles D. McKinney; costumes, Mrs. Jennie Finley; third episode, first half, manager, Mrs. Henry Rogers; second half, manager, Mrs. Woodruff; costumes, Mrs. Bob Cunningham, Mrs. Ruth Patillo; fourth episode, first half, managers, Mrs. Wylie Jones and Mrs. Hunter Pope; second half, manager, Mrs. Florine Brown; costumes, Mrs. Ruth Patillo, Mrs. Bob Cunningham; fifth episode, manager, Mrs. Catherine Jones; costumes, Mrs. Charles Carter.

Assisting in the plans for the pageant is the following committee: Mayor and Mrs. F. T. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Hastings, Mr. and Mrs. J. Dabney, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Bayne Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Pratt, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Burgess, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Napier, Mrs. Nellie Scott Candler, Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Callahan, Judge and Mrs. C. S. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. S. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Hooper Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McCrary, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Eve, Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Stanley.

PRETTY BABY TRAFFIC COP HOLDS UP CARS

Lost Child Aids Big Policeman at Busy Five Points

She was only a brown-eyed little girl, four years old, and the cat had her tongue, but she controlled the seething mass of traffic at Five Points for ten minutes Saturday morning, and did it like a veteran officer. Up would go her little hand with a sticky bag of candy in it; and heavy trucks and autos, moving from the five points of Atlanta's compass halted until a wave of the baby hand sent them across the traffic heart of the city.

The little girl was found in the middle of Peachtree street in front of Pitts' cigar store by Traffic Officer Green; the big policeman made a dive just in time to pull her out of the way of a street car, hoisted her high upon his shoulder, and went back to his post. From this vantage point, little no-name waved her hand at the horses and held her hand up at the command of the big officer, and traffic moved or stopped accordingly, while a delighted crowd gathered to see the littlest feminine traffic cop in the world at duty on her post.

Another officer came by and Green surrendered his charge, who hugged him, offered him candy, and, almost in tears, left him alone in the street. She was silent to all inquiries as to her name, and a search for her parents was begun by the police.

TYPO AUXILIARY WILL GIVE DANCE THURSDAY

Proceeds to Be Devoted to Paying Expenses of National Delegates

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Atlanta Typographical Union will give a dance at Taft hall on Thursday evening. A special program will be played by an excellent orchestra, and Miss Lucile Goodrich will give demonstrations of the latest dances.

The proceeds of the ball will go toward paying expenses of a delegate to Los Angeles, Cal., where the typo convention will be held in August. Tickets admitting two are 50c.

TOURIST BUSINESS PROSPECTS BRIGHT

New hotels and improvements to those already in operation along the Tallulah Falls railway in northeast Georgia indicate excellent prospects for a heavy tourist business during the coming summer to the popular Georgia mountain playground, it was announced Saturday in a statement issued by Vice President Miller of the Southern railway.

Miss B. H. Willis is building over the old Franklin academy, at Franklin, N. C., into a hotel which will be modern in every respect and will be known as the Franklin Terrace. She expects to have a summer camp annex on part of the grounds. At Wiley, Ga., a twenty-one room hotel is being built by the Howard Orchard company and negotiations are under way for the rebuilding and enlargements of one of the hotels at Clayton, Ga.

FIFTH REGIMENT BAND WILL GIVE CONCERT

The Fifth Regiment band under the direction of C. E. Barber, will give a concert at Grant park at 3 o'clock this afternoon. The program follows:

March—"National Emblem," E. Bagley.
Overture—"Isabella," Suppe.
One-step—"Chinatown, My Chinatown," Schwartz.
"Dance of the Seven Veils"—Salome, Tobani.
Waltz—"Southern Roses," Strauss.
Novelty One-step—"Colonial Rag," Hall.
Intermission.
March—"National Guard," Beyer.
Sacred Fantasia—"Providence." Tobani.
Two-step—"Operatic," Lenbers.
Grand Selection—"Macbeth," Verdi.
Overture—"Tancred," Rossini.

Missionary Society

The Young People's Missionary Society of St. Paul's church will hold their regular meeting Monday, May 10, at 7:45 in the league room. A full attendance is urged.

Canvas Cot
This Canvas Cot is just the thing for sleeping on the porch—or for camping. It is a $3 value—but our REMOVAL price is only $1.98. The cover is made of best quality 12-oz. cotton-filled Brown Duck. Frame is of hardwood and Bessemer steel. Folds into small package that weighs only 16 pounds. Size is 6 feet, 6 inches long—and 2 feet, 3 inches wide.

98c Cash—50c Weekly—if you wish
$7.98 Worth $14.65

6-Piece Pure Aluminum Set
There are 6 articles in the Outfit, exactly as shown in the picture. Each piece first quality pure Aluminum, extra heavy gauge, and fully guaranteed.
The Outfit was made to our special order and the sizes of the different articles are based on an exhaustive study of the requirements of the average family. We believe it would be impossible to design a more practical, more desirable set. When you consider the wonderful utility of aluminum and the fact that this set is offered at little more than the price of enameled ware, nothing should prevent you from being here early tomorrow.
All pieces actually hold the quantity denoted. This means that the articles are extra large, as in most cases the "trade sizes" of cooking utensils are not as great as the actual measurement.

This Set Consists of the Following:
7-Quart Tea Kettle, Worth $2.50
Full size, which means an extra large 7-qt. Kettle. Note, in the picture, the spiral wire handle, strong, durable and always cool enough to handle with comfort.
6-qt. Berlin Kettle, worth $2.50
2-qt. Coffee Pot, worth $3.00
2-qt. Rice Boiler, worth $2.50
6-qt. Preserving Kettle, worth $1.75

TALKS ON HOME BUILDING
By W. H. S. Hamilton
No. 4

SUPERSTRUCTURE: In building, it is always necessary to have good frame work. Look at some of the cheaply built houses put up in the past four or five years, and notice how roofs have sagged, corners gotten out of line, floors sunk, joints come apart. You simply can't build a good house without good material, plenty of it, well put together. Foreman Preston Long and I understand framing. We know how to tie the walls and brace the roof and make every line true and straight. You take no chances of getting poor work if I build for you. I can also finance it for you. W. H. S. Hamilton, 402 Equitable bldg., Ivy 5234. Talk No. 5 next week.

DON'T continue to rent a shack in the backyard of progress when you can own your home up on Prosperity Avenue and pay for it like rent. Here it is! Brand-new, never occupied, large rooooms, cabinet mantels, porcelain bath, sleeping porch, every known convenience, splendid section, surrounded by attractive new homes, spend the balance of your days looking and you can't match this. Price $2,350. L. F. Chapman Realty Co., West 667.

BRAND new, just completed, 6-room bungalow and a beauty, with 3 bed rooms, sleeping porch, oak floors, French doors, glass door knobs, brick mantels, tile floor in bath room, paneled walls in dining room, beautiful built-in buffet, beautiful electric fixtures, swell granite front, level corner lot, 55x175, facing car line. I will sell this attractive home for $4,250, about $400 cash, $25 a month. D. W., Box 40, Journal.

I WILL take $1,750 for a place that originally cost $2,750. I owe about $1,000 in very easy payments, so you get my equity for less than half. It's a 6-room and hall bungalow with all conveniences, lot 46x190, with good garden and young fruit trees, faces wide cherted street and tile sidewalks, a good home or good investment for $1,750. Write L. W. D., Box 65, Journal.

I AM now completing a six-room cottage with large sleeping porch. Has tile mantels, oak floors; up-to-date in every particular. It's a beauty and located on a beautiful street. We can finish walls and interior woodwork to suit you. Purchaser can also select fixtures, etc. Price, $4,250; $500 cash. E. G. D., P. O. Box 1012.

I WILL take $650 for my equity, you assume $1,200 loan; total $1,850; it cost me $2,600; but I need money in my business. It's a 5-room and hall house with all conveniences, facing car line, tile walks, cherted street, always rented for $20. A home or 14 per cent investment. Write D. T., Box 85, care Journal.

$200 CASH and $25 per month will buy a bargain in a six-room bungalow, has large rooms, good plumbing; beautiful electric fixtures, has granite front, cement steps and situated in good section of the city near good school and also half block of car line. If you want a genuine bargain call Ivy 296.

A PALM BEACH SUIT

LOOKS GOOD on anybody, big, little, old or young, RICH or POOR, at any time or place. It's the same way with my SWISS BUNGALOWS; they can be built for, from $1,250 to $2,000 complete; have built them on $200 lots and on $2,000 lots. They look good ANYWHERE—would look good on PEACHTREE street. Just finished one in DRUID HILLS section, you hear of my bungalows all over Georgia. They are different, entirely original, they do not look like the so-called bungalows (OR BARNS) you see so much of in Atlanta, but they appeal to ALL—both—RICH and POOR, the kind the RICH MAN lives in in Southern CALIFORNIA. I built and sold $50,000 worth last year, some of my clients have made $1,000 PROFIT on my $1,650 bungalows. I have sold four in last few weeks; can save YOU MONEY; my customers are my walking advertisemnets; the war hasn't stopped ME; it cost you nothing to talk to me. P. B. Hopkins, bungalow specialist, Empire Bldg., Ivy 5111.

For information concerning one of the biggest bargains we have ever offered in residential property.

Ponce de Leon avenue is one of the few first-class residential streets that is consistent in regard to its type of homes. It has not the appearance of irregularity that so many good residential streets have, caused by the different types of homes some being large and small, old and new, expensive and cheap.

Within the past few years Ponce de Leon avenue has been built up with modern, attractive homes, costing from $12,000.00 up.

We have been authorized to offer for sale one of these homes on lot 50x200 feet, for $8,250. Assume loan of $5,000 balance on reasonable terms.

Former Plane Home on Piedmont Avenue Sold for $12,500, $8,000 and $3,000 Investment Sales Also Reported—Decatur Building Permits for Spring Months Show Increase Over Same Period Last Year

A residence sale of unusual importance and two sales of investment property, each without exchange features, were announced yesterday afternoon.

George M. McKinnon has sold for Mrs. G. J. Foracre to Albert B. Ware what is known as the Plane home place at No. 604 Piedmont avenue. The consideration was $12,500.

This property consists of a two-story frame residence on a lot 65x195. It is 95 feet north of Third street and on the west side of the avenue.

The purchaser will make extensive alterations on the house and will occupy it.

INVESTMENT SALES.

John S. Scott sold for W. A. Fuller to Charles E. Harmon five tenant houses at Curran and Warren street, the lot being 140x180, for an $8,000 cash consideration, and also an adjoining vacant lot for $350.

G. M. McKinnon sold for Mrs. Sarah L. Webb to W. E. Cantrell No. 14 Clifford street, tenant houses on a lot 50x100, for $3,000.

DILLIN-MORRIS BUSY.

A very substantial group of sales during the past week is announced by the Dillin-Morris company. The sales are as follows:

To Dr. Wilkins, No. 715 North Boulevard, house and lot, $8,500, which purchaser will make his home.

To N. A. Harris, No. 388 St. Charles avenue, lot 50 by 100 feet, six-room bungalow. Price not stated.

To John Griffith for F. J. Cooledge & Sons, No. 122 Ashby street, house and lot, $3,000.

To party not named for Mrs. J. A. Galley, nine-room house on lot 150 by 248 in Decatur, $6,500.

To Mrs. J. A. Galley, last of the Dillin-Morris lots on Virginia circle, $1,750 cash.

P. B. Hopkins, building contractor, announces the sale of a bungalow on Adair avenue in Lakewood heights to R. L. and S. M. Carding.

DECATUR BUILDING GAIN.

Figures obtained by Secretary Raymund Daniel of the Decatur board of trade, show that despite the financial depression of the winter, more building has been done in Decatur this spring than for the same period last year.

Records of the city clerk's office in Decatur show that the building permits for March of this year were $19,525 above March of 1914. The building permits for March 1914 aggregate $16,725, while for March of this year they reached $36,250.

It is understood that the April permits will also show a decided gain when the official reports have been made.

GOOD BUILDING WEEK.

Atlanta building permits also made a good showing for the first week of May, aggregating a total value of something over $100,000, most of which was represented by permits for dwelling houses and the like.

On yesterday the Campbell-Brownlee Furniture company took a permit for $11,500 for its new building, which it will occupy, on Edgewood avenue near the Boulevard. The building will contain three stories.

The average run of building is about up to last year, but there are not as many big jobs. Last May, for instance, the $275,000 permit for the Ford plant was taken, and nothing like that is in sight now. With that exception, however, May, 1915 will about equal May, 1914.

RESULT OF AUCTION.

A large gathering of representative people attended the Peachtree Heights auction sale yesterday afternoon, but only two lots were sold, as the prices were regarded as too low.

The lots were on Peachtree Way, facing Boulevard, and each had a frontage of 92.3 feet and a depth of 335 and 449 feet. One was bought by H. H. Cabaniss at $16 a front foot, and the other by George W. Forrester at $15 a foot.

E. Rivers, of the E. Rivers Realty company, then announced that, while he expected to sell the lots at a reasonable price, he couldn't be expected to give them away. His position was indorsed by those present.

There were fully a hundred people at the auction, and they included some of the most representative business and professional men of Atlanta.

EAST LAKE BUILDING.

W. H. S. Hamilton is building a handsome residence for Mrs. M. I. Randolph at East Lake, at the corner of Carter avenue and Fair street. Now that the East Lake bond issue has been authorized and the new club house completed, Mr. Hamilton expects many new homes will be built in this suburb, and its development should be advanced.

LITTLE TOWN OF KODIAK ALASKA'S QUAINTEST SPOT

Dancing Is Favorite Pastime in Russian Village Owned by United States

(Special Correspondence to The Journal)

NOME, Alaska, May 8.—The quaintest spot in Alaska is Kodiak—a Russian town that is owned by the United States.

It is situated on Kodiak Island, an island in the Gulf of Alaska approximately in the latitude of Scotland and the longitude of Honolulu.

The town of Kodiak is the oldest Russian settlement in the new world, and few spots under our flag can compare with it for out-of-the-world charm. It still retains its Russian customs and habits, mixed with American ones.

As the little steamer that makes infrequent trips to Kodiak from Seward is carefully piloted through the rocks into St. Paul's harbor the little village clustered about the green roof of the round domed Greek church and the old Alaska Commercial company's trading store comes into view. It is little changed in appearance or spirit from the time when the company's house on the hill was a Russian barracks.

And the population of Kodiak is as cosmopolitan as one could wish. Russian and Aleutian were the original stocks. In the present day a strain from almost every race can be detected in the few hundred inhabitants. Japanese, Malays, Mexicans, Portuguese and what not formed the crews of the whalers and seal hunting ships that visited the little port.

Conversation is carried on in Russian mixed with Aleut or vice versa, but as a rule they are a silent people and conversation is discouraged.

There is one thing, however, that the town does enthuse over—and that is dancing. The one institution the town boasts of is its dance hall. Strangers are received according to their ability to dance.

The dance hall's hardwood floor, imported from the states, is the first thing that the visitor is shown. Every night there is a dance, and all Kodiak, even the younger preist, gather for the affair.

All colors and conditions are there. Russian blood from an early governor of the colony mingles with pure Aleutian. On one side the women and girls sit alone facing the men and boys. There is no conversation between the sexes.

The musicians sudenly begin playing at a furious rate and a youth crosses the floor, inclines his head slightly before the partner of his choice, all follow suit and the dance is on.

Although some of the Russian families are fairly well off and live in comfortable homes the conditions mang the half-breeds and natives is deplorable.

Because of their lack of knowledge concerning personal hygiene and sanitation the poor of the colony are deteriorating rapidly. Tuberculosis finds them easy victims, for during the cold weather they live indoors as much as possible in hot, crowded, ill-ventilated houses.

They live on seal oil, cod fish and sweet. So fond are the Kodiakers of sweet things that 400 tons of sugar is imported annually for use in Kodiak and the other small settlements on the island and about seven tons of cheap candy.

The church dominates the little colony and the venerable priest is the leader of the people. Every year the natives look forward to Holy Week—the "Bright Week" in the Russian calendar and at its approach all work stops. Natives trapping in remote parts of the island hasten back to be present at the celebration for at Easter all must be confessed. Enemies exchange the kiss of peace in public and old scores are forgotten.

There are a few outsiders living in the little town and each one is almost as queer as his setting. There is Uncle Harry Cope, an Englishman, who is happily married to a native woman and has served as postmaster since American occupancy. He is the younger son of an old English family and a few years ago was in line for the title but wisely declined.

There is a New England sailorman, old Capt. Finney, who now has no desire to return to his native place. He has made and lost and again made money in the fur business and altogether he still retains his Yankee speech he has adopted the manners and customs of the people he has so long lived amid and with whom he will die.

Dr. Silverman is one of the most important men in the town. He formerly was United States commissioner but now he is doctor, practicing lawyer, photographer, teacher, engineer and assistant to the postmaster.

About once a month a little steamer braves the rough seas of the gulf to bring news of the world mail, papers and magazines and some freight.

After the steamer goes the people sit down and put in two or three days of constant reading in an effort to catch up with the news of the outside world. But it's hardly news to them then—it's more like world history.

MEDICAL MUSEUM IS CLOSED BY THE WAR

LONDON, April 27.—The London Medical Graduates' college and Polyclinic on Chenies street, for many years a small, but prominent center of medical research, has been closed. Its most important feature, the Hutchinson museum, has been acquired by the Johns Hopkins Medical school, of Baltimore.

The museum represents the life work of the late Sir Jonathan Hutchinson, one of the greatest clinicians of his time. The collection consists of original colored drawings, several hundred in number, plates, engravings, woodcuts and photographs.

The Lancet, commenting on the transfer of the museum to America, says: "The loss to this country is to be deplored, but it has found a home in the most famous of the American medical schools, where it may be put to greater use than here, as the teaching which it embodies must be less familiar there."

ALLIES MAKING MANY PROMISES TO BULGARIA

SOFIA, April 5.—General Sir Arthur Paget's reception here by King Ferdinand has started a number of rumors among the coffee houses relating to concessions offered to Bulgaria by the Allies. These rumors variously have it that the British and French have offered King Ferdinand the position of commander-in-chief of the Allied forces advancing on Constantinople, that a Bulgarian army should enter Constantinople and remain in it pending the settlement of peace, that one of the daughters of Emperor Nicholas of Russia should marry Crown Prince Boris of Bulgaria, and that the Russian Czar would personally visit Sofia to take part in the ceremony of consecrating the new cathedral here.

RALPH C. NEWTON HEADS GEORGIA TEACHERS ASS'N

Compulsory Education and Prompt Pay for Teachers Are Urged in Resolution

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
MACON, Ga., May 8.—Election of officers and the indorsement of several educational bills proposed for the coming session of the legislature marked the concluding session today of the Georgia Educational association's fifty-sixth annual convention which adjourned this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The compulsory education law received unanimous indorsement as did a resolution calling upon the legislator for a bill providing prompt payment of school teachers. In view of the importance of these two measures, the association, on the recommendation of the resolutions committee, decided to take only a neutral stand on the permissive kindergarten bill.

A resolution praising the work of State School Superintendent Brittain and expressing the hope that he be continued in office for many years to come was passed without opposition.

The officers elected are as follows:

President—Ralph C. Newton, superintendent Fort Valley schools.

Second Vice President—Miss Rosa Taylor, Macon.

Secretary—Superintendent C. H. Bruce, Macon.

Treasurer—Superintendent H. B. Carriker, Commerce.

Three new directors to serve for the coming year were elected as follows: R. J. Strozier, Vienna; Superintendent H. D. Knowles, Hawkinsville; F. F. Rowe, Thomaston.

William Cole Jones, editorial writer of The Atlanta Journal, spoke on compulsory education, declaring that if Georgians would but awake to the obvious need of it one-fifth of this state's population would not be illiterate, 32 per cent of Georgia's children of school age would not be out of school and Georgia would not be one of the only five states having no compulsory education law.

"Opponents of compulsory education are in effect upholders of compulsory ignorance," he said. "They are very jealous of individual rights, but strongly indifferent to public rights, and while insisting on the liberty of the parent, they sacrifice the liberty of the child."

Continuing, he said: "The community no less than the child is entitled to protection against illiteracy. If a man persists in keeping his backyard in such a condition as to endanger his neighbor's health, he is sent to jail; but if he insists in rearing his child in such a manner as to lower public intelligence, he is indulgently let alone. In Georgia there are 30,085 native whites of voting age who cannot read the ballots they cast—a number sufficient to control the outcome of many elections. These illiterates, it is true, do not vote as a unit and some, perhaps, do not vote at all; but their political influence is present and sometimes decisive."

He stressed the value to the state in increased prosperity through increased wisdom that would come of compulsory education. Arguments against it based on the race question he dismissed with one sentence, "Thousands of white children should not be doomed to ignorance merely that negro children may be kept from school."

The reason for the refusal of the legislature to pass a compulsory education law heretofore, he laid partly to persons who still regard it as a fad, and partly to "those rearing apostles of personal liberty" who are so solicitious that they oppose it as they would a law preventing them from keeping their pigs of the street.

"But the deeper cause of Georgia's backwardness," he said, "is not prejudice, not greed, not demagogism. The deeper cause is the indifference of our educated majority. The final responsibility is upon those who 'having eyes see not and having ears hear not' the things that so nearly concern the very lifeblood of the commonwealth's existence.'

THREE NEW OFFICERS FOR FIFTH REGIMENT

J. B. Suttles, W. W. Dick and W. S. Coburn Have Recently Been Elected

As the result of recent elections the Fifth regiment, National Guard of Georgia, is soon to have three new officers.

J. B. Suttles, who resigned a captaincy a year ago because of illness, has been named first lieutenant and adjutant of the second battalion.

W. W. Dick, onetime commandant at G. M. A. and a graduate of the famous South Carolina military school, "the Citadal," has been elected captain of company E, a position formerly held by Major Leahy. Captain Dick is now taking the examinations necessary before he receives his commission.

W. S. Coburn formerly a first lieutenant, has been nominated for the captaincy of company M to succeed William M. Slaton, recently resigned.

SOUTHWEST GEORGIA FOR HIGHWAY, SAYS L. L. FORD

"Macon, Albany and Thomasville Logical Way for Dixie Highway"

L. L. Ford, of Albany, former state senator from the Tenth district, was back in Atlanta Saturday seeing old friends and spouting enthusiasm for the Dixie highway.

"This highway ought to go along the logical route by way of Macon, Fort Valley, Montezuma, Americus, Albany and Thomasville," said Mr. Ford, "and it good roads in each county and the pledge of citizens wiling and anxious to keep them good count for anything, the highway is going that way."

Mr. Ford said that Dougherty county, o. which Albany is the seat, would add to the highway a stretch of roads as fine as any in the state of Georgia.

Returns to Fred S. Stewart Shoe Company After Three Months' Absence

Samuel R. Turner, well-known in Atlanta shoe-store circles, has returned to the city after several months' absence in New York, Brooklyn and Boston, where he has been studying the shoe business from the retail and manufacturing end as well.

Mr. Turner is recognized as one of the best equipped shoe salesmen in Atlanta and has many friends here who will be glad to learn that he has returned to the city and will be found, as formerly, with his "first love," the Fred S. Stewart Shoe company, on Whitehall street.

EXPECT BIG ATENDANCE AT MARKET CONFERENCE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
AUGUSTA, Ga., May 8.—Not less than 500 delegates will attend the big Carolina-Georgia Farmers and Business Men's meeting in this city on May 15. E. J. Watson, commissioner of agriculture of South Carolina, and the Merchants and Manufacturers' association of Augusta are co-operating with the Georgia chamber of commerce to make the meeting a great success in point of attendance and in putting into operation practical plans for increasing the production of foodstuffs in the Augusta territory in both states, an peil as inducing the local merchants and the wholesale dealers of the larger communities to prepare for marketing grain and hay.

The mayors of all towns in the South Carolina counties near Augusta are appointing delegations. The Georgia chamber of commerce has asked the orditaries of Burke, Columbia, Glascock, Greene, Hancock, Jefferson, Jenkins, Lincoln, McDuffie, Oglethorpe, Richmond, Screven, Tallaferro, Warren, Washington and Wilkes counties to appoint delegations of not legs than fifteen representative farmers and five leading business men and bankers to regresent their counties, and enthusiastic responses are being received. As the meeting will be open to everyone who is interested in the problems of diversified agriculture, a large number will attend in addition to the delegates formally appointed.

E. J. Watson, commissioner of 'agriculture of South Carolina, who will address the meeting, announces the appointment of the following speakers to represent South Carolina, ex-Governor D. C. Heyward, D. W. Dabbs, president of the South Carolina Farmers' Union; R. M. Dixon, Southern Commercial congress; Dr. W. E. Mealing, North Augusta, S. C., and Harry F. D. Calhoun, of Barnwell.

Among the prominent Georgians who will deliver addresses are R. W. Hunt, who will speak on live stock and the co-operative side of diversifcation of crops; E. Lee Worsham, state entomologist, on cotton; Judge E. H. Callaway, on necessity of the southern farmer raising his own food crops; Judge W. F. Eve on good roads; Dr. J. E. Green, on advantages of the farmers' exchange; Dr. A. M. Soule, president of the state college of agriculture; Commissioner of Agriculture Price; Dr. Peter F. Bahnsen, state veterinarian, on profitable and progressive live stock industry, and several other experts in agricultural matters.

Atlanta Alumni Association Holds Enthusiastic Meeting Friday Night

Robert S. Quinn was elected president of the Atlanta Alumni association of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity at an enthusiastic meeting at the Winecoff hotel Friday night.

Mr. Quinn, who is a graduate of Emory college, and popular member of the publicity staff of the Southern Railway company, succeeds George barnwell, who has recently moved from the city, as president of the local alumni. Mr. Quinn was secretary of the association and the position made vacant by his election to the presidency was filled by James L. Gindrat.

The meeting of the alumni association, which was preceded by a dinner at the hotel, was one of the most enthusiastic meetings in years, and many of the active members of the Tech chapter of Alpha Tau Omega were present in addition to the alumni.

JITNEY BUS OPERATORS TO FACE RAIL BOARD

Hearing to Be Held Wednesday on Petition to Regulate Them as Common Carriers

Jitney bus operators in Atlanta will on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock appear before the state railroad commission to answer the commission's rule nisi requiring them to show cause why they should not be adjudged common carriers under the law and regulated by the commission as such.

The rule nisi was issued several days ago after the Georgia Railway and Power company and a number of citizens had filed petitions with the commission requesting that the jitney buses be defined as common carriers, and rules prescribed for their conduct and operation.

NEGRO SHOT AND KILLED BY WAYCROSS ATTORNEY

Herbert W. Wilson Uses Revolver When Black Runs With Money

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
WAYCROSS, Ga., May 8.—Herbert W. Wilson, attorney, shot and almost instantly killed Joe Woodbury, a negro, this afternoon in the Atlantic Coast Line shops here. The negro was fleeing from the Coast Line pay car with money Wilson had been sent to collect for the R. D. Ison company, loan brokers. It was agreed according to Wilson's statement, that the wages due Woodbury should be paid to him and Paymaster Wick did this in the presence of the negro. Woodbury then asked permission to count the money, which the attorney granted. Once he got the pay envelope the negro ran through the crowded car and dashed through the shops. He got a good lead on the attorney, who followed as rapidly as possible.

Failing to get any response to his demand that the negro halt, Wilson pulled his pistol and fired twice. He says he did not know at the time he had hit the negro. Woodbury died before he could reach the hospital. In the envelope was $24.75 of which the loan brokers claimed $17.65 under an assignment.

Bond in the sum of two thousand dollars was arranged. The grand jury now in session will take up the case Monday. Attorney Wilson is a member of one of the most prominent families of Waycross. He is the son of Leon A. Wilson, member of the law firm of Wilson and Bennett, of which Federal Judge W. W. Landrum now of Savannah, was a member prior to his appointment as judge in March.

A CHALLENGE!

Here's a Show-Down to Prove that Black Armor at $4 is Equal to and Better than any $5 Advertised Brands Sold at Cut Prices.

Let's settle this question of good whiskey once and for all. We propose a show-down—all the cards on the table, face up.

Let's see which is the best whiskey—the other fellow's $5.00 goods at cut prices, or my Black Armor at one price only—$4.00. There's a lot of talk these days about those advertised brands.

We're not going to talk. We're going to show you. You're the jury. We're going to put the case in your hands.

Trial Bottle Free

So confident am I that Black Armor blended with 14-year-old whiskey is a better bargain at $4 than any of the advertised $5 brands that I'm going to give you a chance to make a comparison. Here's how I'm going to do it:

With your order for four quarts or more of my famous V. O. S. Black Armor for $4 express prepaid, I will ship with my compliments a full pint of Echo Springs, Harper, Lewis "66" or any of the $5 advertised brands sold at cut prices. Sample a whole quart of Black Armor and a whole pint of the cut priced goods. If you don't find my Black Armor a smoother, better, more palatable whiskey than the $5 goods, you can keep the quart of Black Armor and the free pint at my expense.

BLACK ARMOR GUARANTEED

That's what I mean by a show-down with all the cards on the table face up. You get a chance yourself to see which is the best.

Did you ever have anybody talk fairer to you than that? The other fellow's "bunk" will wither up and blow away in face of an argument like this. It's time to cast aside all that "bunk" about good whiskey and call for a show-down and settle this question of good whiskey once and for all.

Just send in your order on attached coupon and don't forget to mark in which brand of free goods you want.

Cordially Yours
President.

AILING PEOPLE

SHOULD SAFEGUARD THEIR HEALTH AS THEY WOULD THEIR BUSINESS

To be successful in any of the pursuits of life one should be physically and mentally strong. Competition is so great that unless one is in possession of all his physical and mental forces he may soon be crowded to the wall. It is useless to worry about the past cause, after the disease becomes cute established.

A Physician's Life Work

To restore a person to health and strength and give him his rightful place among his fellowmen is worthy of the noblest efforts of a physician's life, and my years of physician works earnestly to this end. I offer my professional services, my skill and the benefit of my experience in the treatment of special diseases.

Don't Give Up—A Visit Will Tell

Those who are suffering from any of the ailments of my specialty are invited to call at my office and take pleasure in advising the sick and afflicted how they can regain and preserve their health. My fees are reasonable and consistent with the professional work necessary. Charges to each case to the best of my ability and give you my personal attention.

I TREAT Blood, Skin and Nervous Diseases, Nervous Exhaustion, Kidney, Bladder and Special Diseases, Rheumatism, Varicose Veins, Fistula, Fissures, Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Eczema, Catarrh, Opthalmitis, Piles and Rectal Diseases, and all ailments of men.

NOTICE TO ALL READERS

I desire every person to understand that I do not claim for myself that I am able to perform miraculous cures or to effect cures beyond the reach of honest skill, or that I am able to cure cases that are known as incurable conditions, but I claim that I can give you first-class treatment at a reasonable fee. Let the right treatment at the start. I attribute a large measure of my success to the fact that I don't treat or diagnose any case without first making a thorough personal examination. Theoretically Your Argument's Great. But—

ABSOLUTE prohibition is one of the biggest boomerangs ever conceived. The man who really works for real temperance is the maker of mild beer. He's the man who fights drunkenness.

Two ounces of alcohol are food and admittedly beneficial to the system. Ordinary light beer contains about 3 per cent of alcohol—less than one-half the amount found in apple cider. To consume two ounces a man would have to drink at least four bottles of beer a day. You don't find drunkards in the ranks of the beer drinkers.

Dr. Wiley, the noted pure food expert, said recently, "Beer is a veritable food." The famous Professor Gaertner says, "One quart of beer is equal to three-tenths pound of bread."

As a tonic for the sick, infirm, convalescent and feeble, beer is often prescribed by physicians with excellent results. Mild healthful beer has done more for True Temperance than all other forces combined.

Good Buyin? Met the Early Break In Stocks and Steadied Market

Saturday's Session Is Calculated to Dispel All Doubt of This Country's Ability to Maintina Its Financial Equilibrium

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—The net result of today's stock session is calculated to dispel all doubt of this country's ability to maintain its financial equilibrium in the face of very trying circumstances. Overnight advices in connection with the sinking of the Lusitania, carrying political implications of grave import, were expected to find direct reflection in values of securities.

As a matter of fact, the market broke severely in the first fifteen minutes, stocks throughout the list declining from 3 to 10 points. From that time almost to the end heavy buying orders brought a restoration of normal conditions, many important issues closing with nominal losses, while a few showed small gains.

Some of the war specialties closed the day with losses of 1 to 4 points, while seasoned stocks in the railway list plainly showed the effect of what is technically called "good" buying. Total sales, 575,000 shares. Every precaution was taken to keep speculation within bounds.

The money market was not a factor, loans made yesterday holding over until next Monday. Little attention was paid to the bank statement.

Bonds were heavy and active. Total sales (par value) aggregated $3,575,000. United States bonds unchanged on call during the week.

E. F. HUTTON & CO.'S STOCK LETTER

NEW YORK, May 8.—The tragedy of the Lusitania as revealed in the morning papers after the reassuring messages of yesterday brought a flood of selling orders. Prices opened down from 1 to 10 points in Westinghouse. Enormous buying very soon showed that no panicky conditions prevailed and that there were buyers for all stocks for sale. A sharp recovery took place around 11 o'clock. A weak raid was attempted just before the close, but dislodged no stocks. After the break of from 5 to 30 points in the market there can be few weak accounts left and barring serious foreign complications, the market should be in a sound condition.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF THE ATLANTA PRODUCE MARKET

The Atlanta market is still active and in good shape on most everything with receipts about equal to the demand for everything except tomatoes. The demand north and northwest is such that the growers have been selling their stock to track buyers for more than the Atlanta market would stand, but the crop is now moving freely and other markets are being filled up and we expect to see a full supply here at reasonable prices for good stock. So far this has been an unusual year for Florida Irish potatoes. Trade was a little slow at first to take hold of them, but when they did commence using them the demand has increased daily and we are able to sell almost on arrival all that has come to our market at very good prices. Now that the old crop is in such condition that the stock is undesirable we look for continued demand for the new crop. We are having very heavy receipts of English peas and yellow squash; the peas are coming from Florida, south Georgia and Alabama, as well as the home-grown stock now moving. This has caused somewhat of an overstock and decline in price accordingly. Yellow squash has declined on account of receipts heavier than the demand. Beans are moving freely at very satisfactory prices. The same can be said of cabbage and peppers. Cucumbers and eggplant are yet a little scarce and high. Asparagus in heavy receipt; demand light. Next week corn and okra should start at high prices.

The lowest prices for strawberries seen this season was seen this week. Good berries sold as low as $1.50 per crate. This was caused by oversupply. This very low price will cause lighter shipments and we expect the market to stiffen up within the next few days. Pineapples are not in heavy demand; stock moving very slow; little good stock offered; season about over. Florida oranges and grape fruit selling in about the usual way for the time of year; prices about stationary.

Poultry and eggs are being received in quantities about equal to demand, with no change in prices.

We have had a much needed rain over our entire section and we expect to see all crops flourish and should have within the next few days vegetables and berries from our immediate section.

Wheat Closed 2 3-4 to 4 1-2 Cents Down--Corn, Oats, Pork and Sides Heavy

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, May 8.—Huge sales, the largest perhaps in months, broke down the price of wheat at one time today 5⅞c a bushel. Fear of some complications resulting from the sinking of the Lusitania had much to do with the setback, but the bearish crop report from Washington cut a good deal of figure and so, too, did renewal of war rumors about Italy. Prices closed unsettled 2¾c to 4½c under last night. Other net losses were: Corn, ⅝@¾c to ⅛c; oats, ¼c to ⅛@⅝c, and provisions, 10c to 35@37½c.

Corn held up in at notable manner as compared with the weakness of wheat.

In oats, as in corn, offerings were readily absorbed.

Provisions tumbled with grain. For the time being the upward slant of the hog market seemed to be ignored.

KING, FARNUM & CO. GRAIN LETTER

CHICAGO, May 8.—Wheat: The Lusitania sinking upset all markets of country and coming along with bearish crop figures caused general selling and lower prices. With exports continuing large, speculative situation will soon correct itself.

Corn—Traders were nervous as result of the Lusitania incident and prices will likely be erratic for several days.

Oats—Followed other grains and with same results and an excited trade with indifferent support and lower prices.

BELGIAN A BELGIAN DESPITE NEW GOVT.

AMSTERDAM, April 27.—In the trial of Henri Dubois, a Belgian, before the Vienna landesgericht on a charge of fraud, the question was asked whether the accused, as a native of Ghent, should be considered as a German or a Belgian subject. The court ruled that despite the German occupation of Belgium the accused had not lost his Belgian citizenship.

Weather Conditions

Forecast till 7 p. m. Sunday.

Atlanta and vicinity: Fair tonight and Sunday.

Georgia: Fair in north, thundershowers in south portion this afternoon or tonight; Sunday fair.

The northern storm has advanced slowly northeastward and has practically disappeared into Canada north of the St. Lawrence river. A slight secondary disturbance appears to be central off the coast of Florida and the weather is cloudy and rainy in southern Georgia and Florida this morning. The drought has been thoroughly broken all over Georgia and the Carolinas, as well as over the central part of the cotton belt. The heaviest rains during the past twenty-four hours were Pensacola 5.62 inches, Atlanta 3.68, Thomasville 3.30, and Macon 2.04.

Fair and comparatively cool weather prevails in the entire region west of the Mississippi, including Texas. Frosts continue to be reported in Nebraska, the Dakotas and Montana, with the lowest 7 a. m. temperature 24 degrees at Williston, N. D.

Fair weather is indicated for Atlanta tonight and Sunday, with very moderate temperatures.

Trade Interests Buying and Short Coverin Caused Rise in Cotton

WEEKLY REVIEW OF OF DRY GOODS MARKET

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—Cotton goods markets are generally very steady, despite the drop in raw cotton. Gray goods of print cloth yarn construction have receded in price a little as a consequence of sales from second hands whose purchases on contract were very large last month. On colored napped flannels prices have been advanced ½ cent a yard on account of a shortage in dyestuffs. There has also been a further shortening of the discounts on cotton duck, some large orders having come in for export, on wide duck lines. Southern manufacturers of dress ginghams are making preparations for the spring season of 1916 and will make preliminary showings in some instances next week.

The eastern lines will not be opened for some time yet. Bleached goods continue in steady demand, the finer grades selling well. Pillow tubings and the finer grades of wide sheetings are well sold ahead. There has been a more active trade in wash goods and white goods, both for immediate and later delivery, and some of the fine and fancy goods mills have booked a substantial business for later delivery. There has been a broad demand for certain grades of 40-inch sheetings to replace burlaps, which are scarce. Wide censburgs have also been selling well, and the medium grades of sheetings available for bag purposes are in steady demand. The knit goods trade is improving.

Prices quoted: Print cloths, 28-inch, 64x64s, 3¼c; 64x60s, 3¼c; 38½-inch, 64x64s, 4⅜c; brown sheetings, southern standards, 6½c; denims, 9-ounce, 13c; tickings, 8-ounce, 11½c; prints, 5c; staple ginghams, 6¼c; dress ginghams, 9¼c.

NEW YORK COFFEE MARKET.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—The market for coffee futures was lowered under scattered liquidation, which probably represented a continuation of the selling movement started by news of the sinking of the Lusitania yesterday and after opening at a decline of 6 to 11 points, active months sold about 8 to 15 points net lower. There was no material change in the news from Brazil, however, and prices later rallied slightly on some months with the close at a net loss of 6 to 17 points. Sales were only 10,000 bags.

Spot quiet; Rio No. 7, 7⅝c; Santos No. 4, 10¼c.

Rio reported a decline of 75 reis, but Santos was unchanged and Brazilian exchange was 1-16d higher. Brazilian port receipts, 29,000; Jundiahy, 8,000. Santos cleared 47,000 bags for New York.

COTTON OIL MARKET

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—Cotton seed oil was unsettled, nearby deliveries closing 2 to 9 points lower, while forward months were 2 to 4 points net higher. Near months were bearishly affected by the poor demand for actual oil and the weakness in hog products. Refiners lent some support and shorts covered on a moderate scale. Sales, 14,500 barrels.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS

New York Commercial: The sinking of a deep-sea liner is not going to stop our export trade in cotton or anything else. It was that consideration of the situation which induced some of the more sober-minded members of the trade yesterday to buy the contracts which were cast upon the market regardless of values.

S. M. Weld & Co.: General sentiment appears to be decidedly against the market, but we think that present prices have discounted the news to date, and believe that purchases made on such weak markets as we have recently experienced will ultimatly prove profitable.

A. Norden & Co.: We believe that cotton cently experienced will ultimately prove profit-investment.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, May 8.—Weather developments overnight were most favorable. A general and abundant rain occurred over the Atlantic states, while fair weather prevailed over the western and central belt.

Liverpool showed greater composure than was expected in the face of the shocking disaster. Futures were about 4 points better than due, while spot prices are quoted only 4 points lower; sales, 4,000. The Liverpool stock of American cotton is now 600,000 bales greater than at this time last year.

Our market opened about 14 points higher on buying on calmer consideration and to replace long lines which had been liquidated in the confusion of yesterday, but the market showed lack of determination on the buying side and had several weak spells. Apprehension over the political situation continues and favorable weather also provided sellers. A serious curtailment in trade and loss of confidence is feared will be the result of the latest war developments.

Spots are steady, but there is no demand of consequence.

Coverning by scalpers over Sunday caused some steadiness in the last hour.

Market prospects for next week seem to depend altogether upon political news.

Liverpool is due 3 to 4 points higher Monday.

Market Indicated the Demoralization and Severe Break of Friday Had Fully Reflected the Shock to Sentiment of the Sinking of the Lusitania

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, May 8.—The action of the cotton market today indicated the demoralization and severe break of yesterday afternoon had fully reflected the shock to sentiment of the sinking of the Lusitania and closing prices were steady at a net advance of 11 to 13 points.

Liverpool cables were better than due, and the market here opened at an advance of 4 to 10 points. Sentiment still seemed to be more or less disturbed and unsettled, but there was a good demand from houses with foreign connections and local trade interests, which readily absorbed some further scattered selling, and sent the active months about 14 to 17 points above last night's closing figures. As prices worked higher, there was some covering by recent sellers, and the close was only slightly off from the best under renewed realizing or liquidation.

Confirmation of yesterday's reports that China and Japan had come to an understanding, probably helped the market and while it was reported that yesterday's disaster had greatly disturbed the situation as to war risks and marine insurance, some of the larger local trade interests appears to be of the opinion that no serious check is to be anticipated in the export of commodities.

Review of the dry goods situation showed no particular change in the volume of business or outlook, and some further anxiety was reported as to conditions in the southwest which is believed to mean a spell of dry, warm weather. Further rains in the eastern belt was considered beneficial from a new crop standpoint.

Port receipts today 15,161; exports 27,284; port stocks 1,208,630.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, May 8.—A quiet and steady feeling prevailed in the cotton market today, with prices on the up grade ond reacting from the decline of yesterday. Early in the session the ring was active and excited and a large business was done but with no new developments the market soon quieted down.

In the early trading prices gained 15 to 16 points, shorts being the best buyers. After the first edge of profit taking was off the market sagged under the influence of the rains in the eastern belt and at one time threatened to break through the level of yesterday's close. Profit taking on the bear side started again at the lower levels and widened to 17 to 18 points. The close was at a net gain for the day of 10 to 12 points.

A feature of the session was the failure of the Liverpool market to meet the decline on this side yesterday. The unexpected steadiness in Liverpool did much to stimulate realizing among holders of short cotton.

JAY, BOND & CO. COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, May 8.—The local market met today with a strong demand for cotton and as the selling power had exhausted itself for the time being prices improved to a moderate extent. The sinking of the Lusitania was naturally the uppermost topic of discussion and as its results are a question for the future to decide, the tone of the market displayed hesitancy. This is due to the feeling that freight and insurance rates will curtail exports of cotton thus adding to the visible supply in this country. However, liquidation has been quite thorough and the market would quickly improve with any betterment in the political situation.

E. F. HUTTON & CO.'S COTTON LETTER

NEW YORK, May 8.—Yesterday's panicky conditions in cotton and stocks, owing to the sinking of the Lusitania, were not so pronounced today, but had the effect of checking buying by timid operators. Large spot and trade interests absorbed the selling that came chiefly from belated scattered longs. There was also some little buying for investment again by traders who have been out of the market since October crossed the 10c level. Believe much higher prices are at hand.

IMMIGRATION OFF 75 PER CENT BECAUSE OF WAR IN EUROPE

Three-Fifths of the Loss Distributed Among Countries That Are Engaged in War

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The effect of the European war upon immigration into the United States is shown with striking clearness by figures made public today by the department of labor. Seventy-five per cent of the normal immigration has been cut off. While it is probable that a part of this great loss is accounted for by industrial depression in this country and fewer opportunities for employment, there is little doubt that the bulk of the loss is directly due to the great conflict. The bureau of immigration has no means of determining the causes which underlie fluctuations in immigration and emigration, but can merely report the figures.

Immigration figures are made up according to the government fiscal year which ends on June 30. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, there was a total immigration into the United States of 1,218,480. For the first nine months of the current fiscal year, beginning July 1, 1914, and ending on March 31 last, the immigration to this country has fallen to 272,764. This will average, when the remaining three months are accounted for, about one-fourth of the immigration for the fiscal year of 1914.

BIG ITALIAN DROP.

About three-fifths of the loss in immigration is distributed among countries which are now actually at war. There is also a tremendous loss in the immigration from Italy, which has been in readiness for war ever since the European conflict began and which has been holding her reservists for possible service. Italy sent 283,738 of her people to the United States during the fiscal year of 1914, while for the first nine months of the current fiscal year only 39,406 Italians have been admitted.

From the countries which are directly concerned in the war the United States received 718,777 immigrants during the 1914 fiscal year, while in the nine months following that it has had but 139,092. An estimate of the total immigration from these warring countries for the 1915 fiscal year places the figure at about 185,000, which will be but a fourth of the amount for the previous year.

The 1914 immigration from the countries engaged in war was almost equally distributed between the allies and their present foes. From the allied countries there came to the United States 374,576 immigrants. From Austria, Hungary, Germany, Turkey there were 343,801 immigrants. For the nine months of 1915 the immigration from the allies has dropped to 109,686, while that from the enemy countries has almost vanished, amounting to only 29,532.

TABLE OF FIGURES.

The following table shows the number of immigrants admitted into the United States from the countries now engaged in war, both for the fiscal year of 1914 and for the nine months following that, during which latter period war broke out:

	Year ending June 30, 1914; nine months ending March 31, 1915.
Austria	134,831	8,694
Hungary	143,221	9,202
Belgium	5,763	2,191
Bulgaria, Servia and Montenegro	9,189	1,865
France	9,256	4,291
Germany	33,734	7,279
Russia	255,660	25,594
Turkey, Europe and Asia	29,915	4,356
Japan	8,929	6,899
Canada	86,139	65,626
Total	718,777	139,092

The war has likewise had a marked effect upon the foreign travel of United States citizens. During the fiscal year of 1914, 368,797 Americans went abroad, while for the first nine months of the year following only 156,041 have sailed. At the present rate of travel the complete fiscal year of 1915 will show about one-half of the amount of the previous year. For the 1914 year the immigration bureau reported the arrival in this country of 286,586 United States citizens. In the nine months following, 218,381 have arrived.

SEVENTEEN YEAR RECORD.

So far as the immigration of foreign aliens is concerned the figures for the complete fiscal year of 1915 will show the smallest total in seventeen years. Not since 1898 has immigration into the United States dropped below the 300,000 mark. It seems scarcely likely that the 1915 total will exceed 300,000. With one exception 1914 was the heaviest immigration year in the history of the United States, the record being established in 1907 when there were 1,285,349 immigrants.

The figures also indicate a smaller departure of aliens from the United States for their home countries than last year. During 1914, 303,378 aliens went home. During the nine months following that, 183,291 have departed. For the complete year, which will end on June 30 next, it is estimated that the departure will not exceed 250,000.

$400,000 BOND ISSUE PROPOSED IN BROOKS

County, If Bonds Are Issued, Will Build Roads and Bridges

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

QUITMAN, Ga., May 8.—The warmest campaign ever waged in Brooks county, which is strictly non-political, is centering around the proposition to issue $400,000 worth of county bonds for road improvement. So far the campaign has been based on business considerations and has been free from the personalities which mark the usual political campaign.

The five county commissioners have unanimously endorsed the bond plan as a business proposition and have gone on record that if the bonds do not carry taxes will be increased four mills this fall. The county and state tax rate is now 2 1-2 mills and will be increased to 14 1-2 mills to take care of the county's expenses in case the bond issue does not carry.

The commissioners have issued a statement pledging themselves to expend the bond money first on permanent bridges and turnpikes and then turn the rest to the roads if any is left, and this has made a very favorable impression on the voters.

The commissioners have called a big mass meeting of citizens in Quitman next Tuesday when the bond issue will be discussed.

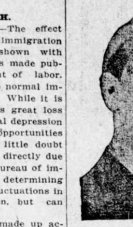
BUSINESS AND FINANCE

By W. S. Cousins, Editor The American Banker

Canadian Securities Have Been Largely Absorbed in American Financial Markets--Aggregate $75,000,000 in Five Months--May Be Permanent Transaction--Stock Market on More Substantial Basis and Values Tending Upwards--Good Demand for Prime Investments

NEW YORK, May 8, 1915.

NE of the most visible effects of the European war has been the financing of Canadian projects by American capital. Despite the fact that in 1913 and 1914 efforts were made to transfer a number of Canadian security issues to the investment markets of the United States, London has always held its position as Canada's premie, banker, and by far the great majority of her loans have been negotiated in the mother country. Since the outbreak of the European war, however, and the consequent restriction of the British loan market, Canada has been seeking new fields for her necessary borrowing, and quite naturally has turned to her immediate and rich neighbor. The United States has been very willing to assume the role as Canada's new banker; and, from current comment across the border, it is evident that the Canadians are quite pleased with the new arrangement.



The beginning of last December really saw the commencement in this new trend of the Canadian bond market; and the Monetary Times, of Toronto, a thoroughly reliable authority, offers a tabulation in which it shows that from December 1, 1914, to May 1, 1915, the sales of high-grade Canadian bond issues in the United States have aggregated $73,179,974. Of this amount $26,590,000 represents the year-end financing of 1914, and $46,589,772 the regular current necessities of the first four months of 1915.

Twenty-nine separate issues have contributed to the record of the new year's financing, and the facts concerning them may be tabulated somewhat as follows:

Class.	No. of Issues.	Amount.
Provincial loans	7	$21,375,000
Municipal issues	20	16,214,000
Railroad	1	2,000,000
Public utility	1	7,000,000
	29	$46,589,772

The city of Montreal is by far the largest in the list of municipal borrowers. At the close of last year this city successfully negotiated a sale of $6,900,000 debentures, and on Saturday of last week an American and Canadian syndicate bought a second issue of $6,100,000 in three-year fives. This makes a total of $13,000,000 within a period of five months.

Only eight of the twenty-nine issues mature in a period longer than ten years, while eighteen represent short-time loans of five years or less. This shows that the present tendencies of the Canadian market are in the direction of short-time obligations, as representing the expedient of temporary relief pending the definite clarifying of the international financial situation.

To what extent we may be called upon to relieve the Canadian financial market after the close of the war—in which Canada is actively participating—is largely a matter of conjecture. But when we consider the fact that Canada is the second largest customer of the United States in the matter of trade and commerce, and that our reciprocal relationships cover almost every field of activity, it is not unnatural that the investment offerings of both countries should be equally attractive to the investors of either. American investment bankers report that they had no difficulty in quickly disposing of all the underwritings of Canadian securities, and it is logical to assume that these issues will continue to find a ready market as long as they maintain their present attractiveness.

STOCK MARKET.

It may now be assumed that the sustained volume of business and the widening tendency of the stock market are conclusive evidence that Wall street has entered into a new period of activity and strength. This is a natural evolution and is a very gratifying one for those who have contributed to the features that have ushered in this new era. For many years Wall street has been under a cloud. It has passed through a long period of harassing legislation, and financial business had to adjust itself to a new economic policy on the part of the government. We hardly realize how largely in recent years these conditions have affected values. But few can doubt, however, that the change has come, based upon the most solid foundations. The upward tendency in the market value of industrial stocks received its first impulse, without doubt, from the enormous foreign orders placed with these companies for war material. Some of these orders represented in the aggregate a value equal to a large percentage of the total capitalization of these companies. To many the response in prices of the stocks affected seemed extravagant, but everything which has thus far been revealed in regard to these orders fully accounts for any price movements which have occurred. In taking a survey of the market as it appears at the present time, the wonder is that our old standard stocks are not more rapidly going back to their former prices. Stocks that have earned and paid 6 per cent through all the troublesome recent years should not today be selling below par. There are also the 7 per cent stocks like Smelters preferred, Leather preferred and Steel preferred which are selling today at remarkably low figures, when we consider the tests to which they have been submitted and the fact that easy money is likely to prevail for years to come.

While it is impossible to point out any safe rule for investment in stocks, for such investments can never be reckoned on as absolutely and permanently safe, there are nevertheless a few fundamental principles that should govern every such investment, whether it be large or small. Just at this time, when only the mere rumor of incoming business is sufficient to send up the prices of the so-called "war stocks" from 3 to 15 points in a single session, it is utter folly for the average investor to place his money on such a hazard. The most important consideration is the position of the stock from the standpoint of dividends—not spasmodic and irregular royalties, but real and regular dividends as the honest fruits of production. Many of the country's standard dividend-paying stocks are selling on a basis that will yield double the rate of savings bank interest, with an equal degree of safety. With the present prospects of abundance and prosperity and the steady improvement in domestic trade, the stocks of American standard dividend payers are the only legitimate purchase in so far as the stock list is concerned.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

THROUGHOUT the United States the snowy carnation pinned on the lapel of the coat today stands for the purity of motherhood, while its haunting fragrance is emblematic of the mother love. Eleven years ago today Miss Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia, organized "Mothers' day," and from its initial modest observance in the Quaker City the idea has grown and spread until it has assumed national proportions. Adopted by every state in the Union and formally proclaimed by congress last year, Mothers' day, in the words of Miss Jarvis, is not merely a celebration of idle sentiment. It was intended to, and has proved to be, of great practical benefit to the homes, nation, parents and children, by inspiring all of them with a deep sense of their responsibilities toward each other for the universal well being of the home. Mothers' day further is intended to give emphasis to the wide work of the Mothers' Day International association, of which Miss Jarvis is president, in its endeavor to right some of the injustices of motherhood and childhood.

THAT a day has been set apart in honor of fathers will be news to many. The third Sunday of each June is Fathers' day. The idea originated with Mrs. John Bruce Dodd, of Spokane, Wash., says the Mothers' Magazine, whose suggestion that a day be set aside in her home city in honor of fathers met with instant recognition and favor, the city churches falling in line with remarkable unanimity. This was in the year 1910. Appropriate sermons, deeds which reflect kindness and thoughtfulness to the living parent, a visit to the grave of departed ones, are suggested as appropriate features of the day. This year the day is to be commemorated in many lands besides our own, including Hawaii, Mexico, Canada, India and Siam.

For Diamonds--- Perfect Diamonds, Particular Buyers Turn to Haynes

Few people know diamonds. They are usually bought on "faith"—faith in the integrity of the salesman and the house.

It is such unshaken faith in our old-fashioned business honor which a few days ago led the purchaser of an expensive diamond to say: "I am buying this diamond on confidence. I don't know diamonds, but I do know you."

It pays to deal only with a house of unquestioned integrity in a matter of such importance as the purchase of a diamond.

It pays to buy at Haynes'.

Write or call for our Diamond Booklet which gives many interesting facts concerning Diamonds.

MISS HANNA ENTERTAINS AT EVENING RECEPTION

A pleasant event of Friday evening was the reception at which Miss Elizabeth Hanna entertained at her home on Peachtree street in compliment to the senior class of the Hanna school and the alumnae.

The reception hall, parlors, library and dining room were decorated with a profusion of pink roses, white and pink peonies and handsome palms.

An orchestra, screened by an embankment of stately palms, rendered selections of bright music during the hours the guests called.

Miss Mary Butt Griffith and Miss Nellie Smith served punch, and assisting in entertaining was the senior class, including Miss Cecil Harwell, Miss Nell Morris, Miss Mary Padget, Miss Lenoir Lewis, Miss Willie Belle Key, Miss Mary Chitwood, Miss Ruby Martin, Miss Mary Ralston, Miss Minnie Motte, Miss Luella Jordan and Miss Ruth Breck.

An interesting program was rendered, as follows: Piano duet by Miss Mary Butt Griffith and Mrs. Walter H. Bedard; recitation, Miss Sadie Chambers; vocal solo, Miss Vivian Mathis; recitation, Miss Pauline Adams; violin solo, Mr. Walter Bedard.

Miss Hanna was gowned in white crepe meteor trimmed in rare lace, with corsage of valley lilies, and Mrs. Sarah Hanna, who assisted in receiving, wore white taffeta and chiffon, and her flowers were pink rosebuds.

Two hundred guests called during the evening.

Pretty Children's Party

Mr. George L. Word, Jr., entertained Friday evening at his home in Ansley Park in celebration of his twelfth birthday.

The house was decorated with bright colored flowers and the color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the details.

In the cutting of the cake, the ring was found by T. S. Lewis, Jr., the dime by Dorothy Brown, the thimble by Sidney Yancy, and the button by Sherwood Higgs.

Children's Party

The little guests invited were Helen and Marie Walker, Janie Coleman, Virginia Haire, Louise Huddleston, Louise Giradeau, Helen Adams, Dorothy Kendley, Katherine Sheegart, Frances and Mabel Gilliland, Evelyn Kimbrough, Luna and Aldine Bartlett, Nellie Butler, Eunice Cagle, Greta Bradford, Edna, Marie and Pat Russell, Meiba Chewning, Helen Dennard, Mary Brockman, Leila Holcolm, Hermene and Hazel Rosenberger, Eloise Hunter, Marian Dunn, Adelle Jobson, Cornelia Pierce, Sara and Auverne Harper, Billie Walker, Jim Crockett, Norman Coleman, Richard and Erskine Weymer, Fred, Edward and Robert Stringer, Eugene and Howard Gilleland, Frank Cagle, Richard Chewning, John and James Poole, J. Beautiful Birthday Party

A beautiful event of Friday afternoon was the children's party given by Mrs. Edward Grover Jones at Grant Park in celebration of the fifth birthday of her little son, Edward G. Jones, Jr.

Over sixty little children were guests of the bright occasion and made a pretty picture indulging in the games and merry contests which were a feature of the afternoon.

Ices were served and in the center of each was the figure five which enumerated the years of the young host.

Later in the afternoon the party was joined by a number of Mrs. Jones' friends among the married contingent, and the great white birthday cake ornamented with tiny candles and surrounded with roses was cut by all present.

Mrs. Wells in Recital

Mrs. William Claer Spiker will give a recital Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, at her home on Fourth street.

Mrs. Spiker's guests on this occasion will include a few intimate friends of Miss Susie Wells who will give a dramatic reading, "The Gauntlet," by Bjirnstjerne Bjornson, the most notable figure in contemporary Norwegian history.

"The Gauntlet," finished in 1883, shows a great advance in dramatic technique. The whole drama is closely knit and coherent, and the problems involved are treated with an exhaustiveness equally fair to both sides.

The program will also include musical numbers.

Birthday Celebration

An event of Saturday afternoon was the children's party given by Ruth Mell in celebration of her eleventh birthday at the residence of her mother, Mrs. P. H. Mell, on Peachtree place.

The color scheme was pink and green and the pretty birthday cake was ornamented with eleven burning candles. Twenty-five little friends enjoyed the hospitality of the occasion.

Concordia Sewing Club

Mrs. W. A. Goodman entertained the members of the Concordia Sewing club and a few invited guests Thursday afternoon at her home on Park avenue.

Mrs. Louis A. Spinks won first prize, in the contest and Mrs. F. L. Hall cut the consolation.

After the sewing hour ices were served.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. T. D. Shaw on Bryon street.

Shorter College Notes

ROME, Ga.—Monday afternoon, May 10, the annual May day exercises will take place. This year quite an elaborate pageant will be given. Miss Martha Boone, of the senior class, the May queen will be awakened by Miss Angelina Davis, of the sophomore class, the Prince of Love. The other classes will represent the unsuccessful suitors of the queen. The pageant will close with a May pole dance.

The athletic season will close by a final tennis tournament to be played between the freshmen and sophomore classes. The winning side will be presented with a handsome loving cup. The line up is as follows:

Freshman class—Azile Barrow and Lulu Wilburn.

Sophomore class—Mary Bruner and Cecil Camp.

Sweaters will be presented to Mary Bruner, Cecil Camp and Elizabeth Betts.

Miss Mildred Lida, of Americus, of the piano class of Miss Cronkite, gave an interesting recital last Saturday afternoon.

Misses Elise Brown, of Grovania, Elizabeth Sharp, of Chattanooga, Anna Warren Clark, of Moultrie, and Mrs. Norman, of Norman Park are week-end visitors at the college.

"She Stops to Conquer," was ably presented by the dequgrinet of the spoken word on Monday evening.

Club Entertained

EAST POINT.—The Jefferson Park Sewing club, which was organized among the ladies residing on Bryan and Wadley avenues of Jefferson park district last fall, held a reception at the home of Mrs. Whiteside on Thursday evening, April 29, which was a most successful affair. The large house was thrown open to members of the club, their husbands and friends when from 8 to 11 an entertaining program was carried out. Recitations by Mrs. Dr. Yeast, Mrs. S. A. Castellaw and Mrs. Brown, songs by Mrs. Castellaw and an original poem, entitled "Club Days," by Mrs. Dan Fuller and Mrs. Castellaw were among the leading features of the evening. Prof. Thurman, the blind pianist, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Whiteside gave piano solos while an orchestra from Atlanta played at intervals. The rooms were appropriately decorated.

This was the first time the members of the club have entertained the husbands and the husbands are planning a return courtesy in the near future.

Mrs. A. T. Vandiver is president of the club; Mrs. Whiteside, vice president; Mrs. Pierce Lupo, secretary and Mrs. F. D. Clare, treasurer.

1913 Embroidery Club

How to Instantly Tint Your Hair

"Brownatone" Affords the Surest and Practically the ONLY ABSOLUTELY SAFE Method for Tinting (or Staining) the Hair or Mustache to Any Shade of Brown (or Black).

There is a new preparation on the market that is so entirely harmless and so easy to use that there is really no excuse for any woman (or man) to longer tolerate gray or streaked hair.

"Brownatone" meets and overcomes every objection heretofore found to "hair dyes" and "restorers," and is so pleasing in its uniformly splendid results that it has won in a few months made thousands of friends who could not now be induced to use anything else.

"Brownatone" is instantaneous in its results. One application is all that is necessary to get the desired shade. Then a few moments once every month or so will keep the hair a uniform color.

If your temples are beginning to show gray, use "Brownatone."

If your hair is faded or streaked, use "Brownatone."

"Brownatone" positively can not be detected, will not rub off or wash off, and is harmless, and permanent in every way.

Prepared in two shades—one for golden or medium brown—the other for dark brown or black. Also in two sizes, 25c and $1.00.

A sample bottle and an interesting booklet will be sent upon receipt of ten cents, or we will fill your orders direct if your druggist insists upon substituting. No samples at dealers.

Insist on "Brownatone" at your hairdresser's. Made only by The Kenton Pharmacal Co., 427 Pike St., Covington, Ky.

"GRADUATION WEEK" in the 48th Anniversary Sale

A Week of Special Offerings for Graduation Day Exercises

A DEAR old lady was in the store last week buying a graduation day outfit for her granddaughter.

—"Do you know," she said, "mother bought my graduation outfit here more than forty years ago; I have since bought my daughter's, and now I am in to buy my granddaughter's."

—Bless her dear heart—may she be back in another ten years buying a baby outfit for her great-granddaughter.

—Such incidents lighten the day's work, made us glad that we have been here to serve three generations so well that today we have accounts on our books with daughter, mother and grandmother—the original account often starting with the great-grandmother in the late sixties or early seventies.

—But we mustn't grow reminiscent—the work we've planned for the week concerns the lively, work-a-day girl of the moment, ready for her first great day in life—Graduation Day.

—She will want the best and newest for this day, and we have taken great care that she will find it at Rich's.

A Queenly Complexion in a Few Days' Time---and Other Beauty Secrets

Valeska Suratt, the Theatrical Star, Gives Some of the Secrets Which Have Made Her Famous for Her Self-Made Beauty.

BY MISS VALESKA SURATT.

BEAUTY is more a matter of "skin" these days, than anything else. For this reason beauty is more easy to obtain now than it has ever been before. Yet there are millions of women who are positively making it hard for themselves, and I might say, too, that the thousand and one preparations sold for the purpose of beautifying the skin help to make it hard instead of easy for the women themselves. The trouble is that the ingredients are nearly all the same, and when you have tried one you have practically tried them all. Besides, a skin beautifying cream should be used more liberally than is usually done, but this is expensive. The result is that the average woman must pay a price out of all proportion to the effect produced. There is one formula which produces most exquisite results in a very short time. There is nothing which is equal it in this regard. Mix one tablespoonful of glycerine and one ounce of pinton in a pint of water. This makes over a pint of the cream, many times more than you would have to pay for prepared creams which fail to produce the result desired. In a short time you will find that every blemish and freckle, and all muddiness and sallowness will disappear to give way to an absolutely perfect tint, purity and clearness of the skin. The pintone can be secured at any drug store.

MISS X.—You are fretting too much about those wrinkles. You can now rest assured of making a wonderful difference in your appearance in a short time, by using the following formula. It is peculiar that the deeper the wrinkles, the more remarkable seems to be the effect. It results out the face in a surprising way. You mix this at home in a few moments. To half a pint of hot water, add two tablespoonfuls of glycerine and two ounces of epitol. The cream that is formed should be used daily in liberal quantities. You will find this not only far more economical than the prepared creams sold, but far more effective, in fact, in many cases I know the results have been almost unbelievable.

* * *

INEZ, P. T.—No matter how hard you scrub the scalp and what kind of soap you use, you will never be able to remove dandruff. A teaspoonful of eggol in a cup of hot water has a peculiar chemical action, in that it dissolves all fatty accumulations and dandruff scales. As a head-wash and shampoo it simply has no equal. The lather is wonderfully rich and it leaves the hair easy to do up. Enough eggol for about a dozen of these splendid head-washes can be secured at any drug store at a moderate price.

* * *

WORTHY.—Constant hair-falling means early baldness. You can prevent it quickly and absolutely. Hair tonics are of very little, if any value, against this condition. A mixture of one ounce of beta-quinol with a half pint of water and a half pint of alcohol, or a full pint of bay rum (instead if desired, will when liberally used do in a short time all that you have tried to do for many months past. This gives intense nourishment to the hair roots, gives wonderful life and vigor to hair, stops dandruff completely and you will no longer find handfuls of hair coming out at every combing. Try it by all means. This make the most economical and effective hair treatment known.

* * *

MISS I. M. T.—Steaming the face is never successful against blackheads. Dieting will do no good. It is also impossible to pinch out all the tiny blackheads, but you may remove them all in a few moments, much to your surprise, by simply sprinkling powdered neroxin on a hot wet sponge and rubbing the blackheads with it. You will find that the blackheads have entirely vanished even to the most minute ones. This is a formula worth remembering and using. It never fails.

* * *

DEBORAH G. S.—Dissolving away superfluous or wild hairs is the only way to remove them. You simply injure the skin by using the burning depilatories usually sold. By using simple sulfo solution the hair is completely and thoroughly dissolved away, no mark or red spot is left and no one can tell you have used anything for removing superfluous hair. No matter how stiff, or soft, how heavy or light the hair, or whether the skin is extremely sensitive or not, it removes the hair perfectly and in a few moments. Your druggist will supply you with the simple sulfo solution, or if he hasn't it, get the sulfo powder which you simply wet with a little water just before you apply it.

* * *

WILLING.—If anything can develop the bust this certainly should, as it has been very successful in many cases, though of course you know that development cannot always be assured. Add two ounces of fluetone and half a cup of sugar to a half pint of cold water. Mix thoroughly and take two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bedtime. I would not advise the use of tablets, pills or mechanical instruments. The formula given above is perfectly safe.

* * *

MRS. ALICE M. G.—I used to hunt in vain for a face powder that had no chalkiness, and that would be practically indetectible, so had my own formula made up and I use none other. It is now obtainable at drug stores as "Valeska Suratt Face Powder." It is exquisitely fine, smooth and velvety—it will be a surprise to you.

* * *

SOPPY.—Instead of having your armpits hot and wringing wet from excessive perspiration, and having your garments faded and ruined in the bargain, you can stop it quickly and have the armpits as naturally fresh and dry as the back of your hands if you will simply use hydrolised talc. This also destroys all perspiration and other body odors at once and is splendid for purposing feet.

* * *

MRS. F. N. G.—I am sorry to learn that you were unable to get the simple sulfo solution at the drug store. My secretary will see that you get it, however, if you will write "Secretary to Valeska Suratt, Thompson bldg., Chicago," and enclose the price, which is one dollar."—(Advt.)

The Woman Who Knows

is the woman who has been cured of some dreadful ailment peculiar to her sex—who after long suffering has finally found relief and been restored to health and usefulness by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. These are the women who KNOW that this great remedy for women's ills is all it is claimed to be—there are many thousands of such women—they dwell in all parts of the country. Every day of every year, some woman, somewhere, is writing us grateful letters for restoration to health.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Read this Letter from Mrs. Waters.

CAMDEN, N. J.—"I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go to bed, but spent my time on a couch or in a sleeping-chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In two months I got relief and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual weight. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."—Mrs. TILLIE WATERS, No. 550 Mechanic Street, Camden, New Jersey.

This from Mrs. S. T. Richmond, Providence, R. I.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.,—"For the benefit of women who suffer as I have done I wish to state what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I did some heavy lifting and the doctor said it caused a displacement. I have always been weak and I overworked after my baby was born and inflammation set in, then nervous prostration, from which I did not recover until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The Compound is my best friend and when I hear of a woman with troubles like mine I try to induce her to take your medicine."—Mrs. S. T. RICHMOND, 199 Waldo Street, Providence, Rhode Island.

Every sick woman owes it to herself to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, for it cannot harm her, and there are a hundred chances to one that it will completely restore her health. For special advice write The Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

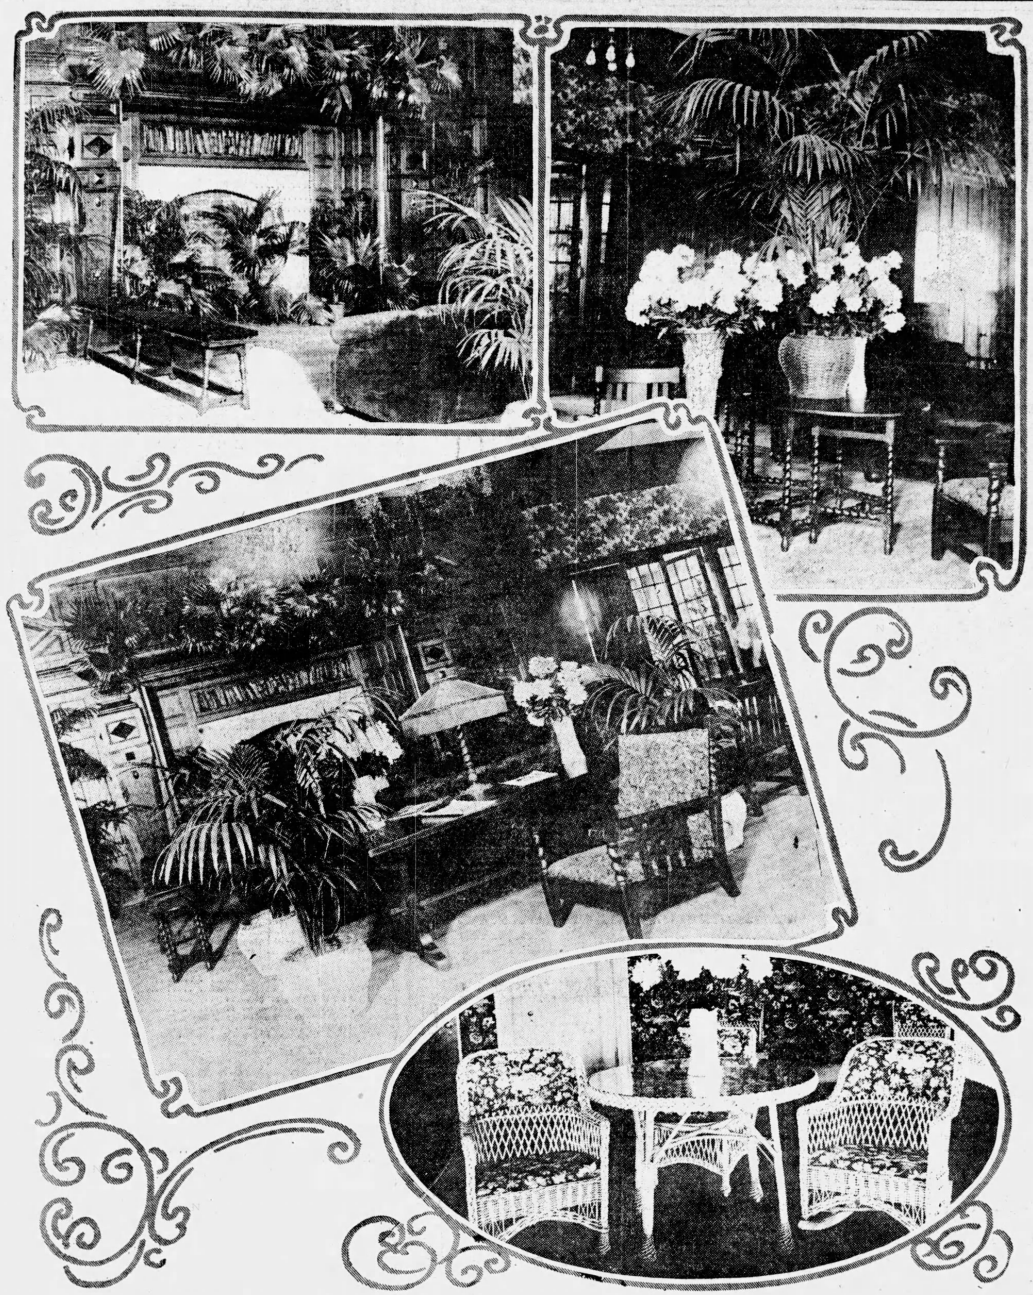
INTERIOR VIEWS OF NEW EAST LAKE CLUB HOUSE



These pictures convey an idea of the beauties of the Atlanta Athletic club's splendid new country club house at East Lake which was informally opened to the members yesterday.

The top picture at the left is a view of the great fireplace in the living room. It is typical of the fireplaces in the country mansions of old England and is one of the features of the interior. The arch of the fireplace is six feet wide, nearly six feet high, and the mantel is more than seven feet high and fourteen feet wide.

The center picture is another view of the great fireplace, taken from a slightly different angle than the top view. It shows the large reading table and lamp, morris chair and the back of the fireplace sofa across the table.

The lower picture is a view of the ladies' sitting room, which opens off the northeast corner of the living room. It is done in the Georgia period and is finished in willow with upholstering which harmonizes with the mural decorations. —Photos by Winn.

Informal Opening of Country Home Of Athletic Club Brilliant Event

The informal opening of the country home of the Atlanta Athletic club at East Lake Saturday afternoon was the largest social event of the week, and came as a pleasant aftermath to the galeties of the season of grand opera. The handsome club house so recently completed was thronged with members and their friends, and the informal dancing enjoyed during the late afternoon and the program of popular dance music added greatly to the pleasure of the event. The terraces overlooking the lake and the great wide porches presented a pretty scene with beautifully gowned women. The golf links were dotted with the usual enthusiasts, who later joined the guests at the informal gathering. The opening of the club was a source of very real pleasure to the members an dtheir friends, for the social life which centers around the East Lake Country club is one of the very pleasant features of life in the city.

Australian tree fern and handsome palms decorated the great reception hall and banks of palms were massed in artistic arrangement against the walls while the musicians' gallery was hidden beneath trailing smilax. Punch was served on the terrace overlooking the lake. A delightful spirit of informality prevailed during the afternoon and never was the hospitality of the Atlanta Athletic club better expressed than upon this occasion. While there was no formal receiving line the officers of the club and their wives extended a most cordial greeting to the many visitors who called during the late afternoon.

Mr. Asa G. Candler, Jr., is the president of the club and Mr. John W. Bachman is vice president. Mr. Preston Arkwright, Mr. Scott Hudson and Mr. William K. Stone are directors. Mr. Thomas B. Paine is chairman of the house committee of the country club, his committee including Mr. Howard Gelbert. Mr. Harry L. Dix is chairman of the house committee of the town house.

Mr. Scott Hudson is chairman of the country club grounds committee; Mr. W. R. Tichenor, of the golf committee, and Mr. Carleton Y. Smith, of the tennis committee.

The formal opening of the club on Saturday afternoon, May 22, is being anticipated with interest and pleasure.

Artistic Kipling Recital

Rev. W. W. Memminger will give a Kipling reading Wednesday afternoon, May 12, at 4 o'clock at the Georgian Terrace under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Auxiliary of All Saints' church. A feature of interest will be the Kipling songs recently set to music and sung by Mr. Harrower. The musical accompaniment will be played by Miss Stillwell and Mr. W. E. Arrand. All interested are most cordially invited to attend. Tickets are fifty cents and are on sale at Elkin's and can also be obtained from members of the auxiliary.

Swastika Club Entertained

Mrs. Wesley Eubanks entertained the members of the Swastika club Friday afternoon at her home on Highland avenue.

The house was decorated with quantities of spring blossoms, carrying out the color scheme of pink and white.

After the business meeting refreshments were served.

Assisting Mrs. Eubanks was her sister, Miss Addie Bethea.

Members present were Mrs. Rothwell Gann, Mrs. Henry Beal, Mrs. R. G. Hooks, Mrs. Leonard Bell, Mrs. B. H. Howard, Mrs. T. C. Larimore, Mrs. J. F. Collier, Mrs. T. A. Drye, Mrs. R. H. Carpenter, Mrs. H. C. Newton, Mrs. E. E. Watson, Mrs. L. E. Misenhammer, Mrs. J. W. Maddox, Mrs. J. D. Witt and Mrs. Wesley Eubanks. The invited guests were Mrs. W. E. Beard, Mrs. W. F. Stewart and little daughter, Elizabeth, of Chattanooga.

The next meeting of the club will be with Mrs. J. D. Witt.

Ladies' Auxiliary

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the B. of R. T. lodge No. 220, held a meeting in the K. of P. hall Monday afternoon. The meeting was conducted by Mrs. Ada Marshall, the first grand vice president, and a class of twenty-nine was initiated.

After the business meeting an interesting program was rendered. A welcome address was given by the president, Mrs. Henry Berry. A piano solo by Miss Lucy Hamilton, solos by Miss Louise Lewis and Miss Thornton, of Columbus, accompanied by Miss Edith Couch; reading by Miss Mammie Lee Stone, Mrs. C. S. Anchors and Mrs. Lura Hurston, and an interesting talk by Mr. W. C. Puckett.

After the program a social was held. The guests numbered about 200.

Because of the inclemency of the weather Friday, the Stork Bazaar which, Mrs. F. P. Gaffney's circle of the Atlanta Childs' Home was conducting in the old Crankshaw store, had to be postponed.

This bazaar was held on Thursday and Friday and despite the very wet weather, so many of the dainty little clothes for babies and small children were sold that the ladies of the circle decided to take a couple of weeks to replenish their stock.

The exact date for this coming sale will be announced through the daily papers.

Any kind of little garments desired. Phone Mrs. Gaffney, Ivy 6857-L, and orders will be promptly filled.

Sunshine Fancy Work Club

The Sunshine Fancy Work club was entertained Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. T. Waters.

Those present were Mrs. W. L. Beard, Mrs. John Watts, Mrs. Carl and G. L. Armstrong, Mrs. W. J. Milam, Mrs. S. A. Sims, Mrs. H. T. Waters, Mrs. C. C. Jordan and many junior members.

The next meeting will be Wednesday with Mrs. John Watts.

Forty-Two Club

The Inman Park 42 club was entertained by Mrs. Charles Robison Friday evening at her home on Elizabeth street.

Quantities of Paul Neyson roses were used in decoration, and at the close of the game a delicious buffet supper was served.

Suffrage Notes

Suffrage Calendar for Week

Georgia Young People's Suffrage association, Tuesday afternoon, Ansley hotel.

Ways and means committee, Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, Thursday afternoon, Ansley hotel.

Committee on literature and education, Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, Saturday afternoon, Ansley hotel.

At Thursday evening's session of the Suffrage school, held in the parlors of the Ansley hotel, Attorneys Leonard J. Grossman and Blair Foster were the speakers of the evening. In the course of his address, Mr. Grossman gave many interesting facts not generally known or considered in connection with the origin and growth of the Woman's Suffrage movement in the United States. Mr. Blair Foster's lecture on "Contracts" was full of valuable information given in a most interesting manner. Mrs. Mary L. McClendon explained a lesson in suffrage geography. Especially interesting was a short informal talk by Miss Florence Pierce who has recently spent some time in Washington, D. C., where she had the opportunity of observing and taking part in suffrage activities at the national capital. Mrs. Amelia R. Woodall, president of the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, announced that a special course of study had been outlined for the summer months. This course of study will form part of the program for the school next session.

Suffrage Rally at Hapeville.

A rally and public speaking will be held by the Georgia Woman Suffrage league at Hapeville Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the city hall. Colonel John D. Humphries, mayor of Hapeville, will introduce the speakers.

The president of the league, Mrs. Frances Smith Whiteside, and the vice president, Mrs. Elizabeth McCarthy, will open the meeting with short talks on the works and the plans to be carried on by the state organization in Georgia.

Mr. J. Hughes Roberts will give an address on "Suffrage."

Mrs. John Rowlett, president of the Georgia branch of the Mothers' Congress, will tell interesting facts concerning the suffrage cause, and Mrs. Eugene Mitchell, president of the Atlanta Woman Suffrage league, will give an address.

Mrs. A. G. Helmer was appointed chairman of program committee for the evening.

Griffin Social News

GRIFFIN, Ga.—Boynton chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, held an interesting meeting Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Strickland. An election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: Mrs. Robert F. Strickland, president; Mrs. Sara Bell, first vice president; Mrs. Lucius Goddard, second vice president; Mrs. James C. Edwards, third vice president; Mrs. Lee Johnson, recording secretary; Mrs. Albert Futral, treasurer; Mrs. Joseph M. Thomas, press correspondent; Mrs. Seneca B. Sawtell, registrar; Mrs. Will H. Taylor, director of children's chapter; Mrs. Roswell Drake, historian. Plans were discussed for having a linen shower for the Griffin hospital. The Daughters will send a box of magazines to the Soldiers' home in Atlanta.

The Woman's club met with Mrs. Benjamin Brown Thursday. The following program was given: "America: The Half Brothers of the World. With Something Good and Something Bad of Every Land." Music, Mrs. Benjamin Blakely read a fine paper on "The Panama-Pacific Exposition." Conversation—"Points of Interest en Route and Return by the Panama-Canal," was interestingly led by Mrs. Thomas R. Mills.

The young men of the dancing set gave a dance Monday evening at the Hotel Griffin in compliment to Miss Eutrelia Hart, of Spartanburg, S. C., the guest of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Montgomery. Twelve couples and several chaperones were present.

Eddy Refrigerators

A refrigerator is an article of daily use, not an ornament. Also, it usually gets "hard usage" or abuse—rough treatment. To stand up and give lastingly good service, therefore, it must be built of genuinely good materials—the very best that can be obtained, and it must be built on sane, practical, common-sense principles.

The germs of decay, the bacilli of disease, can find no foothold in the interior of the Eddy refrigerator. There are no cement joints to absorb grease and liquids. The zinc lining has every joint tightly soldered, and the solder is non-absorbent. Nothing can soak through. Therefore no mould can accumulate between the walls. The Eddy lining is germ-proof, odor-proof, mould-proof. And this can not be said of many boxes called refrigerators.

Those who have used the Eddy in their homes (and, by the way, there are over 7,000 Eddys in use in and around Atlanta) know that it "wears well." It never disappoints. It is a refrigerator of sterling worth. It is right "all the way through."

Prices $12.50 to $150.

Eddy Chests

Eddy Ice Chests have double covers, exactly like picture. Slate-stone Shelves, level and smooth. This cooling box will earnestly appeal to you when you see it.

No. 1 $7.50 up to No. 21 at $35.00.

Eddys are used in most every sanatorium in this city. This alone speaks volumes in its praise.

Flies a Menace to Health

Scientists have proved that the fly is responsible for the wide spread of many diseases, and the agricultural department has issued a pamphlet on the subject.

Study this fly; then you'd be certain to let us screen your home.

"Will you walk into my parlor?"
Said the Spider to the Fly.
"I will not, Mr. Spider,"
Was the insect's pert reply.
"I have a larger contract, sir;
To make some people die!"

And so away the gay thing went.
With many a gentle flutter—
And through a screenless window steered
A bee-line for the butter.

The Week in Retrospect

THE presence of Miss Martha Berry added greatly to the pleasure of the annual reception given by the Martha Berry Circle of Atlanta, of which Mrs. William T. Newman is president. The entertainment was held at the home of Mrs. Preston Arkwright at Druid Hills on Monday afternoon, and the stretch of bright weather which marked the early part of the week lent an additional interest, as tea was served al fresco in the beautiful grounds which surround "Pine Bloom." After the business of the day was transacted and interesting reports of the work of the year given, a lecture, illustrated by stereopticon views, was delivered by Miss Berry. The progress of the mountain children, and the change in their mode of living as caused by education proved the theme of several of the interesting pictures, and the view of wild and shy little boys and girls entering the school year and at its close transformed into the boy and girl of the modern school, in the way to become useful citizens, carried a vivid appeal to the interested observers. The scope of the work undertaken by the circle has broadened greatly during the past year, and the reports given were very rich in human interest.

* * *

THE past week was bright with many informal parties given for the visitors who remained over from grand opera. Miss Elinor Castle, of New Jersey, the guest of Miss Adrienne Battey, was delightfully entertained, among the events planned in her honor being the luncheon given Wednesday by Miss Louise Hawkins; the luncheon at which Mr. Cator Woolford entertained Thursday at the Capital City club; the musicale and tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Richardson, and the picnic supper at which Mr. George M. Battey, Jr., was host Thursday afternoon at his place, near Buckhead.

Mrs. Percy Smedley Darlington, of West Chester, Pa., who spent the past week with Mrs. Lewis H. Beck, after a visit to Colonel and Mrs. Robert J. Lowry, was honor guest in a party Wednesday afternoon at the Piedmont club entertained by Mrs. Byron Bower, and Saturday evening Dr. and Mrs. Bates Block entertained in her honor at the dinner dance.

Mrs. Blair Flandrau, of Mexico City, has made many friends as the guest of Mrs. Don A. Pardee, and has been the recipient of delightful social courtesies. Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Walter Howard gave a party in her honor at the Piedmont club tea dance, and Mrs. Albert Howell, Jr., entertained at luncheon Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Morris Brandon were hosts at a beautiful dinner dance at their home on the Paces Ferry road, and Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Victor Lamar Smith gave a dinner party in compliment to Mrs. Flandrau. Saturday afternoon the attractive visitor was honor guest in the party entertained by Mrs. Dan B. Harris at the Druid Hills club.

Miss Olivia Bogacki, of Montgomery, Ala., who visited Mrs. Woods White for the week, and the Misses Quinney, of Waynesboro, who were guests of their sister, Mrs. Klatte Armstrong, were popular figures at the club dances and were entertained at several informal luncheons and theater parties.

Among other attractive visitors seen at the tea dance Wednesday afternoon at the Piedmont club, and who were again the inspiration for congenial parties at the Druid Hills Golf club Saturday afternoon, were Mrs. Harry Watts, of Baltimore, Mrs. Herbert Evans, of Chicago; Mrs. D. M. Boyd, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Mrs. Martin Cannon, of Concord, N. C.; Mrs. Herbert Cartwright, of Asheville, N. C.; Mrs. F. H. Malone, of Shreveport, La.; Mrs. Mary Robinson, of Kentucky; Mrs. Z. L. Fitzpatrick, of Thomasville; Mrs. J. E. Hayes, of Montezuma, and the Misses Palmer, of Savannah.

* * *

A VERY large and interested audience assembled at the Atlanta theater on Thursday to hear Mary Antin speak on the public schools of America in their relation to the national life. The speaker brought to her subject an earnestness and eager intensity which caught her hearers and held them spellbound. The lecture had been anticipated with pleasure for some time past, and there was a most cordial greeting accorded to Mary Antin from many who know her as Mrs. Amandeus Grabau, and from others who feel that their knowledge is personal through an intimate acquaintance with "The Promised Land" and other books which have given the author a prominent place in the literary world of today. The subject chosen was a very broad and fruitful one, and at the close of the lecture there were many who felt that they had gained a valuable knowledge through not only the graver aspects of the address, but through the bare humor with wife certain personal anecdotes were introduced and which left the hearer midway between laughter and tears. A great bunch of white roses peonies sent the lecturer by the members of the Joseph Habersham chapter addressed to "a patriot, from patriots" brought a pretty acknowledgement from the lecturer, who disclaimed the title of patriot, saying that she had only done what she could toward the bringing to light and alleviating conditions.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. L. E. Brown on May 20.

Report of the Atlanta City Federation of Women's Clubs

The federation, as its name implies, stands for unity and strength, to be used in its full force for all that is humanitarian. It is non-political, nonsectarian. It is composed of ninety-seven clubs—literary, civic and philanthropic in their nature.

Resolutions and recommendations passed by the executive board and at the opening meetings are as follows: To the state legislature, requesting the permissive kindergarten bill; compulsory education; resolutions pledging our co-operation and untiring efforts to the board of education for the betterment of public schools in Atlanta. Other resolutions touching the uplift and improvement of every phase of life in Atlanta.

The federation has established two new standing committees—safety first, Mrs. H. G. Hastings, chairman; home garden league, Miss Beauford Mathews, chairman.

Active work done by the federation includes the following: Safety first, through the chairman, Mrs. H. G. Hastings, and in co-operation with the chamber of commerce, $ was secured from council, $450 to be used for the safety first work, in placing signs at the end of every block in which is located a school, cautioning drivers of vehicles to look out for children. Through the courtesy of Professor Slaton the committee was permitted to place posters of safety first rules in the public school buildings for the benefit of the children. The committee has also asked for a safety first day.

Garden Leagues—Many leagues have been established among the children, under the leadership of Miss Beauford Mathews. Plot of ground in Piedmont park set aside by superintendent of parks, to be cultivated by the children of the leagues and to be marked and known as the "Model Garden of the Home Garden League." Bacteria for seeds given by the state agricultural department. Through Mrs. Frank Neely, chairman on industrial and social welfare, the federation has done much for health protection. Mrs. Neely has ready for distribution in the various manufactories and department stores health bulletins, giving valuable information and reaching approximately 5,000 women and children.

Co-operative work has been done with the Anti-Tuberculosis association in the sale of Red Cross stamps and in other ways.

The committee on parks and playgrounds has been actively at work through the fall and winter, looking to the establishment of eighteen playgrounds for white children, where we have only nine now, and five for colored children, where they have only two now. Also establishment of evening social and recreation centers for negroes in the Younge street and Pittsburg negro schools, with supervisors for all playgrounds and social centers to be paid by the city.

Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, chairman of scholarships, reports twelve scholarships for the federation, all filled by active, energetic students. Through the efforts of the federation, Arbor day was observed by many colleges, schools, clubs and individuals, the Borroughs' club doing much towards inspiring love and interest in nature and growing things. Clean-up week and day was very thoroughly observed all over the city. The chamber of commerce, at the request of the federation, gave $80 as prize money to the schools securing the greatest number of clean-up pledges.

The Junior Civic leagues were most active in making Atlanta "The City Beautiful."

Address by Senator Hoke Smith.

The Federation has been fortunate in having at its open meetings during the year, addresses from our United States senator, Hon. Hoke Smith, on "Women's Responsibility in the Development of the Products of the State." From Miss Celeste Parrish, state supervisor of rural schools, on "Country Life in Georgia and the Relation of the City to It." From Mrs. Ralph C. Norton, on "Women in the War Zones of Europe."

The Federation on November 18, at the request of the state chamber of commerce, took charge of the Georgia Products luncheon, in the auditorium-armory, at which 1,000 people were seated and served.

The Federation has been invited by several conventions of women's organizations meeting in Atlanta, and by the chamber of commerce at the opening of its new building, to make addresses of welcome, to which it has responded through its representative.

Through its federated clubs the Federation has given to Tallulah Falls' school during the past year $800, to students' Aid $245, to Mineral Bluffs $85.

Mrs. J. D. Pickett, chairman of education, reports many improvements made in the curriculum of the public schools in the last year—the establishment of manual training and domestic science in the high schools, new normal school established and producing splendid results; number of children in each room reduced to forty-five in the white schools; twelve night schools, in which penny lunches are served; establishment of many home garden leagues under the direction of Miss Beauford Mathews, every seventh grade in the schools cultivating a vacant lot as a garden.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Harry Osgood, chairman of arts and crafts for the Federation, and supervisor of arts and crafts for the public schools, a three days' exhibit of the work of the children in arts and crafts was held in the chamber of commerce building, under the auspices of the Atlanta Art association. Plans for the new public school buildings have been submitted to the board of lady visitors by the board of education for their approval, with the assurance that they will not be accepted until favorably passed on by them. Many school books were secured for the poor children of the city by the lady board of visitors.

Through the efforts of the committee from the Woman's club Mrs. Kreigshaber, chairman, moving pictures for children are produced at the Grand every Saturday morning, to be censored by the board of education and the board of lady visitors.

Through Mrs. Percival Snead, president of Carnegie library and chairman on libraries for the Federation, was secured a contribution of $17,000 from the Carnegie fund for the establishment of a branch library on the south side. The city giving a lot on which to erect the building, at the corner of Capitol avenue and Georgia avenue. The library will be open to the public by November.

To Miss Pagett

A number of affairs are being planned in compliment to Miss Annie Lou Pagett, whose marriage to Dr. Henry Latimer Rudolph, of Gainesville, will be an interesting event of Wednesday, June 2.

The reception at which Mrs. Francis Wortham Reins, Mrs. D. O. Dougherty and Mrs. Francis Kamper will entertain Friday, May 21, will be in compliment to Miss Pagett and Miss Alice Bacon Cox, another bride elect for June.

Mrs. Eugene Harrington will give a dinner party at the opening dinner dance of the East Lake club on Saturday, May 22, and others who will entertain for Miss Pagett will be Miss Mary Blalock, Mrs. W. B. Willingham, Jr., Miss Elizabeth Silvey and Mrs. Malcolm Rayhold.

Miss Mary Lucy Turner will entertain the bridal party at a buffet supper after the rehearsal, on Tuesday evening, June 1.

List of Authors You Should Know

Mr. Tom Graham, who has been widely quoted for his essays on the brilliant new British writers of today, has as a reply to the anti-British attacks on British "Kultur," been preparing a list of British authors now living, whose names—and in most cases whose books—every English-speaking person of any pretensions to a knowledge of books must know. Mr. Graham comes to the astonishing conclusion that in the single realm of fiction—omitting poetry, drama, the essay, etc.—there are no less than seventy-six British novelists and short-story writers whom it is really necessary to know.

Shaw and Chesterton are included among the fictionists, says he, because, though their best known work lies in fields other than fiction, Shaw began as a novelist, and Chesterton's fiction is as delightful as his essays. Henry James, the Canadian born, he regards as being British today; because of their firmly established residence in England. Mr. Graham says that it gives him a certain pleasure to include Corelli, Caine, Barclay, Garvice and Oppenheim among the list of the Great Ones for, though many critics find no virtue in them, their tremendous popularity makes it ridiculous to pretend that a critic does not devote to them many thoughts—and long thoughts! As to the inclusion of Ralph Connor, Mr. Graham seems in doubt. As a Canadian, it is a problem whether to call him British or American, and his popularity in England, where he is as well beloved as in America, tempts to his inclusion.

Finally, it must be noted that the authors here listed are published by numerous different publishing houses.

The list is as follows:

1. Authors whose places are, for the most part, fixed:

Thomas Hardy, Arnold Bennett, Henry James, H. G. Wells, Rudyard Kipling, John Galsworthy, W. J. Locke, George Moore, Joseph Conrad, A. Conan Doyle, Gilbert Parker, Maurice Hewlett, Bernard Shaw, Gilbert Chesterton, Israel Zangwill, Mrs. Humley Ward, Horace Annesley Vacheli, James M. Barrie, Leonard Merrick, May Sinclair, A. E. W. Mason, Francis Grierson, George Birmingham, Frank Harris, William De Morgan, Barones Orczy, Robert Hitchens, Eden Philpotts, Marie Corelli, Hall Caine, Florence Barclay, E. P. Oppenheim, Charles Garvice, Algernon Blackwood, E. F. Benson, W. W. Jacobs, J. J. Bell, Arthur Quiller Couch, Richard Dehan, Lucas Malet, Justin H. McCarthy, Anthony Hope, the Castles, the Williamsons, E. W. Hornung, H. Belloc.

(2) The new authors:

Hugh Walpole, Oliver Onions, Compton Mackenzie, Gilbert Cannan, J. D. Beresford, Frank Swinnerton, F. Tennyson Jesse, D. H. Lawrence, John Trevena, J. Macdougall Hay, W. S. Maugham, W. Dane Bank, W. B. Maxwell, W. L. George, Coningsby Dawson, Morley Roberts, Pett Ridge, James Stephens, Horace Newts, Barry Pain, Cosmo Hamilton, Percival Gibbons, Edgar Wallace, A. M. Hutchinson, Jeffery Farnol, Patrick MacGill, H. C. Bailey, J. C. Smith, Charles Marriott, John Palmer.

"Such a list," says Mr. Graham, in closing, "may infuriate various persons in delightfully various ways. Those there are who will demand the exclusion of Garvice, Caine, Oppenheim, even of the Williamsons and Hornung. To others the inclusion of W. Dane Bank, a realist who has had but one novel published in this country, may seem premature. Others will justly demand the reason for the omission of let us say, Beatrice Harraden, John Oxenham, Rider Haggard, Robert Barr. But however imperfect my list is, it does suggest to my mind that Britain stands forth as a nation doing things powerful and beautiful; and does suggest to my mind that Britain does suggest to my mind that Americans who do not follow with eagerness the writers of England are cutting their own literary throats."

Commencement Program of Woodberry School

Miss Rosa Woodberry announces the commencement program of the Woodberry school on May 22-24. The literary feature of the occasion will be the baccalaureate address of Judge Joseph H. Lumpkin, of the state supreme court, on "What and Whither." The commencement service will be held at St. Philip's Cathedral, when Bishop C. K. Nelson will be the preacher. Woodberry hall will be the scene of several social functions during the season, among them to be the lawn party on Saturday afternoon to the former pupils and alumnae, and the Monday evening reception tendered to the graduates.

The program is as follows:

SATURDAY, MAY 22, AT 5 P. M.

Senior Class Day Exercises at Woodberry.

The Alumnae Lawn Party.

SUNDAY, MAY 23, 11 A. M.

Woman Day service at St. Phillips' Cathedral.

Baccalaureate sermon by the Rt. Rev. C. K. Nelson.

MONDAY, MAY 24, 8 P. M.

Graduating exercises at the Atlanta Woman's club hall.

Piano Solo—Miss Marian Bradley.

Valedictory Address—"Development of Woman to Meet the New Conditions of the Twentieth Century." Miss Francis Gresham.

Literary Address—"What and Whither," Judge Joseph Henry Lumpkin, of the supreme court of Georgia.

Delivery of Diplomas—Miss Rosa Woodberry, principal.

Benediction.

Vocal Recital

Students of the Atlanta Conservatory of Music from the vocal class of Mrs. Anna Rocheleau Burt, assisted by pupils from the piano class of Miss Kate Blatterman, and organ class of Mr. Charles A. Sheldon, Jr., will give a recital in Cable hall Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock.

The public is invited to attend.

Mothers' Meeting

A mothers' meeting will be held in the Sunday school room of the First Baptist church Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

Mothers of all the churches are invited, as questions of great interest will be discussed. There will be a social half hour and refreshments will be served.

Child Welfare and Mothers' Activities at the Exposition

MOTHERS' day at the Panama-Pacific International exposition is another innovation. Nobody has said anything about a Fathers' day—nor even a Forefathers' day; but the responsibility for conserving the interests of Young America is passed over to mother. And she will have her day, May 20, especially set aside for her. As for the youngsters, every day of the 288 will be Children's day.

But mother's activities at the exposition will be by no means confined to May 20. For example, during one period of seventeen days—from May 7 to 24—she will dominate one of the great national congresses—of which something like 400 will be held during the exposition period. This is the National Congress of Mothers' and Parent-Teachers' associations. It will meet in co-operation with the California Mothers' congress, with a membership of 11,000, of which Mrs. H. E. Rowell is president, and with the International Child Welfare convention, which includes organizations from all over the world.

The importance of these conferences to be held at the Golden Gate may be judged from the fact that in America alone these organizations looking to the breeding of better children and to the study of better methods for their upbringing embrace several hundred thousands, to say nothing of the thousands in most of the other civilized countries. Among the foreign representatives will be Miss Mary Ledyard, Foo Chow, China; Madame Ali Kula Kahn, wife of the Persian ambassador, now in San Francisco; Mme. de Ortiz Coffigney, of Havana; Mrs. Abel Renard, of Buenos Aires; Mrs. D. A. Furnajieff, of Bulgaria, and Dr. Elizabeth Chesser, of Great Britain.

Another great convention backed by its exhibits in the interests of child welfare will be that of the American Collegiate alumnae. There are still others, of greater or less interest to mothers; the Ninth International Purity congress, with 5,000 delegates, in connection with the World's Purity Federation; the Montessori congress, in connection with the model school, will be under the personal supervision of Madame Montessori for four months at the exposition; the Congress on Marriage and Divorce; the Religious Education association, with 40,000 delegates, in connection with the International Congress of Education; the International Genetic congress; the Congress on Vocational Guidance; the Top Notch Corn Growers, with 9,000 boy delegates from thirty-three states; the International Congress of Nurses, with 9,000 delegates and elaborate exhibit; the New Thought World congress; the World's Congress Young People's Societies, and many others.

Child welfare exhibits in great variety—many of them "living exhibits" of children in their manifold activities, in model schools, vocational classes, playground activities, toy-making and outdoor school work—will be shown in the five-acre Palace of Education and Social Economy. One of the most important of these has been installed by the Children's Bureau of the United States department of labor, by Dr. Anna Strong, the expert of the bureau, under the general supervision of Miss Julia Lathrop, head of the federal bureau. This exhibit will include a clinic for children, a model playroom, and a toy-making room for children, with guides to conduct visitors to all the child welfare exhibits throughout the grounds.

The federal government will install other child welfare exhibits in the same building; and so will the Philippine Islands; Miss Brigham, of New York, in vocational training, with children at work; various institutions for defective children, and a number of foreign countries.

A compliment has been paid to woman at this exposition for the first time in giving her equal space and equal recognition with man in all exhibits in all departments.

Shower for Wesley House

A meeting of the executive committee of the Board of City Missions was held at the home of Mrs. J. N. McEachern Wednesday afternoon, and plans were perfected for the miscellaneous shower to be held at Wesley House Tuesday.

Articles of linen and other household furnishings will be acceptable.

An informal reception will be held from 3 to 5 o'clock at Wesley House and the following ladies composing the executive committee will be the hostesses of the occasion: Mrs. E. J. Heath, Mrs. W. A. Albright, Mrs. Luke Johnson, Mrs. J. N. McEachern, Mrs. W. R. Hammond, Mrs. E. W. Brogdon, Mrs. C. A. Mauck, Mrs. W. M. Jenkins, Mrs. A. L. Norris, Mrs. Sage Hardin, Mrs. J. E. Bivins, Miss Susie Wells, Mrs. R. J. Bates, Dr. Florence Truax, Miss Willie May Bridwell, Mrs. Frank Attee, Mrs. J. C. Kinsie, Mrs. H. W. Grant and Miss Eloise Guyton.

The physicians of the medical staff and Methodist ministers will assist in receiving.

All interested are cordially invited.

Georgians Draw With the Jackets In Great Game

Two Teams Battle for Thirteen Innings to 1 to 1 Count, Each Team Counted Its Single Run on a Steal of Home, Senter Opposes Hitchcock

One of the largest gatherings that ever witnessed a college baseball game in these parts journeyed out to Grant field Saturday afternoon in the hopes of seeing a good game of ball between two ancient rivals, Tech and Georgia, in the first clash of the season between the two teams. This gathering of spectators was not disappointed.

Before proceeding further, accept the following vital statistics on this battle. It resulted in a tie of 1 to 1, after thirteen innings of futile striving to break a decision toward either team.

When the crowd began to gather for the clash comment was heard here and there that the condition of the ground, somewhat heavy from the steady pour of rain on Friday, was rather unfortunate, seeing that other conditions were so favorable. But if the crowd took in such a minor detail before the fray started, it could not recall, after Umpire Frank Browning announced at the close of the thirteenth inning that hostilities were off, because of encroaching darkness, that any detail had been lacking.

For those who went out with the expectation of seeing their favorites tear the cover off the ball, and scuttle around the bases, the matinee was a disappointment. But for those who journeyed out with the expectation of seeing either Jim Senter or Ed Hitchcock stand the opposing forces on their heads the melee was a brilliant and dazzling spectacle.

The game was essentially a pitchers' battle. The following plain facts prove the truth of this assertion more clearly than any or all lines of argument that might be cited: Hitchcock allowed four hits, whiffed thirteen batters, and walked but a single man. Senter allowed three hits, struck out eleven, and passed but three. Some pitching there all right.

Time and time again a slip here and there in the support of these two brilliant young stars put the opposition in position to shove runs over the plate, but, with the exception of one inning for each, they were always equal to the emergency of pulling out of the hole. Sometimes relief came in the nature of a strikeout. At other times weak taps to the infield for a third out relieved the situation, and ofttimes, when the case looked bad, a fast double play by the supporting cast pulled the chestnuts out of the fire.

On the other hand, with the pitching almost airtight from beginning to end, it was brilliant work on the bases that permitted even the two runs counted to issue over the plate. By a coincidence a stolen base, and the last lap on the journey around the bases at that, counted the run for both teams.

Georgia got here in the very first round. "Blue" Spurlock, an Atlanta boy, led the batting order for the Athenians, and coaxed a pass out of Senter to start things. Clements got his while the getting was good. It was a single, that sent Spurlock to second. George Harrison another Atlanta contribution to the Georgian array sacrificed the runners along. On Henderson's tap to Hill Spurlock was run down between third and home. Clements took third. With two down, he and Henderson worked a successful double steal, Clements scuttling over with the first run of the game.

Work quite as brilliant if not more so, enabled the Jackets to count in the third. Edgar Montague singled to start things, and was sacrificed by Morrison. Senter tapped to Hitchcock, and Montague moved on to third. Hill was making no notable progress against Hitchcock's benders, and the Jacket captain elected to try a steal of home himself, enabling by pep to get a man going to second. His attempt was successful, and he registered the run that tied the count and carried the battle over four extra rounds.

From that time on there was nothing further doing in the way of denting spikes in the rubber at home. In the fifth the Jackets got a man to second with one down, when Spence singled and stole. But Montague fouled to Holden and Morrison rolled to Harrison. Again in the ninth they worked a man as far as second with one down, when Witherington landed on the baseline. Mark on Clements' wild throw of his grounder. But the next two men were unable to shove him over. Up in the tenth, runners were placed on first and second with none gone, but Hitchcock fired to a thing but will for Senter and Montague died in the inning, after having retired Morrison on an infield tap.

Meanwhile the Georgians got men to third and second in the fifth with none down. Erwin walked, and Gillis landed on first on C. Smith's error. But Erwin was trapped at the plate on Holden's grounder to Hill. Torbet was sent back on strikes, and Spurlock could do no better than a grounder which Hill passed to Witherington for the third out. The same combination of passing and grab error by C. Smith put runners on first and second in the seventh, but Witherington pulled Hitchcock off second. Morrison pegged Erwin out trying to steal. Clements reached first on an error by Holland who had replaced Witherington in the twelfth, and was sacrificed to second, but this time C. Smith grabbed Henderson's liner and completed a double on Clements by tagging the bag. Both innings appeared to be going so good or better at this period than at any previous stage of the game. The crowds' nerves were all numbed up over the situation, and darkness was approaching. After a consultation, Umpire Browning called the game.

Yale Grid Coaches Unearth Find

NEW HAVEN, May 8.—Eighty candidates for the Yale varsity football team who have been hard at work in the spring practice for three weeks ended their drill the best week with a series of contests in kicking, passing and catching punts.

James Braden, of Washington, Pa., won the all around championship with a series of performances that astonished the coaches. He made the only perfect score in drop kicking, placed six out of eight kicks from placement at different angles squarely across the bar and did well in the other events. He is considered a find by the Yale coaches, who expect to play him in the back field next fall.

Six Flights in First Tourney At East Lake

Qualifying Round for Cooper Trophy at East Lake Brings Out Large Field--Geo. Adair Has Low Gross Score--Bradshaw Is Low Net

While the Athletic club was celebrating the opening of its new East Lake club house Saturday afternoon, it was also celebrating the opening of the spring golfing season by starting the first tournament of the year on the course. The qualifying round for the T. L. Cooper cup was played and brought out a large field of players.

George Adair turned in the low gross score with an 81. Lowry Arnold had the second low card with a 90. Truman Bradshaw had the low net score with a 72, while C. G. Lippold was next with a 76. Enough players qualified for six flights, and play in the regular matches begins this week.

Princeton Wins Eight-Oared Race

PRINCETON, N. J., May 8.—Princeton university won the annual intercollegiate eight-oared shell race on Carnegie lake today, Columbia finishing second and the Tech crew third. The distance was a mile and seven-eighths.

The three crews were close together until the three-quarter mile mark was reached when Princeton's even and powerful stroke began to tell and her crew forged to the front. The Tigers finished a length and a half ahead of Columbia, who beat the Pennsylvanians by a bare two feet.

Three of Locals Draw Releases

Bowden, Manning and Potts Are Players to Go--Manager Smith's Sister Critically Ill

Following the game at Ponce de Leon Saturday afternoon Manager Smith announced that three of the players who are now on the Cracker roster will be sent elsewhere before Wednesday. These are Outfielder Simon Bowden, Pitcher Ed Manning and Infielder Claude Potts. Manning and Bowden are the property of the St. Louis Americans, and will be turned back to Manager Rickey. Potts has been given his "days' notice, and will be given his outright release.

Pitcher Herbert Kelly failed to put in his appearance Saturday as was expected, but will probably be here by game time Monday. Just when Perryman will arrive is not known, as the Browns will have to go through the formality of obtaining waivers on him. The release of Bowden, Manning and Potts cuts the squad to fifteen, but another man will have to go before Wednesday, if Kelly reports not how he can leave. He has several deals pending which should materialize within the next few days, and feels the imperative that he stay here and see them through.

Auburn Wins Three-a-Day

Donahue's Charges Win Morning Game From Clemson and Double Bill in Afternoon

AUBURN, Ala., May 8.—Auburn assumed the lead for the baseball championship of the S. I. A. A. today by winning two games in the afternoon after taking the first of the series this morning from Clemson. The afternoon games were interesting and exciting, Auburn taking the first 3 to 1 and the second 2 to 0. Basore and Price were steady in the pinches, and while Schachte was in good form, the hits off his delivery were timely. Homers by Hairston in the first game and M. L. Bonner in the second practically won the two games.

Sensational fielding catches by Steed and D. Milligan were prominent while the support the Auburn team gave their pitchers was faultless.

Auburn's record of winning three games in one da yis unique besides adding to the string of victories, which now total seven with only one defeat. Her record against non S. I. A. A. teams is two victories, ten defeats and one tie.

Hairston's hit into the excavations for the new gymnasium was the longest ever made on the Auburn field, and christened the gym with victory.

Donahue's men showed that the infield was not steady in the pinches.

Alabama Wins Two From Miss. Aggies

Lookouts Pull Rally in Sixth And Win First

Crackers Get Away to 3-Run Lead in First but Are Overhauled in Sixth--Johnston Started Fireworks With Homer Over Signs in Right

Springing a batting rally in the sixth round, and aided by several errors of judgment on the part of the Crackers, the Lookouts won the opening game of the series from the Crackers Saturday at Poncey by a count of 8 to 5. The game was a repetition of the many the local crew has lost so far this season. After getting away to a three run lead in the opening round, and apparently playing great ball, they went to pieces in the sixth frame and allowed the Moosemen to win out.

Aside from the fact that, according to the box score, hits won the game for the Lookouts, at least two of the runs could have been cut off, if a little better teamwork existed on the Cracker outfit. In the sixth frame, after the first man had hit safely, the next two reached first on infield hits, which if they had been properly fielded would have saved at least two runs.

After Harris had singled, McCormick laid down a bunt in front of the plate, and both Manning and Smith went after the pellet and each hesitated about picking it up until the man was safe. The next batter, laid down a bunt which Dent got in plenty of time to catch the man at third, but Tullos had come in to field the bunt also and no one was on third. No one apprised Dent of this fact either and consequently, the runner had ample time to reach first, filling the sacks. Then Caveny kicked in with a two-base wallop, and two men counted. Caveny and Graff counted when Kitchen singled sharply to right field.

Although the Crackers scored two more runs after this, the life was taken out of them after the Moosemen had counted five runs, and after the sixth frame they could do nothing at all with the hurling of Harding. Several times they had excellent chances to score, but the failure of the batters to wallop the pill in the pinches ruined their chances.

In the first frame, after the locals had scoted three runs, with Sid Smith anchored on first, Bisland lined one down first base line that looked like a sure two-bagger, but Harris made a pretty stab of the pill and doubled Smith off first. Again in the seventh frame, with Dent on second, Lee on first, and one down, Eibel rolled a slow roller to Caveny, who threw to Lusk, catching Lee, and Lusk completed the play by hurling to Harris, completing a very fast double. The Atlanta player kicked very strenuously on the decision by Rudderham on Eibel at first, but it availed them nothing. The decision was very close. The Crackers also kicked in with one double. In the third inning, after Elberfeld had walked, Johnston hit a sharp grounder to Williams, who touched the Kid on the line and doubled Jimmy at first. This was a fast play.

Other fielding features of the matinee included a good catch by Williams of a short fly back of second, Speaking of Williams, he had an unusually good day in the field, handling three hard chances in jam-up style. Williams also secured two safe hits during the melee. One of them was quite a freak. In the fifth round, he popped one that appeared easy for Manning to get, but which continued to soar until it was past the pitchers' box, and fell safe for a hit.

To Harris, Moccasin Bend's first sacker goes the credit for the hitting features of the afternoon. Five times this player faced the pitcher and on four attempts hit safely, one of which was a double, and came at a very opportune time. The other time he came to the bat he hit a hard grounder to Eibel, and when this worthy leet the ball escape his fingers he was safe. The ball was a hard hit one, Eibel was all set, and should have gotten it. Jimmy Johnston home run, came at a time over the Randolph Rose sign in right field, and Caveny's double in the fifth frame were other features.

Manning, who started for the Crackers, pitched fairly good ball for the first four rounds, but in the fifth weakened, and after the first two men had connected safely in the sixth frame, Bill yanked him and substituted Dent. Dent pitched good ball from the one could desire, and deserved a better verdict. It was simply hard luck that a couple of scratch hits were made off his offerings while he was in the box, and that he struck out two men in this round. His hurling for the rest of the game was also very good, and the only hits he were secured off his delivery in the six innings he was in the box.

Yale Track Team Defeats Princeton

PRINCETON, N. J., May 8.—Princeton met defeat at the hands of Yale today in their annual track meet by 62 to 42. Pronounced superiority of the Yale men in some events, coupled with their all round ability was sufficient to decide the meet. The visitors took all three places in the 100-yard dash, the broad jump and the two-mile run.

Whitney Filly Wins Ky. Derby

Regret, Owned by Harry Payne Whitney, Beat Good Field in Turf Classic--First Filly to Win Big Race

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 8.—Leading all the way from the rise of the barrier, Harry Payne Whitney's Regret, daughter of Broomstick-Jersey Lightning, won the Kentucky derby today over a mile and a quarter course at Churchill Downs. Her margin of victory over Pebbles, James G. Butler's colt, was two lengths, with Schuyler L. Parson's gelding Sharpshooter a half length behind. Her time was 2:05 2-5, three seconds slower than the track record.

Regret achieved a success no other starter of her sex had been able to record in the history of the Derby. The gross value of the stake was $14,900. The net value to the winner was $11,450.

The field was the largest that ever started in the Derby. Seven of the best three-year-olds of the east met ten of the west's star performers in that division, and the result was a complete victory for the eastern contingent. Royal II, an imported English colt, entered by Jefferson Livingston, of Cincinnati, was fourth, with Emerson Cochran, a Kentucky colt, fifth.

Mr. Whitney witnessed his filly's victory.

Regret was favorite in the betting, but so open was the contest thought to be that $2 winning mutuel tickets paid $7.30.

Track Athletes Break Records

BALTIMORE, May 8.—Four South Atlantic intercollegiate records were broken and two others equalled in the South Atlantic intercollegiate athletic meet here today. University of Virginia won with 66 points; Virginia Polytechnic, second, 24 points; Johns Hopkins, third; 20 1-6 points. The new records are:

One Hundred and Twenty-yard Hurdle—Cronley, University of Virginia, 15 1-5 seconds.

Two-mile Run—Chinn, Virginia Polytechnic, 9 minutes, 56 2-5 seconds.

Shot-put—Barker, University of Virginia, 42 feet 7 inches.

Discus Throw—Barker, University of Virginia, 116 feet 6 inches.

Harvard Loses Star Lineman

BOSTON, May 8.—John A. Gilman, a prominent lineman on the 1913 football team at Harvard, upon whom the coaches had been counting for next fall, has dropped out of college and there are fears that he will not figure again in athletics at the Cambridge university.

Gilman has had a career of ups and downs at Cambridge. Before the end of his sophomore year he was dropped because of his studies, but went hard at work again and was reinstated last fall, but was on probation and so was unable to play football. This spring he got into more scholastic troubles and was kept off the pitching staff of the baseball nine on that account. Now he has dropped out of college to take a tutoring position.

Baron Southpaw Allows but Two Hits--Gulls Down Vols, Pelicans Beat Travelers

BIRMINGHAM, ALA., May 9.—Karl Black pitched invincible ball for Birmingham this afternoon against Memphis and won by the score of 9 to 0. Black allowed the visitors but two hits, one a double by Manager Lord and struck out nine. Only 29 men faced the local southpaw and Lord was the only Memphis player to reach second base. Goulait for the visitors was batted hard and timely.

New Hammer Record

ORONO, Me., May 8.—Throwing the hammer 173 feet 7 1-4 inches, H. H. Bailey, of University of Maine, broke the record of the intercollegiate Amateur association of America today at a dual track meet, in which Maine defeated Bates 87 to 39. The former record was 173 feet 6 inches, made by Lee Talbott, of Pennsylvania, in 1910.

Alton Pitches in Form for Babies and Hits Well--Peaches Win From Augusta Tourists

ALBANY, Ga., May 8.—Alton, Albany's youngster southpaw was in rare form today while Smallwood, who opposed, was wild, the locals winning the opening game of the series by the score of 6 to 1. In the second inning, after Smallwood had filled the bases with two base on balls and a hit batter, with two down, Alton drove in the first two runs with a single. Three bases on balls and three hits proved Smallwood's undoing in the sixth.

Mack Takes Look At College Players

NEW YORK, May 8.—Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, was a mute but interested spectator at the game between Holy Cross and Fordham at Fordham field a few days since. The former team won, 5 to 3. Mack sat in the grand stand and watched the game intently. When asked to name the prospect, or prospects, he was watching the famous manager said he could not divulge the name of the player he has spread his net for. Judging by the manner in which he viewed it it is believed he is after a Holy Cross pitcher, as he seemed to pay particular attention to the work of the visiting box men. Daley and McCarthy divided the pitching burden for the winners. Fordham getting only five hits off their combined efforts.

Red Sox Release Two

BOSTON, May 8.—Walter Rehg and Pat Haley of the Red Sox have been sent to the Providence club under an optional agreement, as it was thought that they would be better off doing a little regular work than sitting on the bench all summer. Both are grand good ball players and will return at the close of the International season, and before that if the Red Sox should need their services. Rehg was the best pinch hitter that the Red Sox had.

If the Feds invade New York next year, as the plan is now, the fans of Gotham will have to be handed a winning team or they will not look at the new league, after having championship ball from the Giants and the Yankees.

Wild Pitch Scores Winning Run for Boston--Pirates Win Fourth Straight--Dodgers Defeat Phillies

BOSTON, May 8.—The Boston Nationals won in the eleventh inning from New York today 4 to 3. The Giants had tied the score in the ninth and had taken the lead in their half of the eleventh on Fletcher's double and Burns' hit. Gowdy's double, Gilbert's speed in beating out a bunt, Moran's hit, a sacrifice by Egan and a wild pitch by Schauer was the combination which produced Boston's tieing and winning runs. Marquard allowed Boston only three hits in seven innings.

CRAYCROFT WINS.

Craycroft defeated Wesley in a hard fought pitchers' battle up until the eighth inning, when Crisson, on the mound for the Wesleyans, weakened. Wilder, for the Craycroft team, pitched air-tight ball at all times, fanning 16 men and yielding only three hits. The Craycrafters rallied in the eighth scoring three runs and came back in the ninth with five more. Features were the hitting of Smith and Wilder for Craycraft and jam-up support given both hurlers.

Kauff Back in Line Up for Losers--St. Louis and Buffalo Break Even--Newfeds and Pittfeds Win

BROOKLYN, May 8.—Kansas City defeated Brooklyn 8 to 5 today by bunching hits off the three Brooklyn pitchers The Brooklyns got thirteen hits off Cullop but they were not able to overcome the lead.

Bennie Kauff was back in the Brooklyn line up for the first time since his jump to the New York Giants, his subsequent suspension and reinstatement. He played a brilliant fielding game and made a single with bases full.

Easterly was ordered from the game for protesting too vigorously over a decision by Umpire Corcoran.

Toledo May Get A. A. Club Again

TOLEDO, May 8.—There is plenty of evidence lurking around here that the Cleveland Spiders will be installed at Swayne field here before the month is past, and that the Indians and Spiders will make their debut here on Monday following Decoration day, when the two teams are scheduled to play in Indianapolis, the games being transferred from Cleveland because of a conflict in dates with the American league team in Cleveland.

E. S. Bernard, vice president of the Cleveland Baseball company, and representative of Charles W. Somers, the owner of the American association and the American league teams in Cleveland, has been here twice to confer with Toledo men relative to the sale of the association team to Toledo.

There is more or less secrecy concerning the proposed deal, except that Somers quoted a price for the team that was much lower than the Toledo men thought he would offer. Roger Bresnahan, manager of the Chicago Cubs, who aspires to be one of the owners of a Toledo team and to manage it, visited here a couple of days ago, but he did not make public the reason of his trip other than to say he came to see his father.

Another point that indicates a transfer of the club is that Swayne field is being put in order, and the park will be ready on a moment's notice to become the home of the Spiders.

Cornell Defeats Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, May 8.—Strength in the weight events enabled Cornell to win from Harvard in the annual dual meet today, 59 1-3 to 57 2-3. Six dual records were broken, five of them being better than last year.

ANOTHER EXPOSURE.

After the exposure of Leopold Hoernschmeyer, alias Lee Magee, manager of the Brookfeds, it developed that several major league ball players are playing under assumed names, believing that their own names would not look so well in print or would be so hard to pronounce that they would never become popular idols.

A fan from Traverse City, Mich., writes that "Bunny" Brief, the new first baseman of the White Sox, has been deceiving the public in a scandalous manner. This fan says that he has known "Brief" all his life and that his real name is Tony Gretkowski, and he also tells how he came to be known as Brief.

When one of Tony's older brothers went to a factory to apply for a job about the time "Bunny" was in knee trousers, he was asked his name, and when he said Gretkowski, the boss was staggered and decided he could not be bothered with such a name about the place. He liked the appearance of the lad, however, and told the timekeeper to "Make it Brief," meaning to cut the name down to Gret or something else that would answer the purpose. The timekeeper wrote Brief, and all the rest of the boys, five of them, have been known as Brief since that day. In Traverse City "Bunny" is known as "Chi," because from the time he learned to play ball he was always talking about playing with Chicago. Now he is with the White Sox and making good in great style.

Poor Pitching Chief Factor in Athletics' Fall

Strong Pitching Has Always Been Chief Consideration With Mack's Winning Teams -- Youngsters Are Falling Short of Standard Set for Them--Wildness Is Besetting Sin

NEW YORK, May 8.—With the Athletics down in a rut and wobbling around in the mire of the second division like a wounded duck and with no sense of direction, Connie Mack, the tall, lank leader of the Philadelphians, is now realizing what it means to be shy a pitching staff. This is almost a new experience for him. In his winning years he not only had a great scoring machine, but also a great hurling department. He still has quite a scoring machine, but the weak and defenseless pitching is rendering it almost useless.

Two of Connie's new crop of pitchers got in front of the restless and excited Yankees in Wednesday's game and became practically exhausted by their own efforts as the Yanks rang up their sixth straight victory. They gave the Yankees a ball game and at the same time gave a sorry exhibition of pitching. It was the first game that had been handed to the Yankees this season, and they were able to make good use of it. But as Connie watches these young sprouts he must heave a deep sigh for the loss of Bender, Plank and Coombs.

Bullet Joe Bush, who once pitched a great game of ball against the Giants in a world's series, and has never done much of anything since in the pitching line, was the first offender. Rube Bressler, Eddie Plank's southpaw understudy, was the other, and both could have been indicted for what they did in the fair name of pitching. Between them they used up the stock on hand of bases on balls.

Bush issued eight passes before Connie Mack finally got on to him. In the fourth inning he passed four men in succession and forced in a run. It was about this time that Connie discovered that he was not pitching for the Athletics, but for the Yankees, and had him removed. Bressler issued the other six passes in the total of fourteen for the day.

Even with Collins and Baker missing the Athletics are still quite a hitting club. At the outset they were still regarded as pennant contenders, if not pennant winners, but their sorry showing has forced a revision of the dope. With the kind of pitching they are, and have been getting all season, they will be lucky if they finish near the first division.

Bender, Plank and Coombs may have pitched most of their great games in the service of Connie Mack, but they are a long ways from being through. In their new jobs they are pitching some good ball. Connie may not feel a keen desire to furnish Philadelphia fans with another pennant after what occurred last season, but he no doubt realizes that his old pitchers would brace his club now and keep it out of the rut.

As far as the Yankees are concerned they would be pleased to have Connie Mack and the Athletics spend the summer here. In all their travels through the east the Mackmen have proved the easiest picking. The Yanks have won five out of six games from the champions. A couple of soft spots are reported to exist in the west, but why go looking for them when you have one close by?

American Assn. In Secret Pact

Recent Indication Show That Class A. A. League Framed With Feds Last Season

NEW YORK, May 8.—While the inquiry to determine the status of Benny Kauff is being pursued, the trouble which was precipitated by the jumping of the Federal league star back into the lap of organized baseball is bringing about some rather surprising revelations in baseball politics.

For one thing, it has just been brought to light that during the year or more that the Feds and organized baseball have been waging a bitter warfare, there has existed, under cover, an agreement between the outlaws and at least one club, if not an entire league, which practically amounted to a peace pact.

According to information that has been gained as the result of the controversy at the Polo Grounds the Indianapolis club of the American association had an agreement with the outlaws last season whereby the one would not touch or interfere with the players of the other, and it is said that this agreement even went so far as to include the entire American association. Such an agreement, if it really existed, was undoubtedly known in baseball circles, but it is coming to public attention now for the first time.

At any rate the existence of this agreement is pointed out now as the real cause for blocking the first attempt of the Giants to get Kauff after he had become an outlaw. The agreement had been entered into for the mutual protection of the Indianapolis clubs after Kauff had jumped and the war had grown hot. McGraw decided he wanted Kauff. He had originally held a lien on the player, but it had by that time been dropped because it was held on the strength of the old reserve clause, which was ruled against by the courts.

The Giants opened negotiations for Kauff with the Indianapolis association club with a view to getting title to him in the event he could be snared from the Feds. President McGill, of the Indianapolis club, held the first call on Kauff in organized baseball, as it was that club he jumped to become a Fed.

McGill, it is understood, sent terms to the Giants on which he would give them the desired title so far as he was able to give title. These terms did not carry any guarantee that Kauff could be snared back from the Feds, and the Giants revised the terms and sent them back to McGill. The Giants asked for a guarantee that Kauff could be secured from the Feds through the legal claim the Indianapolis club held on him, and as they expected to pay a good price for the outfielder they wanted some protection for their investment. Although McGill had the same claim on Kauff as other clubs have held and enforced on players, he would not accept the terms and the deal for Kauff fell through.

This deal was conducted with such secrecy that nothing more than a rumor of it got into print. But the refusal of McGill to enforce his claim with a chance to sell a player at a good price and at a time when the Indianapolis club was losing heavily, is now regarded as substantiating the belief that an agreement existed in Indianapolis.

Spurt of Yanks Robs Giants of Popular Hold

With the American Leaguers Leading Race and Giants Floundering Badly, Latter Are Losing Popularity Among Fans -- McGraw Must Rally His Forces

NEW YORK, May 8.—Unless the Giants can recover and get up in the race, it will be a tougher year in the National league than any since the days when New York had a seventh-place team.

For years the Giants have been the big moneymakers in the league and because of that fact the league has made big money, for McGraw always has been able to attract the fans wherever he played in any part of the country.

It is different so far this year. The Giants are at the foot of the list and are going badly. The outlook is not any too good for them to get up very far. As a result, the fans of New York have quit cold and now Bill Donovan and his Yankees are the favorites.

If McGraw is unable to make a fight for the pennant before the end of the summer it is more than likely that Wild Bill and his followers will have won away from the Giants all of their old-time friends. Fans are fickle and turn quickly when a ball team begins to lose. It has been the history of the game from the start to the present time.

No matter how many pennants McGraw has won for New York since he took his jump from Baltimore many years ago, the fact that he can not now furnish the best amusement for the crowd relegates him to a back seat. New favorites have come into the life of the New York rooters and they are cheering their heads off for Bill Donovan and his team to stick to the top of the list and win the flag.

It was the desperation over the poor crowds and the inability to get his team going right that caused McGraw to sign Benny Kauff in direct opposition to the rules of the league. McGraw is of the opinion that New York City is the best city in the league, and he is right. He is also of the opinion that whatever he does there to improve the attendance at the games is done for the good of the league as much as for the New York club, and again he is partly right.

The only difference is that instead of doing it for the good of the league and for the good of the game in general, he does it for the sole benefit of the New York club and his own glory. It looks as if there will be a stormy season at the Polo grounds, because McGraw will act like a madman all season if he can not attract the crowds any other way.

It is to be a hard climb for the Giants if they do come to the front now. The Phillies can not be pushed aside easily. Pat Moran and his men are playing ball like fiends, and they are showing signs of being a real ball team. Even there are the Cubs in the running if Roger Bresnahan does not fall dead or some of his best players break their legs.

On top of the others the Braves will have to be reckoned with before the end of the season. Boston is settling its pitchers warmed up nicely for another long summer's work, and when the three strong teams get into the fight this summer are right again the Braves will be able to win many games. If the Giants are to come in much later than the others race, it will be necessary to brush the three above named teams aside to get in front of the race, and it will not be easy to do that.

The rise of smiling Bill Donovan may be the dawn of another day for the New York fans. Donovan is a very different kind of a leader from McGraw. If Wild Bill can keep his combination going the way it is at present he will have the big crowds and get the money for his club. It will not be smooth sailing for Bill if he is the popular man, though. The Yanks are using the Polo Grounds, and it will not be a pleasant home for the American leaguers if they steal the patronage.

The contract runs for this season, but it is a certainty that it will not be extended for another year if McGraw has anything to say about it. McGraw is the foxiest leader in the game today, and he is likely to make many shifts in his line before midseason if he can't win otherwise.

Fournier Still Leading Field

French Slugger Topping the American League Batters, Cobb Is Runner-Up--Maisel Leads in Stolen Bases

The use of Jacques Fournier, the husky Frenchman, regularly in the line up of the White Sox has not served to reduce his batting streak, and the big fellow is leading the rest of the leaguers in San Johnson's league. A team mate, Daly, tops him in the percentage table, but the latter has played in but nine games, while Fournier has the healthy average of .476 for games played through Wednesday of the past week.

Ty Cobb is really the runner-up, though. Pitcher Coveleski has five games and Jack Lapp is seven, stand between Tyrus and the leader. Cobb has a mark of .394, Tyrus has a load of 20 points over Joe Jackson, the Carolina rubber, who is on another campaign to beat the peach out for batting honors.

Sam Crawford, the Tiger terror, leads all in total bases. Wahoo Sam has slammed the ball for a total of 45 bases, compiled through five games, six triples and seventeen singles. He has not yet landed a homer. Fritz Maisel has picked up materially in his hitting, pulling up to the respectable mark of .290, and has likewise boosted his base stealing mark. He now has it against 9 for Cobb, who is second.

WEST POINT'S GREAT STAR ---RIPLEY

BY ROBERT L. RIPLEY.

Here is the sensation of the year; meet "Bob" Neyland. Cadet Robert R. Neyland, of West Point, is the most remarkable athlete since the days of Jim Thorpe. The tall, good looking son of Uncle Sam is the center of all eyes—particularly the eyes of baseball managers. You probably are aware, as Rube Marquard is, that Bob has tied the world's record of "nineteen straight" as a pitcher for the soldier boys. Neyland began his great winning streak after he lost a shutout game to Walsh, of Fordham college, back in 1913. He won the last three games that season, and last year won eight more, two of them shutouts. So far this year he has won eight games, three of them "whitewashers." This equals Marquard's famous record of nineteen successive wins.

Neyland is not only a great pitcher, but he is accomplished in most every branch of athletics. He is the champion heivyweight boxer of the West Point corps, and has made a name for himself in football history as a member of the army eleven. Bob and his team mate, Merillat, together with Pritchard, are regarded as the leading exponents of the forward pass on any gridiron.

The young cadet's accomplishments are further emphasized when one realizes the very little time the army boys have for practice. Life at West Point is an active one from 6 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night. Parades, classes, drills, and assemblies follow each other in rapid rotation, and the aspiring soldier-athlete is lucky to find a few hours a week to devote to his favorite pastime.

Neyland is from Greenville, Tex. He is six feet tall, and weighs 175 pounds. In his classes Bob is exceptionally brilliant, standing fifth in a class of 125. He hopes to find a place in the engineering corps after he is graduated, which is next year.

But the baseball men are after him, and who knows what his end will be!

Holding Men on Bases Big Part of Hurler's Job

Pitchers Who Allow Base Runners to Take Long Lead Off First Must Correct Fault or Stay in Bushes--Acquisition of Good Balk Motion One of Slabber's Most Valuable Assets

There are two things a manager strives to impress upon young pitchers: First, watch the bases; second, "have a look around."

The pitcher who is a success studies first his catcher's signs, glances around to see that all players are in position and know what is coming and then pitches. With men on bases he must do both these things, and always keep his eye on the runner. If the Tiger pitchers were as skilled in this respect as they are in zipping the ball past the batter, they would form a remarkable staff.

A pitcher who cannot hold runners close to the bases is a failure no matter how well he can pitch. To do this he must use trickery.

The balk rule, governing pitching, was designed to assist base runners on the theory that the fans want to see action and like to see attempts to steal bases. Permit a pitcher to use false motions toward the plate and he could catch four out of every five runners off first base, or else force them to stick so close to the base as to make stealing impossible.

The pitcher to succeed must outtrick the balk rule. He must balk without balking; deceive the runner into thinking he is going to pitch to the batter.

The most successful balk motions in the history of the game were those of Matty Kilroy, the great lefthander, Ed. Walsh and Clark Griffith. Billy Campbell, once with the Cincinnati Reds, was in the same class, but did not last long.

Walsh achieved his balk motion by long and painstaking efforts. It really was a balk, although it probably was not so called half a dozen times in four years. He did it with a queer hunching movement of the shoulder that led the runners to think he had started his pitch. To those in front of or behind him the balk was not noticeable.

Griffith developed a balk motion by long and painstaking efforts. It really was a balk, although it probably was not so called half a dozen times in four years. He did it with a queer hunching movement of the shoulder that led the runners to think he had started his pitch. To those in front of or behind him the balk was not noticeable.

Spectators often wondered why he caught runners. His throw to first was easy and seemingly a bit delayed. He had tricked the runner into starting and the rest was easy.

One of the funniest things in pitching craft was a trick pulled by Ed Reulbach. He had a green umpire working behind him at Brooklyn one day and he got that umpire's confidence. He asked the umpire to stand at one side and watch how the fast ball was breaking.

For three innings Reulbach kept that unsuspecting umpire standing two feet to his right and at time he called for a pitching sidearm so the batters' only background was the blue uniform of the ump, who was innocently helping Reulbach.

In order to encourage neatness and cleanliness among the riders who participate in the annual Goodfellowship tour of the Milwaukee Motorcycle club, a handsome silver trophy will be awarded largely on the strength of appearance at the end of the run.

TRIGGER AND TRAP

GEORGE L. LYONS.

Scoring 192 clay pigeons out of a possible 200, George L. Lyon, of the New York Athletic club, won the amateur trapshooting championship of America, at the club's Travers Island traps, last Saturday. Incidentally, Mr. Lyon also hung up a new record, beating last year's score of 188, which was made by Mr. R. L. Spotts, of the same club.

The runner-up of the contest was A. L. Chamberlain, of Bridgeport, Conn., who scored 190 of the clay birds. C. H. Newcomb, of Philadelphia, and A. E. Conley, of Buffalo, were tied for third place with a score of 189. The shoot-off, however, went to the former.

In the club or city team contest first honors went to the first five men from Philadelphia, by a score of 927 against one of 922 made by the New York Athletic club's team. The Smith Gun club of Jersey City took third place with a total of 887, while the Portland, Me., Gun club romped home fourth with a score of 884. Other clubs competing were from the Boston A. A., Baltimore and Bridgeport.

The best continuous run prize went to A. B. Richardson, who tallied 131, and the best average for the two days was credited to Mr. Lyon, who was first on both days.

The first ten men and the cities they represented, were as follows: Lyon, 192, New York; Chamberlain, Bridgeport, 190; Newcomb, Philadelphia, 189; Conley, Buffalo, 189; Randell, Portland, 188; Richardson, Dover, 187; Snow, Boston, 187; Heil, Philadelphia, 187; Foord, Philadelphia, 186; Burns, New York, 186.

Hughie Jennings made his tart in baseball as a catcher, but he did not last long in that position. He was shoved over to short to fill in and he made good in a hurry.

Johnson Will Not Oppose Baker's Return

PHILADELPHIA Pa. May 8.—If J. Franklin Baker wishes to return to the Athletics there is small probability that any obstacles will be placed in the way as far as being reinstated is concerned, judging from the nature of an interview given out in New York yesterday by Ban Johnson the autocrat of the American league, who conferred with Connie Mack.

"It is now up to Baker to keep faith with the Athletics," said Johnson. "He signed a contract in good faith and without any pressure. It was satisfactory at the time he signed it and it should be satisfactory now."

President Johnson was also optimistic about the chances of the Mackmen finishing high in the pennant race.

Kolehmainen Loses New Distance Record

NEW YORK, May 8.—The fifteen-mile record made by Hannes Kolehmainen at the Monument A. C. games at Celtic park recently will not be credited to the Finn, who lowered the time made by "Jim" Crowley several years ago. The International Federation rules, which have been adopted by the Amateur Athletic union, make Celtic park a short track. The old curb measurement of eighteen inches "inside actual" still remains, therefore no record exception made on a straightaway can be accepted unless the distance necessary to conform to the international rule has been added on by the competitors run the extra yards.

Groh Is Leading Nat'l Batters

Redleg Infielder Hitting .418, Tom Long Tied for Lead in Triples--Vic Saier Is Proving a Star

Heine Groh, the Cincinnati second sacker, continues to slug the ball at a savage clip, and is leading the way among the batters of the National league. Heinrich owns an average of .418 piled up in the first twenty games of the season. Bobby Schang, the Pittsburg catcher, is running him a very close second, being just one point behind him. Twenty-eight batters are hitting .300 or better for games played up through Wednesday of the past week.

Atlanta fans will be pleased to learn that Tommy Long is still keeping up his good work with the willow. Tom is sticking for an average of .328, an dhas included in his clouts five three-base smashes, being tied with Vic Saier for the lead in triples. Also he is close up to the leaders in stolen bases, with four.

Saier, by the way, is proving the sensation of the league in offensive tactics. He has landed 24 safe hits for a total of 49 bases, including 9 doubles, 5 triples and 2 homers. Furthermore, he has stolen 6 bases, leading the league in base running, and in total bases in batting.

Memphis Crew Swatting Ball

Four of the Chicks Appear among First Five Batters, Jenkins Only Cracker Over .300

The most notable feature brought out in the figures on batting in the Southern league for the past week is the heavy clubbing which certain members of the Memphis Chicks are doing. Up through games played on Wednesday of the past week, no less than four of the Bluffton crew are sticking right around the top. In fact, this quartet are really bunched in the-lead. Cruthers tops the list, followed by Manager Lord, Allison and Andreen. Pitcher Smith, of New Orleans is wedged in between Lord and Allison, but he has played in only a few games. All players are now below the .400 mark.

While the Chicks are conspicuous for their heavy hitting thus far, the Crackers are equally as notable for their absence. Only one member of the clan, Jenkins, appears in the list of .300 clubbers, and he is not being used regularly. Sid Smith, with .294, is the next in line six points below the mark.

Hemingway, Sylvester and Sloan are having a merry race for base stealing honors. The first two named are tied with 9 each, while Sloan is only one behind them.

Bris Lord and Paulette top the list in total bases with 46. Cruthers is close behind with 43. Paulette likewise leads in the number of hits registered with 35.

Cast-offs Would Help McGraw

Manager of Giants Has Turned Adrift More Players Who Later Made Good Than Any Other

NEW YORK, May 8.—Manager McGraw, of the Giants, believes that his team is certain to come back strong and be in the race for the National league pennant. But McGraw would no doubt like very much to have some of the ball players he has turned loose within the last three seasons. There is no question about McGraw's ability as a manager, and yet he has permitted more star players to get away from him than any other major league leader.

Several reasons may be advanced for this apparent lack of ability to size up a ball player, but McGraw's probable explanation would be that he is a great believer in combinations. He has always contended, and reiterated his statement just two days ago, that all the star players in the country are of no use to a club unless they fit into a certain style of play and are willing to hustle.

A man may be a star of the greatest magnitude and yet be of no use to a man whose system works like that of the Giants. His championship teams have had men in the line up who did not compare, in the eyes of the critics and fans, with another player that McGraw has released, but they fit in right with his style of play, and while not as brilliant as their predecessor in individual ability, they are of far greater value to McGraw.

McGraw has made his mistakes and serious ones, but he contends that of all the men he has released in the last five years, the only ones he would take back are Chesbro, Herzog and Ernie Shore, though one must believe that George Chalmers and a few others might be acceptable to McGraw, particularly with his team in its present crippled condition.

A fine ball club could be formed from men passed up by McGraw in the last four years. Some of the pitchers that have drawn releases or been traded by the Giants on the ground that they have outlived their usefulness are stars such as Rick Rudolph, of the Braves; Chalmers, of the Phillies; Ernie Shore, of the Red Sox, a sensational performer for a youngster; Al Demaree and "Red" Ames. Catchers Gowdy and Jack Adams were let out by McGraw, but the former was a first baseman at the time.

Heinie Groh, of the Reds, one of the best infielders in the National league, Buck Herzog were passed up by McGraw, to say nothing of Milton Stock, Al Bridwell, Jake Daubert, Beals Becker, Bob Bescher, Steve Evans and numerous unexercised options on men now starring in the major leagues.

It was made especially to please you and refresh you and to quench your thirst. That it was made for you is proved by the fact that each of some ninety million Americans claim it was made especially for their delight.

France would put the ban even on near alcohol.

To Europe the sinking of the Lusitania is merely another incident of the war.

The horse may become extinct in time, but the donkey will remain with us until society has ceased to be.

The Sinking of the Lusitania.

Nothing in ancient or modern warfare has so profoundly shocked the civilized world as the destruction of the Lusitania. The fact that her destruction was deliberately and carefully planned with knowledge that she carried more than two thousand people, non-combatants, and innocent of giving aid or comfort in any way to Germany's enemies, aggravates the crime and adds horror to the tragedy. Even though the Lusitania was a British ship, she was entitled to the treatment accorded enemy ships under the rules of civilized and international warfare. Her passengers assumed the risk of the ship being captured, but nobody supposed even though Germany had given warning, that the lives of innocent people in no way responsible for the war, composed in large part of citizens of neutral and friendly countries, would be ruthlessly sacrificed without warning and without opportunity to escape instant and horrible death.

Never before have noncombatant passenger vessels been placed upon the same footing as hostile warships and sunk with all on board without a moment's notice. The merchantmen of warring nations have always been considered legitimate prizes for capture, but it has remained for Germany to slaughter noncombatants and neutrals intentionally and ruthlessly. Under no flag heretofore have such things been done other than under the black flag of the skull and crossed bones.

Even though the tragedy happened in a war zone prescribed by Germany and even though the passengers had warning not to embark, Germany can secure no justification from this. Warning that a crime is to be committed cannot make it any less a crime. And even though there were British reservists on board as claimed, going home to join the colors, and even though the vessel carried war materials, these were subject to capture under the war rules heretofore prevailing, but can under no sane consideration be made the occasion for the sacrifice of the lives of neutrals, noncombatants, women and children.

The loss of American life with the Lusitania comes as a climax to a series of happenings for which Germany must account to this government. First was the death of Leon C. Thrasher, an American citizen who perished when the British ship Falaba was sunk, next was the wreck of the American grain ship Frye with its cargo, then the dropping of bombs on the American steamer Cushing and the recent sinking of the American vessel Gulflight with the loss of three American lives.

It is too early to forecast the sober ultimate conclusion of the people of the United States or this government. The horror of the tragedy is too fresh and we cannot at this hour think soberly and wisely on the right and duty of the United States. Suffice it to say that the situation is graver than at any time since the war began. What will be the outcome nobody can foretell. But whatever else may happen, the good name, honor and dignity of the United States will be protected. We have abiding faith in the wisdom of the president. We believe that he and his cabinet, will meet the difficulties that now confront us with wisdom, justice and moderation.

The fact cannot be blinked that the series of incidents ending with the slaughter of American citizens on the Lusitania have brought the honor and dignity of this nation into a grave situation. A halt must be called to this mad German disregard of our rights upon the seas.

Whatever else this war may develop, two things seem to stand out conspicuously at this moment. One is that the Germans have for the time being abandoned all rules of civilized warfare, at least so far as noncombatants are concerned. Another is that the methods of sea-fighting will in the future be largely if not completely revolutionized.

The next national event on the program will be the Southeastern fair.

Our own unofficial calculation is that enough rain has fallen to keep up the water supply for some time to come.

Good Turns With New Twists.

The Atlanta Rotary club not only lives up to its name but does more besides. It is the organization that makes things "turn," but in addition to this it has a way of imparting to the rotary motion new and distinctly interesting twists. While other cities give Home Coming celebrations, the Rotarians, with the assistance of other public-spirited organizations, have staged for Atlanta a "Newcomers' Night" in the form of a banquet at the Auditorium on the evening of May 11, at which all persons who have come to Atlanta to live since January 1, 1914, will be guests, and the rest of Atlanta, or the Old Timers, will be hosts.

Thus putting the reverse English on the civic pride exalted in home-coming weeks, is characteristic of the spirit that animates Atlanta's growth as a municipality. In the days of the cave-man, "stranger" was synonymous with "enemy." The test of any community's advancement is to be found in how far it has succeeded in reversing this sentiment of savagery and in looking upon strangers not as enemies but as friends, who are to become fellow-workers in community progress and productive additions to community wealth and welfare.

The Rotarians fall into the class of forward-looking men everywhere esteemed as representative of the topmost worth in citizenship. None more readily than they bow in homage to the memory of the founders of Atlanta and of the great men of its past who are part and parcel of its present eminence, but they realize that the achievements of by-gone days cannot suffice for the days that now are, much less for the days that are to come. And whether the great deeds of Atlanta's future are to be wrought by newcomers or natives cannot be known and matters little, but what is known with certainty and what does matter a great deal is the enthusiasm, the courage, the inspiration that must surely result from the coming together, the hearty co-operation of all Atlanta's citizens, old and new, as contemplated in the Rotarians' entertainment. The spirit of aggressive unity is what has characterized Atlanta's past. The celebration next Tuesday will do much to nurture this spirit to greater strength for greater deeds. All honor to the Rotarians. They have done Atlanta more than one good "turn" and will undoubtedly do many more.

Money may be the cause of all misery, but a lot of people are trying to get at the cause.

The Tremendous Stakes.

Shakespeare wrote of the war of Henry the Fifth as having "a kingdom for a stage, princes to act and monarchs to behold the swelling scene." The war that now grips the Powers of Europe has the world for a stage, races and empires to act, and the very life of nations hangs upon its consequence. It is doubtful, indeed, that in all modern history, with the possible exception of the Napoleonic wars, there was ever a struggle of such vast import and certainly there has been none, either in modern or ancient times, so gigantic in its reach or so terrible in its course. Each of the nations involved is fighting for existence. To each of them, defeat would mean not merely the loss of treasure or land but the death of national hopes and aspirations.

At the center of the stage stands Germany, struggling to maintain the ambitious plans which her statesmen have been weaving since the days of the Iron Chancellor. Her fortunes as a world Power are in the balance. If she loses, her colonial interests are doomed, her long-purposed "March to the East" must be abandoned, her dream of supremacy on the sea will be shattered, and she will be bound more tightly than ever within her crowded European confines.

"Expansion" has been the watchword of German diplomacy and arms ever since the empire was molded. That was the aim of Bismarck's "blood and iron." That was the motive behind the war against Denmark in 1863 and behind the war against France in 1870, Denmark paying with the provinces of Schleswig and Holstein, and France with Alsace and Lorraine. That, too, was a determining factor in Germany's entry into the present war. She espoused Austria's cause for the reason, partly at least, that her own and Austria's interests in the Balkans were closely identified. "The Kaiser's government," says a contemporary and impartial historian, "believes in the Pan-Germanism that means German influence extending through the Balkans to the Aegean Sea, and Germany in control of Dutch and Belgian harbors." With a clear path from North Sea ports to the Aegean, and thence into Asia Minor, Germany would possess incomparable power both in the politics and commerce of the world; indeed, she would be well on the way toward becoming a world colossus.

The very vastness of her design, however, would make Germany's defeat the more disastrous to her. Her conquerors would see to it that the whole fabric of her ambition was crushed. Regardless of what she might lose or keep in colonial possessions, her great military machine would be destroyed, her navy would be reduced, the entire system into which for years she has poured her ambition would be blotted out. The Germany thus left would be an utterly different Germany from the one that entered the war.

Austria-Hungary has long been considered on the verge of collapse as a dual monarchy. Its internal affairs are disordered and threatening. In parts of the Empire a spirit of revolution is astir, checked for the moment by the war, but nevertheless deep-seated and alert. It is expected, therefore, that if the war goes against Austria and Germany, the present monarchy will be overthrown.

Great Britain also is fighting for national existence in the broader sense of the term. She realizes keenly enough that the defeat of the Allies would place Germany in possession of Belgium ports (which Napoleon described as "a pistol aimed at the heart of England") and, perhaps, in possession of Dutch ports as well. She knows that defeat in this war would mean the end of her now undisputed sea sway, and the breaking apart of her earth-wide empire. Great Britain feels, moreover, that the ideals of government and of civilization for which she stands would be overthrown, were Germany victorious. Never since the days of Napoleon, has she faced an issue of such life-and-death concern.

France likewise is in a struggle for all that means most to her national security and development. She remembers the harsh reprisals of Prussia in 1871—the billion-dollar tax and the snatching away of Alsace and Lorraine. She reckons rightly that if Germany again is in a position to dictate terms, French territory and freedom and hope for the years ahead will be sacrificed.

For the smaller nations involved, defeat would mean literally death. What consideration could Belgium hope for in the event of Germany's triumph? Her treaty rights afforded no protection when the Kaiser deemed it necessary, for military purposes, to invade Belgian territory. Treaty obligations were thrust aside as a mere "scrap of paper." Belgium has paid tragically enough already for her steadfastness to honor; but if the Allies are defeated she will pay the last vestige of her life as a nation, she will become a vassal province to the German Empire.

So, too, with Serbia. For years past, Austria has been encroaching upon the rights and territory of the little Balkan States. It is commonly believed, outside the Teutonic empires, that Austria's real purpose in precipitating the war was to gain new power and land, rather than to avenge the death of her crown prince. The assassination of the Archduke Franz Ferdinand was only an occasion or pretext. The Austrian Government believed, or pretended to believe, that this crime was the outcome of a conspiracy contrived, or at least countenanced, by the Serbian authorities. But Serbia offered the humblest possible apologies and full requital. All these, Austria cast aside and without pausing for negotiations toward peace began the war. Undoubtedly, then, if the Allies lose their fight Serbia will become a mere satrapy.

To Turkey, the failure of the German cause would mean nothing less than obliteration from Europe. In former crises, England's influence has saved Turkey from disaster. In 1878 the Russian army marched to the gates of Constantinople and doubtless would have entered, had not great Britain under Disraeli intervened. Also in the late Balkan wars British and French influence was exerted to modify the terms which the victors over Turkey presented. But today Turkey is at war with her old protectors, and unless the Teutons are triumphant her extinction as a European State is predestined.

Russia's stake is not so vital as that of the other nations, for Russia is marvelously rich in territory and natural resources, but her interest in the outcome is none the less important and far-reaching. Her commercial fortunes require a southern port as an outlet to the world's trade, and to acquire such a port has been her dream for centuries. To that end, her shrewdest diplomacy has been directed, and for that purpose she has sought and nurtured the friendship of her Slav neighbors in the Balkans. Without access to the Mediterranean, Russia's development cannot go duly forward; her ideals as a nation cannot be realized.

Final victory for the Allies will place Russia in control, if not in possession of Constantinople and thus will bring to pass the hope she has cherished so long. Victory for the Teutons, on the contrary, will be the death blow of that plan. And, so, the destiny of Russia is now in the balance.

Whatever the outcome of the present war, the geography, the politics and the fundamental life of Europe will be changed. There will be a death of systems and of ideals as well as a death of States. And a new era of history will begin.

Welcome, newcomers. It will be only a question of time before you become old-time Atlantians.

Last Fall and Now.

The wisdom of the "buy-a-bale" movement has been justified by the fact that cotton has approached the ten-cent mark. The movement at the start represented a fight against big odds and gigantic difficulties. It had its dark hours and its Jeremiahs. It was denounced as putting the south in the attitude of beggar and representing its condition as poverty stricken, all to its great injury.

The Manufacturers' Record, which was one of the severe critics of the movement and which is still of the opinion that "extravagance in the movement wrought an injury upon the south" nevertheless says:

The buy-a-bale movement where it was properly followed did have the effect of bringing about a holding of cotton by which thousands of growers avoided sacrificing their cotton at the prices that prevailed until the first of the year.

No one in other sections of the country who had been doing business here thought that the low price at which cotton was selling last fall would entirely bankrupt the south, but the business men of other sections did know full well that cotton was the money crop of the South and that if it should continue to sell at half its expected value there would be little or no trade for them here.

The injury of the buy-a-bale movement was supposed to be in informing other sections just how hard we were hit and in their consequent withdrawal of business activities here. This information was supposed to have leaked out only when the co-operation of other sections were asked for the buy-a-bale plan. But as a matter of fact it never leaked out at all. Everybody knew it all the time, could tell it at a mere glance at the price at which cotton was then selling.

The buy-a-bale movement prevented a complete demoralization of the cotton market and later fully justified itself in the return of almost normal prices. The only injury done the South in the connection with the movement was by those who lay back in the traces and refused to pull their share of the load.

THE RAGTIME CONTROVERSY

—BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

NEWS that a "Society for the Suppression of Ragtime Music in America" has been organized by the students of Bethany college brings to the fore again that ancient and ever-recurring dispute as to whether our popular music ought to make us proud or ashamed.

• • •

The average American certainly makes no secret of his love for syncopated tunes. He dances and dines to it, whistles and hums it; hurdy-gurdies screech it at him in the streets and brass bands blare it in parks and amusement places. Yet he is not satisfied, but must have it in his home, either "canned" or on the piano.

• • •

In view of this important part which ragtime plays in our daily life, it seems worth while to stop and inquire whether there is any promise and merit in the stuff, and what effect it is probably going to have upon us.

• • •

Experts are divided on the question. The students of Bethany college announce that they expect the movement which they have started to sweep the country. Although they seem apt to be disappointed in this, it is certain that they will find many sympathizers. Only a short time ago, a movement to banish ragtime music was started by Maud Powell, the famous American violinist. "The unspeakably depraved popular song," is what she called it, and she asserted that the modern dances were the natural offspring of such music.

• • •

There is, however, a tremendous weight of expert testimony on the other side. The London Times, that ponderous British voice of authority on all subjects, not long ago devoted a long editorial to the subject of our popular music, in which it pointed out the salient truth that ragtime is our most typical natural expression. It is the true music of the hustler, the speculator, the sky-scraper, the grain elevator. The rush and push of American life are in it. In both subject matter and rhythm it is as distinctive as the Spanish and Hungarian melodies. Whatever it may be at present, many musical experts agree that it contains the seed of a genuine American national art. Furthermore, it is a well known fact that ragtime is by no means the easiest music in the world to play or sing effectively, and it is largely possible by reason of its detractors may find their motive in this fact. The half-baked soprano who cannot climb down from her high notes, and the amateur with no sense of rhythm, can do almost anything better than ragtime.

• • •

The famous Russian orchestra conductor, Safanoff, once paid a visit to this country, and was entertained by some musical society with an elaborate program. Through long classical selections the famous foreigner sat with the politely vacuous expression of suppressed boredom. Then the orchestra played a ragtime tune. Instantly the musician was alert, demanding to know what sort of music it was. He declared that it was the most original and interesting folk melody that he had heard in years, and that he would score it to be reproduced by his orchestra in Petrograd.

• • •

Thus, there is considerable weight of authority to support us in our love for ragtime and our suspicion that the young lady with the glasses who thinks it is "horrid" and sits through symphony concerts instead, is just a bit of a musical snob.

• • •

Ragtime may be said to have sprung from an unknown source, and swept the world with its melody. Its origin is unknown. Attempts have been made to trace it wholly to negro folksongs, but while they may have had a part in forming its typical character, there are many other elements in it. Ragtime, like the Homeric legend, is a product of national life and cannot be traced to any individual or class. While it is the product of the United States, however, it is rapidly becoming the property of the world, for American ragtime is heard in Paris, Berlin and London.

• • •

While the origin of ragtime cannot be placed exactly, its history for some years may be traced, and in this there is a good deal of promise. Undoubtedly, the elimination of vulgarity and sentimentality are two things necessary before ragtime can attain any genuine artistic excellence, and in those respects it has advanced at a wonderful rate.

• • •

Ten years ago, most popular songs made their debut in what were then called "honkatonks," and which were very similar to the cabarets of today, although not nearly so popular with all classes. Much of the popular music of that day was written by honkatonk waiters, and it was truly a sad affair, abounding in allusions to gray hairs, aching hearts, weeping willow trees and birds in gilded cages. Home and mother, the pitiful child, the poor old man were favorite themes, and gross sentimentality characterized their treatment. Melody floated upon a flood of tears, and funeral black was its symbol.

• • •

The great American sense of humor came to the rescue of this situation. There was a widespread and determined revolt against the "sob songs." It ushered in the era when a minstrel or vaudeville troupe could always get a laugh by the announcement that Mr. So-and-So would now render that touching ditty, "Since Sister Lost Her Gold-filled Teeth, Her Smile Gives Me No Pain," "They Are Moving Father's Grave to Dig a Sewer."

• • •

The aroused funnybone of the American public also dealt a death blow about this time to the illustrated sentimental song, which was always a feature of the program at the early moving picture shows. In revolt against a long line of white hearse melodies, illustrated by colored slides of osculating couples, great success was scored with such parodies as "When the Onion Crop Is Gathered, Mabel Mine."

• • •

The most carping critic cannot deny that ragtime has had a splendid career of improvement since the days of the sob song. The best of modern ragtime has not only rhythm and melody, but it has genuine humor, and the story it tells is often a characteristic bit of American life. In fact, our ragtime music as an art is far more genuinely American than any of our literature.

• • •

The past decade which has seen this great advance in the quality of our popular songs, has also seen a tremendous growth in the American demand for music. Mr. John C. Freund, not long ago, made a careful estimate of the amount we annually spend for music, and placed the sum at $600,000,000. Two hundred and fifty million of this was spent in the musical industries; that is, for instruments, sheet music, records and the like. Other items on our bill for harmony were $112,000,000 for tuition; $85,000,000 for church music; $15,000,000 for bands, and $30,000,000 for theater music. According to this estimate, we spend about three times as much for harmony as we do to support our navy, and nearly three times as much as the government receives through the postoffice.

The most impressive fact about these figures is that the greater part of our immense expenditure for music goes to put music in the home, being spent for pianos, phonographs and tuition. Unfortunately, no estimate has been made of what part of this immense sum is spent for ragtime, but certainly the greater part of American music falls into that class. It may safely be said that our ragtime costs us several hundred million dollars a year, and there seems to be little prospect that its disparagers will have much success in cutting down the bill.

NEW FASHIONS IN RURAL VERSE

IT IS natural that of all the forms of American poetry, romanticism should have clung most closely to rural verse. The spirit of Whittier, our greatest poet of the fields, has always animated poetic treatment of the life of farm and village. Whittier was superior to Longfellow or Lowell in his portraiture of the country, because his farm training made him intimately sympathetic, while his temperament was full of a wholesome sentiment for nature. Lowell's rural Yankee was interesting and faithful, but was drawn from above, with the critical eye of a man of urban sophistication. Longfellow's country scenes usually betray somewhere the air of the study, the perspective of the scholar. But into the very nature of the author of "Snowbound" and "The Huskers," the country was bred, and he remained a countryman at heart all his days. The tradition of sentimental delight in rural scenes has persisted and grown in the writings of Carleton and Riley, of Piatt, Cawein, and Cheney. The country of our poetry has never been an affair of pastoral classicism, of Dresden-china shepherdesses; but it has become the country where over the hills to the poorhouse was tragedy, and telling the bees, pathos, where the reunion of Betsey and the husband who was out with her was drama, where to be knee-deep in June was pure happiness.

There are, however, signs that a different view of the country is making its poetical way—a view the more notable because its stark realism seems to contrast with a sudden attempt in the city to perceive beauty beneath surface ugliness. It had its beginnings, perhaps, in the occasional admission by Hovey and Vachel Lindsay that the country is ugly enough in many ways. We may take two books from different sections—Robert Frost's "North of Boston" and Edgar Lee Masters' "Spoon River Anthology," representing, respectively, New England and the middle west—as evidence of what a younger generation finds where Whittier and Riley walked. They are alike in cutting away sentiment, in looking with blunt candor at emotions and motives, and in attempting that subtle irony which consists in showing the unseen links between the greatest contrasts. We get a picture of country life almost naturalistic in spots. Mr. Frost's volume is eloquent of the influence of Masefield. "The Death of the Hired Man" is the dialogue of a harsh farmer with his wife, the one pleading the cause of the broken old employe who has come back to die, the other bent on driving him from the door; "Home Burial" recounts the grief of a wife over the interment, without ceremony, of her child in a grave dug by its father; "A Servant of Servants" presents a vignette of the farm house imprisonment of an insane man, chosen in preference to the poor house asylum; "The Self-Seeker" is the interview of a small shyster with the man maimed in a sawmill, ending in the latter's acceptance of $500 for compensation. It is true that a feeling for the pungent sturdiness of New England rural character softens this, that the background is made attractive by bits of description of hayfield, brook, and thicket. But the subjects are of the school of Crabbe, not of Goldsmith's "Deserted Village."

In Mr. Master's book, each of its two hundred poems dealing with the life of a member of a single rural community, we come to themes that would have something of the mocking but for their earnestness and actuality. We say nothing of the poetic merits or demerits of the treatment. But in choice of subjects the writer takes an Olympian and ironic view of the passions and aspirations, the sordid and pathetic and splendid scenes, of which he treats. On one page is the epitaph of Jonas Keene, who wondered why Albert Schirding, blessed with wonderful children, committed suicide, while he was driven to his grave because his sons were worthless. On the next Schirding explains what he considers the most trying of fates:

It is to be a failure while your children are successes.
For I raised a brood of eagles
Who flew away at last, leaving me
A crow on the abandoned bough.
Then, with the ambition to prefix Honorable to my name,
And thus to win my children's admiration,
I ran for county superintendent of schools,
Spending my accumulations to win—and lost.
That fall my daughter received first prize in Paris
For her picture entitled "The Old Mill!"—
The feeling that I was not worthy of her finished me.

There is the village Puritan, who men thought died of indigestion, when in truth it was cirrhosis of the liver from daily draughts of spiritus frumenti in his drug store; the amateur critic of art, who, with a gushy, unlikely, toothless, discarded, rural Don Juan," eating at a corner restaurant; the boy who won the prize essay at school, published a novel before he was twenty-five, became a banker in Chicago in the hope of leisure to write more, and died after a life of business cares, broken by dilettanteish essays and the entertainment of Arnold and Emerson; the editor who shielded the corporations and the dirty politicians, and hushed the neighborhood scandals; also Theodore the poet, who used to watch the crayfish along the Spoon:

But later your vision watched for men and women
Hiding in burrows of fate amid great cities,
Looking for the souls of them to come out,
So that you could see how they lived and for what.
And why they kept crawling so busily
Along the sandy way where water falls
As the summer wanes.

The whole is as if each inhabitant rose for a moment to see his life in its real futility or usefulness; and the gray-limned picture of the ugliness and attractiveness, obscenity and nobility, of country life is given a hundred points of contact with the outer world. The truth of the method is impaired by its neglect of the romance, optimism, humor, and buoyancy that is nowhere plainer than in the semi-rural west.

A glance into magazines of poetry is sufficient to show that these writers are typical of a fairly definite movement in rural verse. It is of the nature of poetic thinking that its character as a revolt is betrayed by its frequent—and damaging—connection with the "free verse" tendency. It may be only temporary and unimportant. But its main characteristic will probably have its effect on poets to come. That characteristic is to destroy the old fashion of looking at country life mainly as a reaction to nature. The background always obtruded. The countryman had to be stern as the hills or open as the plains, he was wrought upon like Michael by his surroundings; his narrative was one in which the softening or elevating influences of nature played a part; half of the emotions in country poetry were a simple response to the appeal of the swimming pool, the orchard, the mountain side. The newer rural poet is too much interested in human nature to concern himself with stereotyped images of the setting. Naturally, the workmen in such materials are wont to be story-tellers first and poets afterwards—often a long way afterwards. When a man with the pure poetic discernment of a Whittier again arrives, he will very likely show that the choice of highly poetic themes involves both the return to natural beauty and the elimination of most of what is repellent.—The Evening Post.

QUIPS AND QUIDDITIES

The sleight-of-hand performer was doing wonderful stunts on the stage. He had handled cards with ease and dexterity. "Now, will anyone in the audience lend me a ten-dollar gold piece?" he asked. And the pawnbroker in the fourth row at once replied, "On vat?"

A former member of the Kentucky legislature, now engaged in the practice of law in Louisville, tells of the time that the question of permitting osteopaths to practice was a mooted one in the legislative body. There were arguments pro and con until the speech of a mountaineer statesman did much toward settling the question. Obtaining recognition, he spoke somewhat as follows: "I'm in favor of letting those osteopaths practice. The homoeopaths practice, the allopaths practice. All the other 'paths practice. And, after all we must do well to remember that, as the poet says, the paths all lead but to the grave."

Physician—Have you any aches or pains this morning?

Patient—Yes, doctor; it hurts me to breathe; in fact, the only trouble now seems to be with my breath.

Physician—All right. I'll give you something that will soon stop that.

SPRING FESTIVAL MADE GREAT HIT LAST NIGHT

Large Audience Repeatedly Cheers Grammar School Drills and Dances

A large and appreciative audience greeted the 1,400 boys and girls of the grammar schools who took part in the spring festival at the auditorium last night. The entire arena of the auditorium was converted into a stage where the young people could show the results of their training in the beautiful dances and drills, taught them by Dr. Theodore Toepel and Miss Myra Graves. The enthusiastic audience repeatedly cheered the different grades as they exhibited splendid feats of drilling.

An interesting feature of the program was the presentation of the athletic awards won at field day exercises. Mr. James L. Key, of the board of education, presented the prizes and congratulated the boys and girls on their excellent work.

The closing feature of the evening's program was the gaily May-pole dance. Girls with varied colored dresses and boys with neckties to match made a beautiful sight.

Ashby street school, girls of grade 7-A, plaque; Boulevard school, Margaret Cochran, of class B, bronze pin; Calhoun school, boys of grade 7-A, pennant, flag relay; Crew street school, Howell Parks, of class B, gold badge; girls of grade 4, pennant, shuttle relay; Davis street school, Sarah Harrison, of class A, bronze pin; Edgewood avenue school, India Johnson, of class A, bronze pin; Willie Bell, of class B, silver pin; Trowick Johnson, of class A, silver badge; girls of grade 6-A, plaque; boys of grade 7-B, plaque; girls of grade 7-B, plaque; boys of grade 7-B, plaque; girls of grade 6, pennant, circle dode ball; Formwalt street school, Clara Frisch, of class A, silver pin; boys of grade 6, plaque; boys of grade 5, pennant, passball relay; Forrest avenue school, Louis Pinnell, of class A, bronze badge; Geareld Albright, of class B, silver badge; Georgia avenue school, William Morrow, of class B, bronze badge; girls of grade 7-A, pennant, volley ball; Hill street school, Meter Berchenko, of class A, silver badge; Lee street school, Margaret Fussell, of class B, gold pin; boys (selected from schools), silver cup, soccer football; Luckie street school, Elmira Askea, of class A, gold pin; William Van Houten, of class A, gold badge; boys of grade 4, pennant, shuttle relay; girls of grade 5, pennant, pass-ball relay; boys of grade 6, pennant, circle dodge ball; Pryor street school, girls, grade 5-B, plaque; boys, grade 5-B, plaque; W. F. Slaton school, grade 7-B, pennant, captain ball; Tenth street school, boys, grade 7-B, pennant, potato relay.

Young Gardeners Bring Vegetables to School

The little first grade children in the annex are very much interested in watching a secropia. It looks very much like a butterfly.

Many of the school children have gardens at home and have brought some of the vegetables to school. Each child who brings at least two vegetables from his garden by the end of the school term will get a ribbon.

Miss Harralson visited the school Wednesday and gave excellent to most of the classes.

We have all been working hard on the exercises held at the auditorium, Friday night.

Eight of the seventh grade girls who did the Irish especially graceful were chosen to do the drill in our spring festival we expect to have the latter part of May. It will be beautiful. We are going to have birds and flowers, etc., in it.

The girls picked out to do the drill are Nora Ellison, Christine McEachern, Maude Baker, Marjorie Gregorie, Dorothy Hudson, Olivette Cowart, Julia Green and Edith Hayes.

Our baseball team still has a clean record. They have defeated every school they have played.

CALHOUN WINS OVER FRASER IN FIELD DAY

Parent-Teacher Association Holds Regular Meeting With Good Program

BY JEANNETTE RUSS

We have some very good news this week although we hardly think that the public can appreciate it as much as we do. We won in field day! When I use this pronoun "we" I mean the flag relay team. Spectators witnessed a very exciting race between our school and Fraser Street school in which we were victorious. Our opponents made a good race and we want to tell them that we know what it means to be defeated, for we offered the same to the school won the privilege of playing in field day.

The second grade has some very, very important pets. They have a garden and their tadpoles have legs. Isn't that magic! We are sure that not even the European war can produce such an interesting episode as is the fact that the fifth grade's tadpoles have legs.

The last meeting of the Parent-Teacher association was held April 22, and a very interesting program was enjoyed by those present. Those who took part in making the afternoon a success-ful one were Mrs. Osgood, who gave a talk on art in the public schools; Mr. Carroll Summer, who furnished music, and Mrs. Moore, reader. Delightful refreshments were served after which the meeting was dismissed.

Pupils of Fair Street Enjoy Nature Studies

We were made very happy this week by visits from Mr. Terrell, a member of the board of education; Miss Laura M. Smith, primary supervisor; Mrs. Osgood and Miss Smith, drawing directors; Dr. Toepel and Miss Milledge.

The children in second grade A brought some tadpoles to school, which they are watching with some interest turn into frogs. They also had a little baby turtle which Edna Wallace let them use for their science lesson.

We are very proud of our sixth grade boys, who are to play dodge ball on field day.

SPRING WEATHER CALLS YOUNG GARDENERS TO FLOWER BEDS

Flower beds are beautifying school grounds all over the city. Under direction of the teachers the members of various grades are working their gardens and having great success growing various kinds of flowers. The picture shows four girls of Tenth Street school working the flowers and three pupils of Peoples Street school breaking ground for a new garden. The three at the bottom of the picture are Kathryn Story, Grace Moore and Lamar Springer.

BOYS' HIGH CAPTURES GAME FROM PEACOCK TEAM

Squad Hard at Work Getting Ready to Beat Fast Marist Aggregation

BY ERNEST ROGERS.

ADVICE (?)

When comes the time that things go wrong,
You "Bull" is almost gone,
Just duck your head and grit your teeth
And keep on keeping on.

We've found that this little handful of dope seem to work out pretty well in so much as studying is concerned and it also seems that it should be the keynote sounded by the successful athlete.

Just as we were on the verge of sitting down and waiting quietly to get our chance at Marist along comes the startling announcement that we are going to be plunged into the never ceasing depths of "Exam." It comes on pretty suddenly but it is hoped by all that that grand old boy, LUCK, will stand by us and that we may come through smoothly.

The Boys' High team took a slow game from Peacock on last Tuesday. Although the game ran for only seven innings the score was 7 to 1 when we quit. The base running feature of the game was pulled off by Jim Lowry when he succeeded in stealing second from third. After running up and down between second and third a few times Jim decided to remain on third where he remained until brought in on a Boys' Hi hit. We might take this opportunity to mention the fact that Jim is leading the team in batting with an average of .486. The two men nearest are "Country" Hicks and White. As a whole the team is batting well and we are resolved to beat Marist or bust a suspender trying. (We have only one pair of suspenders too.)

The dope seems to point to the fact that we are going to have a dandy track team. Perhaps you will be interested to know that our "Old College Chump," Tom Salter, is captain of the team. Go to it Tom.

The Class league is rapidly coming to a close. The winner will be decided when the juniors cross bats with the seniors. The game played between the two, recently, was called on account of darkness. We happened to forget the score when the game ended. The next game should be a corker and we expect those who go will see a good game.

As the French would say, "Oliveoil."

CANDY PULLNG AT GA. AVE. PROVES GREAT SUCCESS

Volley Ball Team Wins City Pennant at Ponce de Leon Park

BY JOSEPHINE COLBERT.

Friday, April 16, a candy pulling was held at our school. By 3 o'clock a great number of the little folks had secured their candy and were having a great time pulling it.

The larger boys and girls had their fun dancing in the auditorium. What a jolly time they had, laughing, chatting and spinning over the floor to the tune of "Too Much Mustard!" Many of the boys and girls now in the High schools, former pupils of Georgia Avenue, were present and lent quite a "grown-up" air to the school.

To those who had become heated and thirsty while dancing we sold delicious ice cream for the small sum of 5 cents.

The little folks, too, enjoyed everything to the fullest extent, for when the "grown-ups" had tired of dancing, they were allowed to take possession of the floor, and for such little people they danced very well.

When dusk came all were sorry, because they had enjoyed the afternoon so much they didn't want to leave. But since our school lacks electric lights and it wasn't possible to dance in the dark, everybody told everybody else "good-by" and went home, tired but happy.

April 26 our volley ball team "made a bee line" for Ponce de Leon park about 2 o'clock, and won the pennant.

Now, the only "big" thing before the close of school is the spring festival, which is to be held at the auditorium May 7. We are all expecting it to be a great success.

TECH HIGH WILL EXHIBIT HANDIWORK OF STUDENTS

"Tehisean" Will Soon Be Ready--Orchestra Kept Busy

BY C. GODFWYNE LIVELY.

As another scholastic year is nearing its close the thoughts which seem to be uppermost among the students are how and where the vacation will be spent. On the "campus" and in the class rooms the boys spend most of their time telling each other how many fish they intend to catch on their various trips, while others are calculating what the new baseball team will be at the conclusion of the summer. But up in the senior class all have decided to postpone their plans until exams are over and a "dip" is handed to them.

Last Friday we stood our first final—analyt.! At 8:45 a. m. Prof. Culver called us to "tw" and we at once began "concocting" our brains for the solution of the problems. When 3 o'clock arrived our papers and ourselves also looked so "concocted" that he decided to "call a halt" on the exam. "etc., etc."

The printer has just submitted to the "Tehisean" staff a proof of the annual. We are given promise that the final issue will be in the hands of the subscribers by the 20th. This year's annual is bound in purple leather with the school insignia stamped on the cover in gold. In all, the book presents a very attractive appearance and we expect each subscriber will want more than one copy.

The orchestra is hard at work preparing themselves for their usual good showing for several engagements before school closes. Next Friday our musicians will assist the pupils of Hill street school in their annual pageant. Rainey Williams, our best flutist, says we are going out to Washington seminary some time soon, but his invitation isn't "official." The combination T. H. S.-B. H. S. orchestra will furnish music for the commencement exercises.

On one day during the last week of school all articles made in the shops together with the shops and laboratories will be placed on exhibition before the general public. Many valuable articles have been made by the students which will show the value of such a school in the city. Come and see what we are doing.

It has been decided that the senior banquet will be held at the Piedmont hotel. The only thing which has much peeved that his plan of having the farewell gathering of the class at the delicatessen store on the viaduct wasn't carried out.

Professor: "Carder, what is the English unit of power?"

Carder: "The what?"

Professor: "Correct, be seated."

Inman Park Makes Fast Progress in Music Work

We have been pleased this week to have many visitors, including several members of the board of education.

Miss Milledge also came and seems gratified with the work in music. She gave stars to fourth grades A and B, and third grade F. She said the boys of four A had improved more than any boys of fourth grades in the city.

The pupils of fifth grade B are making geography books of the United States and find the work interesting.

All the flower seeds that have been planted in our boxes are up and the plants are growing.

Third grade A has been studing about Lapland and are enjoying a Lapland scene that they made on their sand table.

The pupils of fourth B, who have won head marks during the past week, are Verna Elder, Zora Craig, Fred Kee, Sara Burkert, Marvin McKinney, Helen Dunlap and Dorothy Bartlett.

DAVIS FIRST GRADES VISIT GOV. SLATON AT CAPITOL

Fourth Grades Make Trip to Wren's Nest in Jitney Busses

BY IDA HARRIS.

Our classes have been taking some interesting excursions lately. The two first grades went to the capitol and learned many things about Georgia. They had the pleasure of an interview with the governor, who complimented them on thier good behavior, and said he was going to visit them at school some day soon. We all hope that the governor will keep his promise to come to see us.

The fourth grades went out in jitney buses to the Wren's Nest. The whole excursion just took one hour. The buses came to the school for the children and brought them back, and saved a lot of time which they would have lost in transferring and waiting for cars. The children took notebooks with them and wrote all the interesting things they saw at Mr. Harris' home. When they came back they had both written and oral compositions on the excursion. The best oral composition was that of Israel Merlin.

The seventh grade A girls are practicing at recess every day for the exercises at the auditorium Friday. They do the drill so well that our principal is going to have their pictures taken when the photographer comes to take our class pictures.

Our school gardens are growing nicely. The children have had to water the vegetables twice a day to make them grow during the dry weather. Some of our onions have been stolen, and the pigeons have eaten up the lettuce, but everything else is doing well. The first grades have a cabbage patch, and the little children work in it every day. By the close of school we expect to have the finest school gardens in the city.

SLATON GIRLS WIN FOR CAPTAIN BALL PENNANT

Fifth Grade Wins Prize for Selling Most Tickets to Entertainment

BY LAURA ROSEBERRY.

Hurrah for our girls on the captain ball team! They have defeated every school they have played. They played their last league game Field day against Ivy street school and won, the score being 35 to 17.

Our boys are doing fine work in the baseball league this season. They have won in every game except two.

A beautiful entertainment was held in the auditorium of our school Friday, April 23, and a large crowd was present. A prize was offered to the grade that sold the most tickets. This was won by the fifth grade.

We were very sorry to have our sixth grade teacher, Miss Zachery, leave us but are glad to welcome Miss McJunket in her place.

Peeples First Grade Make Pretty Doll Houses

The first grades which are taking part in the Field day exercises of our school are the sixth, fifth, third and second grades. These grades have been practicing diligently in their dances and drills and are hoping to make a big success Field day.

Lulu Barton, of the fourth grade B, was the last to remain standing in the reading match which took place in this grade.

We are very proud of Harold Walraven, of seventh grade B, and Arnold Latimer, of the fifth grade B, who received certificates for their fine records in athletics on Field day.

The doll douses which the first A are making are beginning to look very attractive. Not only have they been painted, but flowers have been planted and hanging baskets have been put up.

G. M. A. OPENS ANNUAL CAMP AT LAKEWOOD PARK

Young Ladies From High Schools and Colleges Dance With Cadets

BY W. DELANEY WAY.

The cadets of the Georgia Military academy went into camp at Lakewood park Monday morning and the camp site was in full bloom soon after dinner when the tents and equipment arrived. Bathing was next in order and this was enjoyed to the greatest extent. A dance has been very greatly enjoyed every night on the fine dance floor to the air of the music the fine orchestra furnished. The ladies of College Park and Atlanta were given the honor of the first night with Washington Seminary Tuesday, Woodberry Wednesday, Washington Seminary Thursday and a general night of all of the ladies for Friday the last night.

Those dances with the swimming have overcome the duties of drilling to such an extent that every one was sorry when this morning came to break camp and resume studies at school until May 28, commencement night.

The principal drills on the camp have been short range target work, guard duty and scouting, much having been learned in every branch.

The cadet nine defeated Donald Fraser last week to the tune of 8 to 4, which seems as though it is a reversal in form for us. Our start is at last being made and our hopes are it will continue.

The track team took part in a meet yesterday, the outcome of which is not known at the present writing but we trust it is as last year, when we captured the cup with over half the points.

BOYS' NIGHT DEBATES ON CAPITAL PUNISHMENT

Foreign Class Has Greek Who Has Served His Country as a Soldier

BY BERNARD WILLSON.

The seventh grade A is having good attendance and we are still having our regular debates. The one that was chosen for Friday night is resolved, "That Capital Punishment Should Be Abolished," leader for the affirmative, John Newborn; for the negative, Omer Purdom. This is going to be one of the most interesting debates of the season.

The seventh grade B had a fine attendance for the week.

The sixth grade is hard and earnestly at work getting ready for final examinations. Every boy is anxious to be promoted and is doing his best work. We are sorry to lose Beverly Jones who has moved away from the city.

Miss George, the sixth grade teacher, that has been out of school on account of sickness, has returned and all her pupils are glad to see her back again.

Ismael Ruskin of the fourth grade and Jack Donehoo stood up last in the spelling match Friday night. Edward Wilson brought his graphophone to school Tuesday night with several records and we had some fine music.

The foreign class has one Greek that has served in the war and he is very anxious to learn to talk American language. Zeke Irvvie has not been absent for the last quarter. Guy Atkinson came to school in October and he did not know his letters, and now he is in the third reader.

The houses are painted green and white and are as up-to-date as any one could find if they were looking for a house, but they are not for sale.

Third B had a very interesting, but hard, spelling match. Mildred Cayce was the only one standing at the end.

VIRGINIA BRYAN.

SPEAKERS APPOINTED FOR BOYS' HIGH GRADUATION

Seniors Hold Lead in Class Baseball League With Perfect Record

BY B. W. COURTS, JR.

The members of the senior class are now preparing for their graduating exercises. The final examinations in the senior class begin next week and all the seniors are working hard that they may not be prohibited from attending the graduating exercises. The graduating exercises will be held in the main auditorium on the night of June 4. Two speakers will represent the senior classical department. Walter P. Binns will be the class orator and T. R. McMannon the valedictorian. All of these speakers are well known in our school and are expected to do well. The members of the classical and scientific courses will have their banquet immediately after the graduating exercises, at the Ansley hotel. The members of the senior business will probably have theirs at the Ansley also.

The seniors are still holding their lead in the class baseball league with a perfect percentage. They still show no signs of weakening. Last week they defeated the juniors in a fast game by a score of 4 to 3. Then the seniors turned upon the juniors and the game ended in a slaughter of the juniors. The juniors played for three innings and then began to play and pray for darkness. The umpire forfeited the game to the seniors in the fourth inning as it was then 17 to 9 in their favor. The juniors are still not satisfied.

Girls' Night Pupil Is Now Graduate Trained Nurse

The Girls' Night school had a very pleasant surprise last Monday when Mrs. L. M. White, former principal of the school, visited us. We enjoyed having her, and hope that she will find time to visit us again before she leaves the city.

Lila Webster, one of the former fourth division girls, visited us for a short while last Wednesday night.

Miss Anthony, of Washington, Ga., visited the school last Tuesday night, and seemed to be pleased with our work.

Lucy McManus, one of the star pupils of the fourth division during the school year of 1911-1912, graduated from the Grady hospital training school for nurses Wednesday afternoon, April 28. We are all very proud of her and the fine progress that she has made since leaving our ranks.

The girls in the fourth division are still working very hard on their notebooks. They are trying to finish them in about two weeks, and now have them nearly full.

The third division girls are reading the old Greek Myths this week and are liking them very much. They are studying diagraming in their grammar work. There were eight girls on the honor roll this week. Attendance is fine for such warm weather.

Nearly all of division two is absent this week on account of sickness. We hope they will all be able to be with us next week, and on until school is over when the term of this division have ended.

Rae Zimmerman and Calliope Poulos are making hundreds in spelling this week. The race for the spelling medal is getting very exciting.

ELITH M'MANUS.

Crew Will Have Prominent Part in Festival Friday

The school is looking forward with great eagerness to the exercises at the auditorium on Friday night. Our eighth grade girls are going to take part in an athletic drill and the fourth grade girls in the folklore dance, ace of diamonds. Howell Parks, one of the prize winners, will be our standard bearer. Our sponsors will be Reba Smith and Evelyn Sowder from team of fourth grade boys who won the shuttle relay race on field day.

Our girls' basketball team again defeated Fraser's team 21 to 8 on Tuesday afternoon. The best features of the game were the quick work in center by Lillian Mann and the goal-shooting by Lois Hamby and Mamie Hughens. This is the eighth game the team has won.

All of the grades are much interested in the play houses which the first grades are making. The houses are now painted and almost finished. They even have sandy yards for the dolls to play in.

The eighth grade is to go to the park this afternoon to study science. They are to leave in jitney busses, which is quite a change in the method of going on excursions and picnics.

RUBY MURPHY.

First Grade Pupils of Faith Furnish House

Our first grade is very much interested in furnishing a little house. The house has been placed in a tiny yard with real grass and miniature trees growing and with a little walk leading to the front door. The children have been wondering who was to occupy the house.

The other day a little kitten walked into the school room unInvited and after wandering about for several minutes into the little house and sat down looking out of the window. You may be sure the children were greatly amused.

Our fourth and sixth grades are to take part in the auditorium exercises Friday evening. We hope they will do well.

RUBY LANGLEY.

Boulevard Awards Large Picture for Attendance

All of the children are trying for the buttons this month and many of them have succeeded.

The fifth A got the banner for attendance this week.

The white and second grade children have some tadpoles in a bowl and are interested in the study of them.

The children of first grade B are very much delighted with a large picture they received for having the highest average in attendance for the month.

The children of the seventh grade B are going to the Home for Incurables on Friday afternoon. They will take flowers and entertain the patients with music and speeches.

Hupp Man Talks Of Repair Cost

Says That Repair Cost Is a Big Factor Which the Buyer Should Consider--Gasoline and Oil Minor.

"When you talk about the upkeep and general expense of a motor car," said the John M. Smith company, local Hupmobile dealer's "most people instinctively think of the cost of gasoline and oil. Now this is absolutely the wrong standpoint to take, for one big repair bill will shatter a year's gasoline and oil expense.

"A motorist can economize on gasoline and oil to his heart's content, but should his car need a general overhauling, and he receives a big bill of repair expense, his upkeep cost for the year will climb to unknown heights.

"Therefore the prospective automobile purchaser in buying his car should not only be careful and consider the gasoline and oil expense that he will incur on on his new model, but he should also look into the cost of repair expense. This can be easily determined by an investigation of the present owners of the model the purchaser has in mind. An owner is always very glad to talk about his car and tell a future prospective owner the exact satisfaction he is getting from his present model. Or visit the garage man, ask him what so and so car costs to maintain a year, and how often it is in the shop for repairs. Get the dealer's advice on this subject—tell him to show you figures that he has probably compiled from statistics furnished him by owners.

"To my mind this expense of operation is the most important subject that an automobile owner has to consider in buying a car. It cannot be investigated too carefully. You have a right to know what your car is going to cost you after it is in your hands, and the dealer should give you all the assistance and co-operation that he possibly can in determining just what it costs to maintain this particular car.

"To show the prospect just exactly what it will probably cost to maintain a Hupmobile the Hupp Motor Car company recently compiled an average operating cost from statistics through its representatives, on the amounts paid by Hupmobile owners for repairs and adjustments of all kinds since the company has been in business.

"This investigation is astounding, for it shows that each owner of a Hupmobile pays one quarter of a cent per mile as an average repair cost. In other words a Hupmobile owner after a year's touring of say eight thousand miles a fair average has a repair and adjustment expense of only $20.00 a year. This is a very remarkable record and I doubt if any other motor car on the market can show anything of a like nature.

'As you know, the real test of a car's economy, is the cost of repairs. Gasoline consumption depends upon the driver, or how hard he drives his car. But, after all, the gasoline used is one of the smallest items of expense. It is the repair bills that mount up the upkeep cost. Repairs are the greatest feature in a poorly designed car, and as a consequence this subject should be rigidly looked into by a purchaser. Besides being the biggest single point that the owner has to consider in purchasing a car, it shows the stability of the car and is a quick method of judging of the way the car is manufactured.

Cummins Tests Brown Tubes

The Brown inner tube was given a thorough test by Chief Cummings, of the Atlanta fire department, Saturday, April 24, and the test was very strenuous. The chief is thoroughly satisfied that the tube will do all that is claimed for it.

G. B. Kelly has taken the agency for this tube in north Georgia, and it looks as though the good folks of this section will be relieved of a lot of worry and work this summer caused from punctures and blow-outs.

Kelly wanted to show the chief that these Brown tubes would not leak, even though punctured and filled with nothing but air, so the chief made him show him. About noon Saturday Kelly drove down to the fire hall in an Oakland roadster that weighed 3,600 pounds, and the chief drove an awl and "an eight-penny nail entirely through both casing and inner tube that was pumped up to eighty pounds pressure, gauge test. Then the valve was sealed by the chief with his personal seal. Monday, about 12 m., Kelly came back, after riding the car about town all day, and asked the chief if he was satisfied that Brown tubes would not leak, even with two holes in them. The chief said, "Bring me a hammer and a twelve-penny nail," and, without another word, drove the same through tire and tube. "Now," said he, "go and return two days hence, and if air still remains in your tube I will pass judgment."

Thursday, April 24.—The last day of the month the chief passed final judgment in the form of a letter to Mr. Kelly, which was to the effect that the Brown tube was entirely as represented, and he was well pleased with the result of the test.

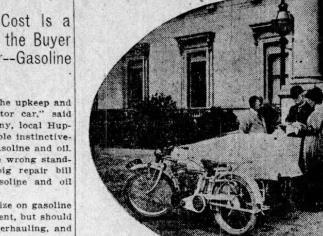
Mr. Kelly states that these tubes not only do not deflate with ordinary punctures, but, on account of the high quality of material used in manufacture, they will wear longer than any tube on the market, and, owing to their great strength, it is safe to use the casing at least 25 per cent longer than with ordinary tubes without danger of blow-outs.

Motorcycle Notes

In making recommendations for the better policing of Chicago, Chief of Police Gleason has suggested that two motorcycle officers be placed at each police station in the city.

The San Jose (Cal.) Motorcycle club is planning to stage a motorcycle meet on May 16.

INDIAN ON BATTLEFIELD



One of the most prized gifts which has come to the Australian branch of the Red Cross society is an Indian motorcycle ambulance, to be used in its work of alleviating suffering wherever the society may be called, to scenes of flood, fire or mining disasters. The ambulance was the gift of Mr. George M. Hendee, president of the Hendee Manufacturing company, and was presented to Her Excellency, Lady Helen Munro Ferguson, head of the Australasian Red Cross society, and wife of the governor general of Australia, with appropriate ceremonies at government house, in Melbourne, by T. K. Hastings, manager of the Indian Australian branch, acting as Mr. Hendee's personal representative.

GOODRICH MANAGER TALKS ON PUBLICITY BY PRESS

BY B. J. MURPHY.
(Mgr. Atlanta Branch B. F. Goodrich Co.)

One of the strongest evidences of the effectiveness of newspaper advertising was developed by the campaign we began on January 31. On that date we announced in our newspaper advertisements that we had made a sweeping reduction in tire prices.

It is no mere figure of speech to say that the ink used in making public our "Fair-List" prices was hardly dry before the greatest commotion that has ever occurred in the tire world started. A great deal of tire history has been made in the three months since the publication of the Goodrich "Fair-List." There has been a general reduction in tire prices—all very acceptable undoubtedly, as far as the tire user is concerned.

Naturally, we who are identified with the B. F. Goodrich company feel that we have done a big thing for the people who buy tires. We believe we are entitled to credit for having put tire selling upon a fair basis—a basis that is fair to the manufacturer, fair to the dealer and fair to the user. It is no longer necessary for a tire dealer to have two price lists, one to be kept hidden, for his own use, and the other to be exhibited to the buyer.

In other words, haggling has been done away with. People who purchase tires now can have the satisfaction of knowing that they pay exactly the same prices that their friends and neighbors will have to pay. It is no longer possible for Brown to buy his tires for less than Jones will be charged. Both find it possible to buy tires for much less than they were obliged to pay before the announcement of the Goodrich "Fair-List," no matter what kind they select.

Not the least of the benefits derived from this method of fair dealing is to be found in the fact that the tire purchaser is relieved of the necessity of shopping around and wasting time in his efforts to satisfy himself that he is getting an honest price. When he gets a quotation on a tire now he knows that it is final—that it is the lowest price the dealer can make and no other dealer will be able to sell the same tire for less.

Dealers throughout the country are enthusiastic over the advantage of doing business in accordance with this fair and sensible method. It disposes of cut-throat policies, simplifies the matter of keeping purchasers satisfied, makes sales easier, and puts the whole tire business upon a legitimate basis.

As I have said, the Goodrich organization believes it is entitled to credit for having brought about this new order of things and for having caused the substantial reductions that have been made in the prices of tires of all kinds.

We are by no means insensible of the fact, however, that our effort would have been long and tedious if it had not been absolutely futile, without the influence of the newspaper advertising that we did. By using big space in the newspapers throughout the country we did almost in a day what it would have taken months and perhaps years to accomplish without advertising.

I confess that I had never before realized the tremendous power of the press. I had never before been in a position to see the actual and immediate effects of advertising. When a man advertises for the sole purpose of increasing his sales he is likely to attribute the growth of his trade to a number of causes. His orders multiply, but he may think this is due to a change in business conditions, to a growing appreciation of his product or to a variety of causes apart from his advertising.

It is only when the concrete evidence is presented, as it was presented in the Goodrich "Fair-List" campaign, that one gets a correct idea of the effect of advertising—of its tremendous pulling power and the great momentum that is generated by it. Within twenty-four hours after the publication of the first Goodrich "Fair-List" advertisement everybody who owned an automobile was talking about the wonderful new era in the business, and in less than a week the readjustment of tire prices was going on everywhere.

"What the people think of Goodrich 'Fair-List' prices fully explained in the greatly increased and steadily growing volume of business that the company is doing. Goodrich Tires are better today than they have ever been before, and Goodrich sales are greater than they have ever before been in the history of this, the oldest tire manufacturing company in the country.

"The quality of the tires, 'Fair-List' prices and advertising are the three things that have placed the Goodrich company in the strong position it occupies today. Goodrich Safety Treads are only 5 per cent higher (the exact difference in manufacturing cost) than Goodrich or any other smooth tread tires. Goodrich Safety Treads are from 8 per cent to 48 per cent less in price than other widely advertised non-skid tires.

"The facts are that other manufacturers have met the Goodrich 'Fair-List' prices on smooth treads (which represent about 15 per cent of their output) but they have not met the Goodrich 'Fair-List' prices on non-skid tires, which constitute 85 per cent of their output. So it is up to the tire user now to help Goodrich down the padded prices on non-skid tires.

"The verdict of the people is overwhelmingly and convincingly in favor of Goodrich. very real price reduction has followed the Goodrich lead. The public has learned to depend upon Goodrich leadership and upon Goodrich integrity. This is why the Goodrich company is unable, with all its tremendous facilities, to fill its orders.

VACUUM CUP TIRES PASS HIGHEST TEST OF MOTORDOM

In connection with their interesting advertising campaign on Vacuum Cup tires, based on the certified results of the official test conducted last year on heavy cars by the Automobile Club of America, President H. W. DuPuy of the Pennsylvania Rubber company made the following statement to a press representative:

"All makes of tires—if one accepts the arguments advanced in the advertising of tire manufacturers—are 'best.' This claim of superiority is constantly made, if not directly, through inference.

"As a result, the average consumer is in a quandary when the time comes to renew his casings. He has the alternative of accepting the recommendation of some well meaning dealer or being influenced by the advice of some friend who 'had good luck' with some certain brand or make.

"While we had the utmost faith in the wear-resisting, anti-skid qualities of our product, we felt that we would prefer to base our future advertising on actual performance rather than upon ties.

mere claims and unofficial generalities.

"It was with a view to obtaining for the guidance of the tire user tangible, authentic mileage service statistics that we asked the Automobile Club of America to make an endurance test of strictly stock Pennsylvania Oilproof Vacuum Cup tires.

"Here was a novel proposition which appealed strongly to us, and, incidentally, to the club engineers. Never before—or since—had a pneumatic tire manufacturer submitted his product to the strict testing rules of this great testing authority, or to any other official body.

"Well, the results were extremely gratifying. Individual mileage records of 10,164, 9,220, 8,940, 7,500 were run up, one casing—for good reasons officially noted in detail in the club's report—scoring but 3,660 miles. The certified average of nine stock tires was 6,760 miles, and not once during this severe 144-day test did a single tire show the slightest evidence of defective materials or workmanship.

"With this record of average performance thus officially established, we now are extensively advertising the results in order that the tire user may, in buying casings, avail himself of facts and not be actuated by mere theories.

"Naturally, we take a justifiable pride in the outcome of this test. I might add, however, that good as our tires were last year—as evidenced by the club's test—we have succeeded, by developing and applying a new toughening process, in incorporating fully 50 per cent more wear resistance into the 1915 Vacuum Cups. This process also doubles the period of effectiveness of the vacuum cups in eliminating skidding on wet or greasy pavements.

"In addition to these improvements, we now have in full operation our three-quarter million dollar factory addition, facilitating a greatly increased production and enabling us to give the consumer these high grade tires at a price formerly paid for ordinary tires."

Overland Wins Out in Oklahoma

Stock Roadster Won the Racing Championship of Oklahoma in a Ninety-Mile Contest

A stock Overland roadster won the racing championship of Oklahoma, decided by a ninety-nine mile contest held under the auspices of the newly-formed Southwest Race association. A large field of fifteen entries competed for the coveted title.

Large stands which had been erected at several points around the two one-half mile course were crowded with spectators. Hundreds had made the trip from northern Oklahoma and Kansas to attend the two-day meet, the first of its kind ever held in the state. There was a real local rivalry over the championship event as all of the cars were owned in Oklahoma and the drivers were Oklahoma men. Several of the cars, however had been specially constructed for racing. Others were practically rebuilt for speed.

The winning Overland however, was a stock Model 81 roadster, being the same in every respect as when it left the Overland factory in Toledo except that the fan was removed and the body cut down to a type more suited to racing. The gearing was unaltered, the motor was the same and every other feature, with the exceptions noted was of the standard Overland type.

Duplicating the performance of an Overland in the Grand Prix and Vanderbilt cup races of this year, the car went through the entire race without any sign of overheating. The radiator tank was not refilled during the race. At the end of the ninety-ninth mile the radiator was cool.

Bosch Offers Money Prizes

In keeping with its policy in recent years the Bosch Magneto company announces a list of six prizes to be divided among the drivers who compete in the big automobile race to be staged on the Indianapolis motor speedway on May 30. If the winning car is using a Bosch magneto the driver will be given a cash prize of $500. For second under similar conditions a prize of $300 will be given, and for third another of $200. Prizes of $100 will also be given the drivers running one, two three, who use Bosch plugs aside from those offered for the magneto users.

In offering these prizes the company points to the fact that the Bosch made a clean sweep in the Vanderlit Cup race, and also in the Grand Prize race. In view of this fact the company calls attention to the fact that they are not seeking publicity alone in these offers, but are trying to stimulate interest in their product. The company confidently expects that the winner of the big race will be found to have a car equipped with their ignition system.

Memorial Day Events

Scores of motorcycle clubs will take advantage of the two holidays which come on May 30 and 31 to stage pleasure or endurance runs. Following are some of the clubs which are planning Memorial day events:

Indianapolis Motorcycle club, three-day sociability run to Wyandotte cave.

Niagara Falls Motorcycle club, two-day endurance run.

Los Angeles Motorcycle club, annual endurance run.

Rockford, Ill., Motorcycle club, three-day Good Fellowship tour, also.

Maryland Motorcycle club, (Baltimore), annual spring tour.

Schenectady Motorcycle club, two-day endurance run to Sabin, Rock, Conn.

New Jersey Motorcycle Club (Altoona, Pa.), endurance run to Harrisburg and return.

Blair County Motorcycle club, Altoona, Pa., endurance run to Harrisburg and return.

Ajax Winners Set New Records

Every section of the country from New England to Florida and from the Atlantic coast to the far west is represented in the list of prize winners in the second annual tire mileage contest of the Ajax Grieb Rubber company Inc., of Trenton, N. J., the results of which have just been announced. Motorists the country over have shown their keen interest in this truly national contest for Ajax tire users, with the result that this year the leading mileages obtained are far greater than ever before, and the average is also considerably greater than that of last year.

The winner of the first prize of $500 is a Wisconsin chauffeur, Garth C. Jenson, who drives a Cadillac for John Welsby, of Stevens Point. His mileage was almost 22,000. He lacked just fifteen miles of that total. He was slightly more than 500 miles better than Frank Gray, chauffeur for Carl M. Gottfried, of Chicago, whose Peerless car piloted 21,483 miles using one single Ajax tire and thereby won the $300 prize. It was another Cadillac which covered 21,028 miles on an Ajax casing and won $200, the third prize, for Alfred C. Smith, of Springfield, Mass.

The next five prizes all were $100 each. Two of them went to brothers in St. Louis, both drivers of Packard cars. One of them, E. C. Bode, made fifth best total, with 20,075 miles, and the other, H. W. Bode, made a total of 18,466 miles. The others of the $100 prizes went to Laurence Ross, of Ticonderoga, N. Y., with 20,910 miles on a Maxwell car, and Albert Nathan, who used an Ajax casing 18,942 miles on a Stoddard, and Herman W. Bushey, who covered 18,190 miles on a Lenox.

The first twenty of the winners of prizes in this contest covered better than 15,000 miles with casings entered. The average of the 208 prize winning chauffeurs was 7,722 miles per Ajax tire. The thirty capital prize winners averaged 16,500 miles. It will be observed that all of the 2008 prize winners got far in excess of 5,000 miles guaranteed in writing by the Ajax-Grieb Rubber company Inc.

The results of the contest show what can be attained when a motorist or his driver are careful to see that the tires receive good handling and attention at all times. Careful driving, attention to proper air pressures, avoidance of the misuse of brakes and like cautious methods will produce long mileages if the tire is properly selected in the first instance and this is what the Ajax people believe the results of their tire contest prove.

Dort Car Makes Unusual Success

"It is very gratifying to those of us who for three years have planned and labored to produce the Dort car, to observe the friendly interest which people all over the country have shown in its progress, and in its now assured success," said John D. Mansfield, general sales manager of the Dort Motor Car company, yesterday.

"Visitors who come to our factory tell us that they are pleased to see the new company working along the lines which for a generation made the Durant-Dort Carriage company prosperous and famous the world over—i. e., manufacturing a dependable, carefully finished and thoroughly tested product—at a low price. Volume is the thing.

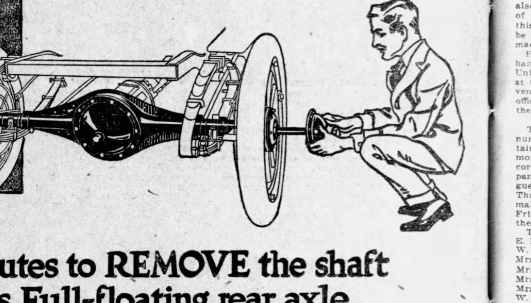
"With the same men, the same policies, and with an automobile which in every sense of the word is a real automobile, despite its low price—with all this, it is no wonder that the Dort Motor Car company is swamped with orders today, and is destined to achieve a conspicuous success in the light car field."

The company is making extensive alterations and additions to its factories at Flint, Mich., and will have one of the most up-to-date and commodious automobile plants in the United States.

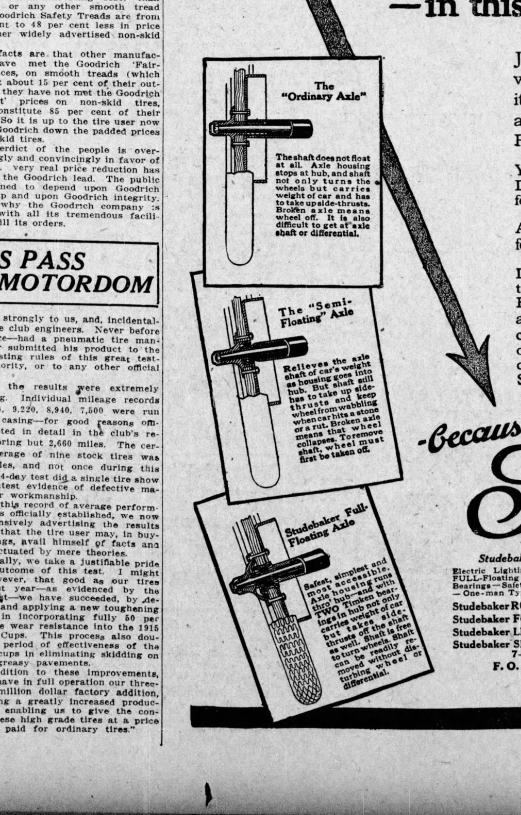
Starting June 15, C. R. Milburn, of Kansas City, expects to make an extended motorcycle tour throughout the west. He will visit Yellowstone National Park, Spokane, Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles.

How Studebaker cars are built—

axles



Two minutes to REMOVE the shaft —in this Full-floating rear axle



Just TWO minutes' time and a common wrench—that's all. And you can appreciate what it means to have a REAR AXLE in your car as ACCESSIBLE in its every detail as this FULL-floating rear axle that Studebaker builds.

You don't have to take off the wheel to remove the shaft. Don't even have to jack the car up. Simply unscrew a few nuts in the hub-flange and the axle shaft slides out.

And the car can coast down the steepest grade in perfect safety at sixty miles an hour with the shaft taken out.

Doesn't disturb the axle-assembly. And it's done in the time it takes to tell it. And the differential, too, is just as EASY to get at. For by unscrewing the nuts in the cover at the rear and removing two bolts, the entire differential can be slipped out. For you see, this is not merely one of those "floating" types they tell you about in other cars. This is a REAL full-floating rear axle that Studebaker builds especially for Studebaker cars

-because it's a Studebaker

This SAFETY—insuring axle carries the weight of the car on the axle housing, NOT on the shaft: it lets the shaft do NOTHING but turn the wheels. The car rides on the housing of the axle. And TWO Timken bearings in the hubs take up the side thrusts.

But we'd like you to see this FULL-floating Rear Axle and study its design. Like you, too, to ride in the car and drive it and observe the silence and the smooth-running qualities of the car. Whom would it be convenient for you to make that test? Write at once for the Studebaker Rear Axle Book.

SOUTH'S WHOLESALE GROCERS WILL FIND ROUSING WELCOME

Elaborate Preparations Have Been Made for Convention Which Opens at Hotel Ansley Wednesday

Atlanta's glad hand is out to the Southern Wholesale grocers, whose association convenes here in annual session from Wednesday to Friday. Elaborate preparations have been made for the entertainment of the visitors and one of the biggest conventions in the history of the association is predicted.

The session will meet at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning, May 12, with President Joseph H. McLaurin presiding. The invocation will be offered by Bishop Warren A. Candler, who will be followed by Governor John M. Slaton with an address of welcome and Mayor James G. Woodward in behalf of the city. T. H. Scovell will respond in behalf of the association. Practically all of the morning session will be taken up with reports of the officers.

The Wednesday afternoon session will be opened with an address by George N. Numsen, president of the National Canners' association. Will Pyles will deliver an address on "What I Want to See the Jobbers Do." J. E. Raley will speak on the "Brokers' Relations;" Frank Lanier's subject will be "The Traveling Salesman," and John A. Russell will speak on "The Wholesale Grocer; His Future in the Light of the Past." At this session the report of the membership committee will be made by Chairman T. H. Scovell; O. D. Adams will report for the Better Containers committee; Tombs Howard for the Bonus to Salesmen committee. H. C. Van Horn for the Free Goods committee.

MOORD TO SPEAK.

The principal address of Thursday morning's session will be delivered by Joseph A. McCord, governor of the Atlanta Federal Reserve bank. Other addresses will be those of Lansing B. Warner on "Mutual Insurance," and E. E. Brown, southern district manager Quaker Oats company, on "The Relation of Advertising to Business." Reports will be made by R. D. Thomas, acting chairman of the arbitration committee; J. E. Legard, the Purchase Discount committee; C. R. Graham, for the Traffic committee, and W. E. Small, chairman of the Pure Food and Legislative committee.

At the Thursday afternoon session G. P. Toole will speak on "Credits;" Joel Hunter will discuss "Accounting Methods," and J. V. Faucett will tell "How to Handle a Fire Loss." Addresses will also be made by O. M. Heard, president of the Cordele Grocery company. At this session, visiting manufacturers will be introduced and short talks will be made on various trade subjects.

Following the address of W. A. Graham Clark, commercial agent of the United States department of commerce, on the Friday morning session, the convention will adjourn. At this session officers and directors will be elected and the next meeting place decided on.

FESTIVITIES PLANNED.

The ladies' committee has arranged a number of interesting features and entertainments for the visitors. Thursday morning the visiting ladies will be escorted through the Frank E. Block company's factory, and later will be the guests at a luncheon at East Lake. Thursday night there will be an informal dinner at the Piedmont hotel and Friday a big barbecue will be given at the Cold Springs cue grounds.

The ladies committee consists of Mrs. E. L. Adams, Mrs. W. P. Anderson, Mrs. M. A. Arbright, Mrs. J. A. Campbell, Mrs G. A. DeWald, Mrs. N. E. Martin, Mrs. Cone M. Maddox, Mrs. S. T. Marett, Mrs. H. S. Prater, Mrs. Ben Singer, Mrs F. W. Davis, Mrs. C. L. Fain, Mrs. W. S. Howard, Mrs. C. H. Kelly, Mrs. W. O. Stamps, Mrs H. L. Schlesinger, Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, Mrs. D. R. Wilder, Mrs. George W. Walker.

E. L. Adams, head of the local committee on arrangements, is assisted by W. O. Stamps, H. L. Singer, J. L. Campbell, C. B. Ponder. The following are the officers of the association: J. H. McLaurin, president, Jacksonville, Fla.; L. M. Hooper, first vice president, Selma, Ala.; J. C. Brewer, second vice president, Douglas, Ga.; James Lasseter, treasurer, Jacksonville, Fla.

SAMPLES AND SHIPMENTS

W. J. Thebeaut, who covers out-of-town territory for the Dixie Pickle and Preserving company, has just returned from an extensive trip through south Georgia. He had very fine business indeed for his company in that part of the state.

W. H. Cox, traveler for McCord-Stewart company, who covers the Central and Southern roads south of Atlanta and the A. B. & A. road, is being feted by his company for his unusually good run of business. He is sending in orders from that territory as if he had been born and raised among the people there.

J. P. Skelley, who represents the American Cigar company, was in Atlanta Thursday visiting the Capital City Tobacco company. Mr. Skelley will join C. G. Hollins, of the Capital City Tobacco company, for a several weeks' trip through south Georgia. Mr. Skelley is booking the trade in the interests of his firm's famous Parex brand of cigars.

T. N. Alexius, known as "that honest cigar drummer," who represents the Stahlenberg cigars, spent a few days last week in Atlanta visiting the trade.

William Hine, who represents the E. K. Bond Packing company, of Chicago, packers of high grade canned meats, was in Atlanta for a few days working the trade with the salesmen of the H. L. Singer company prior to returning to headquarters at Chicago.

H. A. McDonald, otherwise known as the "Bishop," of McCord-Stewart company, is getting matters in shape preparatory to taking a six weeks' trip to California and the expositions in that state. He will leave about the first of June.

C. H. Cobb, city salesman of the Brower Candy company, who works the south side, celebrated last week with top-line sales. Mr. Cobb has received the commendation of his firm for the splendid work which he is doing.

Big Attendance Is Expected for Meet Of Serv-us Jobbers

"All indications point," said A. E. Kelley, of Kelley Brothers company, who handle the serve-us line of goods in this territory, "to a record-breaking attendance on the convention of Serv-us jobbers, which will be held in Atlanta May 14-15, immediately after the close of the convention of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' association, which meets here May 12-14. We have had a dozen or more personal letters from Serv-us jobbers all over the United States informing us of the fact that they will be here to attend the convention. Only today we received a letter from a jobber in western Texas and another from one in Bristol, Va. All the Serv-us jobbers are enthusiastic over the line of goods represented by this brand, and the gathering in Atlanta is sure to be a big event."

"EFFICIENCY CABINET" OF MONTAG PROVES WINNER

Forms Part of an Attractive Tablet and Envelope Proposition

Montag's "Efficient Cabinet," which is now being offered to the trade by Montag Brothers, as a part of a very attractive proposition, is winning business from the start. The cabinet proposition was just inaugurated a few days ago, but already it is attracting much attention from the trade and is bringing in many orders. The cabinet is free with every order for 2,000 school tablets and 10,000 envelopes. The price to dealers is $110. The cabinet constitutes a handsome fixture which can be made in any finish to suit other fixtures. It takes up less space than the tablets and stationery are displayed in ordinary showcases, is more convenient, and is capable of much more satisfactory display.

T. P. A. DELEGATES WILL GO BY THE "DIXIE FLYER"

Official Route for Trip to the Omaha Convention Is Selected

The state board of the Travelers' Protective association, at a recent meeting in Savannah, selected the official route to the T. P. A. convention to be held in Omaha, Neb., in June. The route is over the Western and Atlantic railroad and the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis "Dixie Flyer" route; and from Savannah over the Central of Georgia. Special trains will probably be put on in Atlanta to accommodate the Columbus, Atlanta, Macon and other Georgia posts.

The party will leave Savannah on the Central of Georgia at 8 p. m. Friday, June 11, arriving in Chicago June 13, at 7:03 a. m. Leaving Chicago at 6:05 p. m. the same day, they will arrive in Omaha at 6:20 a. m. on the 20th.

A. W. ROSENFELD EXPECTED HOME ON NEXT SUNDAY

A. W. Rosenfeld, of the Rosenfeld company, who is now taking a vacation at French Lick Springs, Ind., after a buying trip to New York, and the eastern markets is expected to return to Atlanta until next Sunday. On his way home he will stop at Hopkinsville, Ky., for a business visit where he will be joined by J. M. Frankel who covers that territory for the Rosenfeld company.

"FIRING LINE IS WIDELY READ" SAYS D. M'KIE

"Evidences reach us every day that the Firing Line is read everywhere," said Donald McKie, of the H. L. Singer company. "The stories we have had about Grape Smash in The Journal's Firing Line have brought us replies from all over the southern states. Just today we received inquiries from Bowling Green, Fla., Ollie, Ga., and one from as far away as North Carolina."

SINGER RETURNS FROM ENJOYABLE FISHING TRIP

Brings Back Coat of Sunburn and Many Fish Stories

H. L. Singer, president of the H. L. Singer company, returned Thursday morning from a delightful week's fishing trip to Dead Lakes, Fla. Mr. Singer was covered with a coat of sunburn, but was otherwise entirely happy, declaring that he had had one of the best times of his life.

"Dead Lakes is reached by boat from Bainbridge, Ga. It is 140 miles down the Apalachicola river, and it is so called from the great number of dead trees which are in its lakes.

"Fish of all kinds are to be found there," said Mr. Singer, "and it was no trouble to catch a big string of them whenever we chose. I myself caught quite a number of trout, grinnell, a sixty-pound turtle and a number of shellcracks, a kind of perch which are said to feed upon shells as ground shells are found in these fish when they are cut open. The place is fairly alive with bream. The land is very fertile and oranges are grown in that section, though it is rather high up for that fruit.

"I saw people everywhere I went reading The Atlanta Journal and they were all well informed about all Atlanta matters, as well as the world situation generally. Atlanta ought certainly to be proud of its newspapers, for they give it a great name and advertisement wherever they go."

D. R. Wilder Has Enviable Stock of Fish Stories Now

D. R. Wilder of the D. R. Wilder company, is back in Atlanta after a trip to Dead Lakes, Fla., and is well fortified with a supply of fish stories. Rather than implicate himself and run the risk of incurring the ire of the Florida game wardens, Mr. Wilder refuses to say more than that his trip resulted in a "great catch."

From Atlanta Mr. Wilder went to his plantation near Cairo, Ga., and put through a big cattle deal. From there he went to Dead Lakes, where he fished from Tuesday to Friday.

From those in Mr. Wilder's party were his guest, Mr. Frank Feagle, of New York, C. M. Orr and Senator Fagan, of Fort Valley, Ga., and a party from Barnesville, consisting of C. O. Summers, W. H. Hahr, J. D. Smith and J. E. Smith.

CARLTON AND MALONE TO ENTERTAIN GOLF VISITORS

Both W. B. Carlton and E. F. Malone of the Capital City Tobacco company are enthusiastic golfers. Whenever they can they are out on the golf course at either East Lake, Druid Hills or Brookhaven, enjoying the royal and ancient game. They wish all their friends throughout their territory who are golfers to know that they will always be glad to see them when they visit Atlanta and to arrange a golf game during their stay here. Atlanta, they declare, possesses as fine golf courses as can be found anywhere, and they will be glad to show all their golfing visitors what fine facilities Atlanta has for the sport.

Rotarian Hudson Will Go to Rome Fully Prepared

E. M. Hudson, of McCord-Stewart company, will go to Rome next Wednesday with the Rotarians. Mr. Hudson is one of the live-wire members of the Rotary organization and expects to have a big time at Rome. He is now preparing to take with him some present for Mr. Glover, the Rome Rotarian who on the recent visit of that club to Atlanta brought Mr. Hudson a bottle of "north Georgia corn," which, however, was in the form of grains and not of liquor. Mr. Hudson has not yet decided what the present will be, but states that it will be some such surprise as that which characterized Mr. Glover's gift to him.

"We have notified the manager of the Rome branch of the McCord-Stewart company," said Mr. Hudson, "to be ready for the Rotarians and to have matches on hand, and to have a place for the visitors to hang their coats, and be prepared to keep open house on Wednesday night until train time, however late that may be."

BETTER RAILROAD SERVICE GIVEN ENCOURAGEMENT

The Firing Line is in receipt of a circular issued by the Central of Georgia railway to its employes and also a copy of the monthly page of the Central of Georgia railway passenger department, known as The Right of Way. The circular and publication were sent to the Firing Line by W. H. Fogg, district passenger agent.

In commenting upon this circular, Mr. Fogg says: "You will note that all transportation employes are approached from many angles to be courteous, polite and economical. This will result in financial aid to the company and is also an aid to the patron."

The circular notes the experience of employes who have done something out of the way for the improvement or benefit of the service of the company.

THORNTON NOTES DECIDED BUSINESS IMPROVEMENT

J. R. Thornton, traveler for the S. P. Richards company, was at headquarters last week, very busy getting his samples ready for a return to the road. "I have made a few short trips since I came in following the close of the spring season," said Mr. Thornton, "and I find that business conditions and business feelings are decidedly better than they have been. Merchants everywhere have quit talking about the war and are looking forward to a fine business during the fall."

Firing Line Brings J. K. Orr Co. Orders From Far Countries

Order Received From Distant Bolivia for South American Interior and Another From Paris, France

Verily, The Journal's Firing Line has a far-reaching influence. J. K. Orr, head of the J. K. Orr Shoe company, makers of Red Seal shoes, is authority for this. During the past week Mr. Orr received from far-off Boliva, which is some two thousand odd miles down the South American coast, an order for eight cases of shoes, which order he attributes to a story appearing in the Firing Line.

After scurrying around for an interpreter to translate the Spanish letter, Mr. Orr discovered that the shoes will have to be packed in small cases so that they can be loaded on the backs of natives and mules to be carried into the interior. Extreme care has to be taken against loss and damage and every case is double strapped.

Another letter to Mr. Orr comes from Paris, France, where the correspondent mentions having seen the story recently published in regard to the cotton shoes Mr. Orr's company is making. "I would like to receive a pair of these shoes by parcel post," writes the Frenchman. So soon as is to be sent to him at 14 Rue Alexandre, Pradi, Paris.

NEW GERMAN TOYS REFLECT WAR SPIRIT

"The spirit of the great war that is going on in Europe is reflected very noticeably in the new German toys, samples of which we have just received this week," said J. C. Mathews, of Montag Brothers. "The samples came direct from Germany by way of Rotterdam, Holland, in a Dutch ship to New York. As I have said, the predominant note in the new toys is warlike. Very noticeable are the toy replicas of 42-centimeter Krupp siege guns. They come in several sizes. The largest of these sizes is called "Fraulein Bertha Krupp" and shoots a miniature 42-centimeter shell. There are also miniature toy submarines in great variety, as well as Zeppelins. All show the great influence that the big contest is having upon industry of all kinds. It shows that the German toy industry which was one of its greatest forms of activity is proceeding regardless of the war.

"We have already placed orders for a big shipment of German dolls. On account of ocean traffic conditions, however, we do not obtain when this shipment will be received. We have not placed our orders for toys yet, but will choose from the samples which we have and send our order back to Germany."

HIRSHBERG MEN GETTING TOGETHER VARIED LINE

All the Hirshberg travelers are still at headquarters hard at work getting ready for the fall trade. So varied and extensive is the Hirshberg line and so many new items have been added for the fall that the work of getting together the samples is taking longer than usual.

"We have many surprises for the trade for the fall," said I. A. Hirshberg, of this company. "Our travelers will be out before very long and we can assure the trade that they need not be uneasy because our men will see them all soon and will have something good for them in the way of stationery and druggists' sundries of all kinds."

CARLTON AND MALONE TO GO ON ROTARY TRIP

W. B. Carlton and E. F. Malone of the Capital City Tobacco company, both enthusiastic Rotarians, will go on the trip of the Rotary club to Rome, Ga., on next Wednesday. The occasion will be a return visit by the Atlanta Rotary club to the Rome Rotarians. The Rome club was the guest of the Atlanta organization some months ago and its time was had by every one. More than one hundred Atlanta Rotarians are expected to go on the trip and a "big time" has been prepared for them by all the Romans.

The catalogue is put out in splendid style and makes an excellent ready reference book for soda fount men.

ROSENFELD CO. RECEIVES BIG RUG SHIPMENTS

The Rosenfeld company has received within the past few weeks three or four carloads of woolen rugs which are the advance shipments of purchases for the fall made by A. W. Rosenfeld and M. J. Kent when on a trip recently to the rug mills of the east.

The company is also receiving large shipments of shade material in all colors and grades. The shade factory which was inaugurated the first of the year is proving successful beyond the expectations of the company.

This company also notes increases sales of Blabon linoleums and they announce that they have now on hand the "Contental" inlaid linoleums, which, though up to the well known Blabon standard, are less in price than the "Midvale" inlaid linoleum. The Blabon company has also recently got out "Invincible Battleship" linoleums, which are of the highest grade and come in two gauges.

SOUTHERN DEALERS IN DRY GOODS VOICE GREAT OPTIMISM

Atlanta Delegation Carries Off Many Honors at Big Convention of Wholesale Men in Nashville, Tenn.

Optimism was the keynote of the Southern Wholesale Dry Goods association convention in Nashville, May 5-6, according to members of the Atlanta delegation who returned Friday.

Atlanta came off with flying colors, every member of this city's delegation being accorded an honor in the elections. J. R. Little, of Dougherty-Little-Redwine company, was elected chairman of the third division to succeed R. K. Rambo of John Silvey & Co., who had held that position for four years. W. H. Wyatt of Ridley Williamson-Wyatt company was chosen a member of the executive committee; and W. C. Barnwell of Ragan-Malone company was named secretary of the third division.

A complete list of the new officers is as follows: E. W. King, Bristol, Tenn., president; E. B. Sydnor, Richmond, Va., first vice president; Joe Lindaur, Nashville, Tenn., second vice president; J. F. Lee, Roanoke, Va., treasurer; R. C. Watts, Lynchburg, Va., chairman first division; J. O. Hicks, Knoxville, Tenn., chairman second division; J. R. Little, chairman third division, and W. L. Davis, Nashville, Tenn., chairman fourth division. The new executive committee consists of H. F. Covington, Jacksonville, Fla., W. H. Wyatt, Atlanta, Ga., J. R. Jolly, Petersburg, Va., E. V. Fowlkes, Mobile, Ala., F. B. Hofmayer, Albany, Ga., and G. Fred Thomas, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Out of the sixty-eight firms which are members of the association, sixty-two had representatives at the Nashville meeting, and one of the most interesting addresses made were those of J. R. Little on "How to Run Your Own Business"; R. K. Rambo, on "Methods of Compensating Salesmen"; J. K. Orr on "What Terms Mean to the Shoe Jobber and Manufacturer."

The next meeting of the association will be held in Richmond, Va., at a date to be fixed by the executive committee.

W. C. Barnwell, of Ragan-Malone company, was named chairman on the exchange bureau of the association.

ALL-STAR CO. TO BE IN OLD QUARTERS THIS WEEK

"We expect to be back in our old location which has been remodeled throughout since the fire," said W. J. Steele, of the All Star Manufacturing company. "We will begin moving now in a few days and expect to be fully installed, both office and plant, in our former location at 66 West Mitchell street. We have been contemplating manufacturing right along in our temporary quarters at 58-60 West Mitchell street and have been able to keep up with all orders. We will be glad, however, to get back into our former building where all our conveniences are at hand."

CITY TRADE IS GOOD WITH DIXIE PICKLE CO.

"Our city business has shown a very large increase during the past week," said B. A. Hancock, of the Dixie Pickle and Preserving company. "This trade has been principally on vinegar, jellies and jams, as is the regular vinegar season and our sale of jellies and jams will continue now until the new fruit crop comes in."

SAMPLES AND SHIPMENTS

At the Old Guard banquet held in New York City on the 26th of April, Themelis rose-tip cigarettes were used, and every one was pleased with the elegant quality of these cigarettes and many favorable comments were heard here and there, and Colonel Kline, major commanding, directed the commissary, Captain William G. Cooke, to write to Themelis Brothers company assuring them of how much pleasure their cigarettes added to the banquet.

According to W. C. Barnwell, of Ragan-Malone company, April business was at least 22 per cent better in the notion department this year than it was in 1914, which was considered an especially good season.

W. C. Barnwell, manager of the notions department of Ragan-Malone company, has just returned from a trip to New York and other points.

J. G. Robinson, who travels western Alabama for Ragan-Malone company, was in Saturday with his usual big bunch of orders. Among other Ragan-Malone travelers who were in with good orders were Carlton Hanes, S. G. Johnson, of north Georgia, and Arthur Whitmeyer, who covers South Carolina.

J. V. Covington, head of the Covington company, of Jacksonville, Fla., the retiring president of the Southern Wholesale Dry Goods association, and Frank Bentley, of the Bently-Gray company, of Tampa, Fla., spent Friday in Atlanta as guests of W. C. Barnwell, of Ragan-Malone company.

Among the visitors and patrons of the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co., during the past week were Dr. A. G. Garrett, Austell, Ga.; Dr. W. P. Allen, Woodbury, Ga.; Dr. J. R. Wallis, Lovejoy, Ga.; Mr. Paul Selman, Douglasville, Ga.; Mr. Marchman, Bremen, Ga.; Dr. Cannon, Jonesboro, Ga.; Dr. J. B. Weldon, Woolsey, Ga.; Dr. T. J. Culpepper, Greenville, Ga.

E. G. Thomas, of the Rice & Hutchins Atlanta Co., who has just returned from a trip through Alabama, reports conditions there improving rapidly. Prospects are very bright he says, and the people with whom he came in contact were confident that the worst of the war is over.

P. J. Lee, of Americus, L. D. Slappey, of northeast Georgia, and E. F. Stone were all in at the home office of Rice & Hutchins Atlanta company last week and reported some splendid orders.

A. J. Garner, who covers the big portion of Alabama for Rice & Hutchins, is keeping up his record of sending in at least one order a day.

Among the repreesntattives of the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co. who were in at headquarters Saturday were J. G. Stanley, of east Georgia, Jim F. Finger, of north Georgia, Walker Bradford northeast Georgia, and J. M. Frix, who travels northwest Georgia for the company.

J. L. Williams writes the Rice & Hutchins Atlanta Co. from northern Florida that conditions are much better there.

L. L. Barnes, general sales manager for Themelis Bros. Co., reports some big sales in the past week among them being a big order for the Waldorf Astoria Segar company.

Stories of attempts to imitate the Themelis "Rose Tip" cigarette have brought from the Themelis Brothers, George and Nicholas, the statement that all infringements on their rights will be prosecuted vigorously, they having the sole right to the manufacture of this brand.

The Fain & Stamps travelers who were in Saturday were Cliff Edwards, W. T. Culpepper and Ben Thompson.

The enviable record being made by Cliff Edwards of Fain & Stamps has brought from W. O. Stamps a letter of strong commendation. Mr. Edwards' business in April, 1915, was better than for the corresponding periods of 1913 and 1914.

R. H. Manley, representative of Lipton's teas, is in Atlanta, busy with the southern trade.

F. W. King, head of F. W. King & Co., spent several days last week in the Atlanta office with T. B. Everett. Mr. King reports conditions greatly improved in Florida and says business is booming in Tampa and Jacksonville.

Sam Hanes, who travels the Georgia road for Ragan-Malone company, reports especially good business last week. He turned in during the week some of the biggest orders of the year.

J. H. Huff, traveler for the S. P. Richards company, was in last week from nearby points, getting ready his fall samples preparatory to returning to the road again soon.

W. E. Colton, who represents the Havana American Tobacco company, spent a few days last week with T. B. Lewis, of the Capital City Tobacco company in north Georgia. He left the latter part of the week to visit south Georgia in the interest of his company's El Principe de Gales cigar.

E. M. Hudson, of McCord-Stewart company, reports flour sales as having been very active during the past week, and that the coffee business of his company has been especially fine, notwithstanding the fact that the hot weather season is now on.

Edwin C. Bell, traveler for the Brower Candy company, topped the list in sales for the month of April. Mr. Bell was also leader in the sales during the month of March.

J. R. Callier, who travels for the S. P. Richards company, came in last week from his Mississippi territory for the purpose of getting ready his fall samples.

J. D. Simmons, traveler for McCord-Stewart company, who has headquarters at Rome, Ga., is among the salesmen of his company just now who are being commended for their fine volume of business.

Packed Big Case of Samples on Hot July Day--Covered Merchants' Store With Excelsior--Hotel Room Too Bright

BY E. P. LEWIS.

This is the story of the first road experience of a friend of mine. I will not tell his name but will relate a few of the many mishaps that befell him on his first trip.

One hot July day the president of the company my friend worked for asked him to go with him to a trunk house. The poor fellow could not understand why he was asked to go along, unless it was to bring over some kind of suitcase the "boss" might select for his own personal use. But instead, the boss turns to the man who is wondering what is going to take place, and asks him what kind of case he would prefer, then the man wants to know what the case is to be used for. The employer answers: "You have been fairly successful in selling the city trade and I am going to let you try some of the nearby towns."

Not being able to speak because of his great joy, the man points out a slatted telescope bag forty-eight inches long thirty-six inches wide and eighteen inches deep. He carries it over to the firm's place of business, gets a bale of excelsior, rakes up a few dozen pieces of glassware and as many china, a few rubber balls, baseballs and bats, two 17-quart dishpans, a dozen or so hose and proceeds to pack. After he has finished packing he goes home to sleep and dream of his trip next day.

On arising next morning he tells his wife and babies he will be back in a few days and takes his departure, catching the first train leaving the city over the Southern road.

His first stop is sixty-two miles from Atlanta. He leaves his sample case at the depot, and goes on the lookout for a customer to look at his line. He soon finds one who takes pity on him, and tells him to bring his line to the store for his inspection. The salesman makes a dive for the depot, shoulders his case, which weighs one hundred pounds or more, and goes leaping up the street the same as he did on the farm with a 200-pound bag of fertilizer.

When he reaches the store the merchant turns away to display his line on the empty counter space in front of the silk and white goods. The merchant turns away to wait on a customer who has just stepped in and on coming back to the front, finds the salesman knee deep in excelsior with china and glassware stacked all over the counter. At this point, the merchant loses his temper, and asks why in the devil he didn't carry his dray load of junk to the hotel.

The salesman answers that he did not know the town had a hotel; thought they were only in the large cities. Upon being informed that the town, though boasting only a population of 3,000 people, had a hotel, the salesman's next question was, "How could I expect to sell my goods up there?"

By this time the merchant realizes just how ignorant the fellow is and learns that this is the man's first trip out. He tries to make his explanation on a little more explicit.

The salesman gets his line together, goes over to the hotel, where he is lectured by the clerk for making a dray of himself and cheating the hackman out of a quarter by walking to the hotel. He is shown to the sample room, the sight of which renews his energy. He next unpacks his sample case, and taking a few items under his arm he canvasses the town, making sales to the merchants who handle this particular line. He frequently goes back to the hotel changes for a different line, makes another trip, and so on, and shows his samples two or three times to every one who will look at them.

Night finds him the happy possessor of thirteen orders, running in amounts of from $10 to $20. He is not satisfied with this, but is completely tired out over the day's strain. He goes to his room, and to his astonishment he finds a light burning so high he cannot blow it out. He investigates the possibility of ghosts in the room, and in looking around he notices a lot of little peglike buttons near the door-facing. He walks over and idly presses these. In a few minutes a bell boy and maid appear with hot and cold water, and inform him that the doctor has been summoned and will be up immediately. He tries to explain that he doesn't want water, and certainly does not need a doctor, saying the only thing that worries him is the light is too high to be blown out. After being shown how this is done he retires for the night.

This particular salesman was continually on the road for the next four years, and says he is sure now that he could make every town in the United States and visit every hotel from coast to coast and never again have the trouble he had on this one hot July day.

After finishing this story, the Firing Line editor insisted that Mr. Lewis tell this individual's name, saying the story would be better, but he still flatly refuses to do this, replying that he was afraid he had already let the cat out of the wallet and some one would be trying to guess.

CREDIT MEN TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING TUESDAY

BY C. E. BYRD.

M. F. Hall, representing Lexington roller mills, is at the Ansley for Sunday, reports a successful week.

J. R. Sullivan has recently joined the Red Rock ginger ale force and is on the city trade.

C. E. Byrd has been transferred to Mississippi for a month in the interest of his firm, Arbuckle Brothers.

A. G. Vining is spending Sunday at Tampa, making his Florida trip.

H. N. Hill, a popular member of Fulton council, and dispenser of Rumford baking powder, is on a three weeks' trip through Alabama.

Fulton council continues to grow. Business conditions have again become normal, the commercial traveler feeling more optimistic is seeking the companionship and protection of the great fraternal order. Recent additions to our roster are worthy of mention: W. M. Todd, with Van Camp Packing company; T. N. Blake, with Libby McNeill company; R. H. McClung, with American Tobacco company; T. E. Rhamstine, with R. O. Campbell Coal company; A. Y. Williamson, with McCord-Stewart company; J. C. Baldwin, with McCaskey company; E. M. Jones, with Crown Bottling company; B. F. Bolton, with Atlanta Journal; J. J. Kennedy, with Enterprise Manufacturing company.

Plans are being perfected for our annual picnic to be held this year at Stone Mountain, Saturday, June 5. Every member of Fulton council and his family is invited. A special train leaving at 9 a. m. will carry the crowd. Entertainment committee is making arrangements to entertain the children as well as the grown people. A band of music will accompany the crowd which is one feature added this year for those who wish to enjoy dancing.

Fred B. Thompson, representing Loose-Wilse company, handling the Sunshine line, is wearing a sunshine smile. Fred B., Jr., two weeks old, is a new arrival.

Evan McConnell, our popular junior councillor, is also the recipient of congratulations, James H. is the name given our future president at the McConnell home.

Two of our members have been sick recently with a very aggravated case of "automobile fever," George P. Byrd and R. L. Wallace. However, they are now convalescing, the fromer purchasing a new Maxwell, the latter a new Buick.

SO. GEORGIA BEES TO FILL, M'CORD CO.'S ORDER

That carload of honey bought by McCord-Stewart company from J. J. Wilder, of Cordele, Ga., recently has now about all been distributed and the McCord company has ordered from Mr. Wilder another car of his famous product to be shipped at once. Mr. Wilder has written that he has taken the matter up with his bees and they declare that they will get right on the job and see that the contract is carried out.

What Does ATLANTA Owe Her Manufacturers?

They had a meeting up in that town last December and one of the speakers was Mr. C. A. Pfeffer, secretary and assistant general manager of the Chalmers Motor Car Company.

"From 1900 to 1914 the population of Detroit jumped from 374,000 to 614,000, a total increase of 240,000 or 64 per cent. During the same period the increase in the population of the United States at large was only about 22 per cent, 42 per cent less than for Detroit. From 1900 to 1914 the total assessed valuation of real and personal property in Detroit increased from $224,371,550 to $525,856,500, an increase of $281,484,950 or 111 per cent. During the same period the increase in assessed valuation of city property throughout the United States was about 58 per cent, 53 per cent less than Detroit."

And the reason for this prosperity was soberly, sanely, wisely attributed MANUFACTURERS WHO ADVERTISE.

"Evidently," said Mr. Pfeffer, "there has been some agency at work here which did not apply with equal force to other cities. I am convinced that it was advertising—not all necessarily publication advertising, though of late that has been the biggest factor—but advertising of some sort.

"Men used to come to Detroit because it was a city of beautiful location, the greatest stove center in the world, the greatest drug manufacturing center, and the leader in a score of other lines of industry. Now it is known as the greatest automobile center also, and labor and capital flock here for that reason, too.

"Two of the first automobile factories in the country located in Detroit largely by chance. They prospered and they advertised. People came to look on Detroit as the leader in automobiles, and other manufacturers moved to Detroit to enjoy this prestige. Detroit buys her raw material from other cities, but through advertising the finished product it is she who gets the glory. The other cities where we purchase our materials are unknown, because their goods do not bear the trade-mark of a finished product; because their goods are not advertised. Detroit's manufacturers support great steel mills in Pennsylvania; leather factories in New Jersey; woodworking establishments in both the East and the West; aluminum factories in Ohio; glass factories in eastern Pennsylvania. But the prestige, the honor, the growth and prosperity which result from building the finished product all come to Detroit—because Detroit advertises."

A town owes a greater debt to her industries than to any other factor. When those industries spread her fame, the debt grows.

What has helped ATLANTA more than anything else?

Her enterprise in building factories and blowing their whistles loud and long, for all the world to hear.

Every successful factory makes business better for every other line of trade. The more goods we manufacturers turn out, the better the business of you MERCHANTS.

The more we advertise our product, the more we mean to ATLANTA.

The better and bigger ATLANTA'S fame, the larger our prosperity as a city and community.

"The Common Good"—there's the gist of the thing!

The best way ATLANTA can repay the debt she owes her advertising manufacturers is TO USE THEIR PRODUCTS.

With ATLANTA people using ATLANTA-MADE GOODS, pulling for them and boosting for them, the fame of the city will leap and grow beyond anything we have known.

You haven't the Atlanta Spirit if you don't use ATLANTA GOODS.

That's all there is to it!

Sane People Use State Asylum To Escape Prison

This Statement Is Made By Dr. L. M. Jones, for Years Superintendent of the Asylum for the Insane, at Milledgeville, Ga.

THE insane asylum at Milledgeille, Ga., is being used as a frequent means of keeping sane and guilty people out of jail.

This is a statement made last week to a Journal reporter by Dr. L. M. Jones who, for years, has been superintendent at the asylum.

The trustees, in a report made public last Wednesday, say that 78 of the patients received at the asylum last year were absolutely sane. They call the attention of the governor to this fact, and urge that a means be found to prevent the use of the asylum as a refuge for people under indictment for crime.

"There's no doubt at all," said Dr. Jones, superintendent, in his talk with a Journal reporter, "that sane people very often are sent here to keep them from going to prison. All we can do is take them in, put them under observation, and, when we become convinced beyond a doubt that they are sane, we return them to the county officials or set them free, according to the way they were committed.

"If a man who pleads crazy is under indictment for a serious offense, we are directed to return him to the court officials in the event he regains his sanity. If his crime is not much to speak of and no one's greatly interested in it, there's no such order; and he simply comes here, stays until we make sure he's sane, and then leaves, perfectly free.

"It's true beyond any contradiction that the state asylum is being used as a means of keeping out of jail a good many people who've broken the law.

"I don't know of any way to get around this evil unless we change the disposition of juries in the county ordinary's court.

"The ordinary himself, of course, doesn't decide the sanity of a defendant who's being tried on a lunacy writ. That's left to a jury that usually consists of six men, but is increased to twelve if there's a request by representatives of the defendant.

"Sometimes only a trained physician can tell whether a patient is insane or is shamming, so how can you blame a jury of inexperienced men? Still, the evil of sending sane men to the state asylum to keep them out of jail exists and ought to be remedied in some way. We haven't the time or the room to offer refuge to sane but guilty people."

Hugh Dorsey, solicitor of the superior court, Atlanta circuit, said last week that in a number of cases in Fulton county the plea of insanity has been made where jail seemed to be looming ahead of the pleader.

"You couldn't say, however," he added, "that these cases are frequent. There have been a number of them, but they have been strung out through the years. Probably we won't have more than two in a twelvemonth.

"A defendant who has been indicted for crime and who pleads insanity, follows one of two courses: Either he pleads that he was insane at the time of the crime and for that reason is not guilty; or that at the time of the trial he is not in possession of his faculties.

"If he follows the first course and wins his plea he is turned loose. If he follows the second and is successful, he is committed to the asylum."

An Atlanta attorney who asked that his name shouldn't be used, spoke last week of these provisions of the Georgia law as the most senseless in the code.

"Suppose," he said, "that Harry Thaw had been tried in Georgia. When it was proved that he was insane at the time he killed Stanford White, he would have been turned loose. The question whether he was sane at time of the trial and whether he was a menace then, wouldn't have been considered. Georgia doesn't make any provisions for the criminally insane.

"In this state, when a defendant pleads that he was irresponsible when the crime of which he is accused, was committed, the courts inquire only into the question of his sanity at that time. The question whether he's still insane and still dangerous isn't considered.

"Take the case of Clay, the man who several years ago killed his wife. He pled that he was insane at the time, and he went for months without speaking in an attempt to fool the courts into believing he was insane. If his plea had been upheld by a jury he would have been turned loose regardless of what his state of mind then was."

The late Judge John R. Wilkinson, ordinary of Fulton county, under many efforts to safeguard the law so that sane defendants under indictment for crime could not make the state asylum into a refuge from jail.

"He talked a great deal of that and of means to prevent people who are too young or otherwise unsuited from marrying," said James W. Stallings, who for years has been in the ordinary's office.

"In taking defendants from here to the asylum," continued Mr. Stallings, "I've of course had the opportunity to study them; and there's no doubt that in a good many instances sane people are sent there as a means of avoiding punishment."

In every instance where a writ of lunacy is heard, a doctor must sign the petition asking that the defendant be committed to the asylum. In this petition the doctor says he thinks the defendant is insane. According to Dr. Jones, the singing physicians frequently have been mistaken.

Janet, age twenty, reads with expression and is trained in interpretative dancing.

Alexa, age seventeen, is a violinist and probably the best woman golfer in the south.

Nora, age fourteen, is taught in dancing, reading, knows something of acting, and won the principal events for women in the water tournament last year at East Lake.

NO three girls in Atlanta have been trained so naturally as these daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Alex W. Stirling, of East Lake; and no family can show such a variety of accomplishments.

They excel at athletics, at music, at dancing, at such forms of expression as reading; and Nora, the youngest, has the gift of writing verse and little plays.

Mrs. W. K. Spiker, who is teaching her expression, said last week:

"If she wishes, she can make a career for herself. I know of scarcely anyone who has the artistic capacity of this fourteen-year-old girl."

Each of the three sisters has been raised out of doors; and by this natural method was first made strong and hardy before schooling was attempted.

When the time for books came, a governess was employed, instead of a school being chosen. It was the theory of Mrs. Stirling that children cannot be taught as well in a classroom as they can by individual instruction. She carried out this theory; and, with the exception of only a few months, none of the three sisters ever has been to school.

When they were young children, the mother herself was their teacher; and when instructions were given by a governess she has supervised this training.

The method by which the three sisters have been taught is like the method used by Mrs. Winifred Sackville Stoner, whose young daughter has aroused the wonder of educators because of the child's learning. This girl at nine years completed a whole college course.

"But," said Mrs. Stoner, in a recent interview, "she isn't unusual. She was able to do this simply because she was trained naturally. Mother Nature is our wisest teacher. Have you noticed how a cat trains her kittens? Not by turning them over to someone else, but by teaching them herself. In every way I have tried to train my daughter naturally."

With the three daughters of Dr. and Mrs. Stirling education began out of doors. Their home, at East Lake, is first of all in the country, where the air is good and there is shrubbery and grass. Just in front of the house is the lake and No. 10 tee of the golf course.

Janet, who is the oldest of the three, is not so athletic as the other two. But she had her share of outdoor sports; for health was the foundation of their education.

Alexa, who took to golf, has become by all odds the most promising golfer among southern women. She was prevented by illness from entering the woman's championship tournament last year at Knoxville, but in playing the course after the tournament she made it in seven strokes less than the winner. In a tournament for women held several years ago in Atlanta, she failed to finish first, but later won contests for driving, approaching and putting.

Not one man in fifty at East Lake or any of the other golf courses in Atlanta plays with as good form or makes as creditable scores as this seventeen-year-old girl.

Nora, the youngest, detested golf from the first and preferred swimming. She uses a stroke that keeps her head under water except when she is inhaling, and gives the impression of some little water bird as she bobs along, her head appearing for an instant above the water, then gone, to reappear several yards distant.

Central figure is Nora Stirling, age 14, in ante-bellum dress. At the bottom is a small picture of her. The other two photographs are of Janet Stirling.

But golfing and swimming were simply a part of the education of the three sisters to make them strong and healthy. It was not intended that they should excel merely at athletics.

The training in languages, in literature, in mathematics was begun at home and was continued there. Music was added, and two years ago they began to study expression.

Probably their education, which began with athletics, which continued with individual training, in which schools were avoided, and which is being completed now with the study of expression, is the most rounded, thorough and effective ever tried in Atlanta.

"Moonlight" Schools for The South

MONTGOMERY, Ala.—A campaign for moonlight schools to reduce illiteracy in Alabama will begin here with the observance June 7 of "illiteracy day." Governor Henderson has asked citizens to lay aside other concerns on that day and work only for education. Among the first southern states to have moonlight schools was Kentucky. The good done there is encouraging other states in the south to establish similar schools. "Moonlight" schools simply mean sessions held at night for grown people who are illiterate.

Lovers Go a-Foot 20 Miles to Altar

WHITESBURG, Ky.—Twenty miles a-foot over the hills, came two lovers the other day to Pardee, Va., to be married. Loyd Mullins, the groom, was 18, and his bride, Miss Florence Jones, was barely 16. Parents didn't want them to marry because they were so young. After the marriage they walked home, 20 miles over the mountains.

Meridian Horse Has a Mustache

MERIDIAN, Miss.—A horse here last week had a perfect mustache. It is owned by Marshall Thomas, who lives near Basic City, 12 miles south of Meridian. Hundreds of people saw the horse. The mustache was parted nicely, and the ends curled as daintily as a French dancing master's. Mr. Thomas said that the horse began years ago to affect a mustache, that it grew fast and had to be trimmed, but that the horse had never gone clean shaven.

Club for Lonely Girls Has Been Established Here

Atlanta, Like New York, Is Becoming a Homeless Place. It Passes People By, Forgets to Give Them Sympathy.

"YOU have no notion of the loneliness of the girl who's working in Atlanta and having to board. As a rule she feels that she has no home. It seems to her that she's thrown absolutely on her own own resources, that there's no one to give her sympathy. I don't believe any one in our whole city is quite so unhappy as such a girl. And the number of these girls is much larger than you'd guess."

Mrs. R. D. Crusoe, of 81 East Ninth street, president of the Woman's Bible class of the Central Presbyterian church, through which a new social movement for the benefit of such girls has been begun, was explaining last week the cause and the effect of this movement.

A year ago the Bible class organized a club, where the girl who works here but has no home in Atlanta may live at the minimum expense and under the happiest and the best surroundings the circumstances make possible.

The word "home" wasn't used because the club is distinctly different from the institution that usually gets that name. It isn't an institution, anyway, but on the other hand is simply an effort to substitute comforts and companionship for loneliness and cheap living.

"When we first began to study the problem of the girl working in Atlanta, away from home," continued Mrs. Crusoe, "we know that she had many privations and that her lot wasn't the happiest. But we didn't know how many lonely women there are here. People generally don't realize that Atlanta's getting to the size where it passes people by, over-looks them, forgets to give them sympathy and a kind word.

"You read of the working girl in New York who barely earns enough to buy herself food and clothes and who eats her heart out with loneliness in some cheap boarding house where there's hardly anything that isn't mean and unworthy. But you don't think of such conditions as existing in Atlanta. But they do exist here.

"There are hundreds and hundreds of girls working here whose home isn't here, who earn very little, barely enough for their necessities, who suffer utter loneliness, and who haven't anything bright or happy in their surroundings.

"I am talking now of a type of the 'working girl,' and I make a distinction between the 'working girl' and the 'business woman.' I know of no city that offers better opportunities of employment for women than Atlanta, and I know of no city where these opportunities are taken better advantage of. Among the business women here are secretaries, sales managers, etc., and they earn good salaries, some of them from $125 to $150 a month.

"But I think the average salary here for women is less then $10 a week. Yet that doesn't mean they are unperpaid. It means they are under-trained. Of course, there are some women as well as some men who are paid less than they earn. But, as a rule, the girl getting a very small salary is inefficient.

"That was not so much a part of our consideration, however, when we began to study the problem of the 'homeless girl.' From 70 to 100 young women every year 'pass through' the Woman's Bible Class of the Central Presbyterian church. That is, we see them for a little while, then they drop out.

"From these girls we first got the hint of what a lonely place Atlanta is for many women, what a homeless place. Without an endowment, with only a few hundred dollars in money we set out to establish a 'club'—I mean by that a place to live, which would have as much of the goodness of a home as we could secure, and would accomodate, at first, about 30 girls.

"This we did by renting a house at 148 Capitol avenue and furnishing it. We wanted to make the board as small as possible, so that we would be taking a minimum out of the earnings of the girl whose salary is $15 or $6 a week.

"After a year's existence we have arranged it so that we can furnish board and lodging for $3.50 a week and yet make expenses. As soon as possible we wish to move closer in town so that we will be nearer to the working places of the girls to whom we offer a home.

"Our club, as you understand, was organized by the Woman's Bible Class of the Central Presbyterian church, a class which has a membership of nearly 200.

"It isn't in any wise a charity; it is a real and a safe home; it is not a place where we do proselyting; we don't even force attendance at vesper services in the evening; we've made it purely undenominational.

"In fact, we've provided a real home, for wholesome, sweet girls who are working here away from home, and otherwise would have to put up with the cheapness of a lodging house.

"At this time we have 28 members of our 'club,' but we need provision for more. Some way there ought to be means of offering real homes to all the hundreds and hundreds of lonely women working here."

12,000 Fruit Cans For Stovall's Crop

LAVONIA, Ga.—Mr. Lee Stovall is preparing for the fruit business this year in earnest. He unloaded twelve thousand tin cans last week and carried them to his home in Lavonia. Mr. Stovall says he has no cans to sell but expects to have some canned fruit to sell along later in the summer.

100-Year Club Is Getting Slim and Rosy

Arnold Broyles Has Reduced Waist and Hip Measure Three Inches Since First of the Year.

THIS living a hundred years is rather enjoyable work. If you don't believe it, try it, and when you've finished write us how it feels.

And in the meanwhile, here's how Arnold Broyles has enjoyed the first few months of his effort to beat Father Time.

Mr. Broyles, you know, besides being clerk of the superior court, is the founder and charter member of the Century club. Its members agree to live a hundred years, providence permitting, and so to care for their physical machinery that nothing will rust, puncture, blow-out or bust before the century mark is attained.

Looks like everybody would clamor for admittance to such a club, doesn't it. To live 100 years, and see all the streets paved, and grow rich from the growing value of that forty-dollar lot purchased last year, and take a ride in an airship-jitney for a nickel—why, that seems worth while.

But the Century club began its existence last December with three members.

Now it has the same three. They are Mr. Broyles, John McCullough and Jack Stewart.

Perhaps Atlanta folk would prefer a short life and a merry one. Perhaps they'd rather live speedily than at length. Anyway, they haven't flocked to the Century club.

Exercise is the first principle of the club, wise eating the second, no worry the third. Maybe that's another reason it hasn't needed a waiting list to hold down its membership.

"I rather like it as far as I've gone," said Mr. Broyles last week. "My regular exercise and right living has taken ten pounds off my anatomy where I could spare it best. It has had a money value, too. Several years ago I discarded an English walking suit which had grown too affectionate in its clasp of my former waist. I laid it aside with great sorrow.

"A few days ago I dusted it off and tried it on. To my great joy it fit as in days of yore. My waist line and hip line are reduced three inches.

"But see what a wonderful medicine is exercise. John McCullough did not need reducing. Rather the reverse. Well, he has put on weight.

"No, it doesn't cost me much time. I leave my office at 5, arrive at the Athletic club at 5:15, spend an hour in the gym and get home at 7 o'clock. I find myself looking forward to that daily run around the track. McCullough and I work—or play—together. Stewart has cut out the gym for the summer and takes tennis at East Lake instead.

"We feel 200 per cent better since we organized the club and began regular exercise. Yes, the Century is still open to applications. But members must abide by the rules."

Sunny Side Has A Spelling Bee

SUNNY SIDE Ga.—The district school representatives won over the community in the spelling bee in the auditorium last Friday afternoon. Misses Ava Malsier and Alma Spangler were standing when the contest closed. The last to go down on the community side were Mrs. H. O. Mitchell, on carmine, and Miss Maggie Freeman on altar.

Several of the spellers after spelling the most difficult words in the book missed words of four or five letters.

Dr. Webb Conn missed all seven of the ways to spell Shakespeare and Jack L. Patterson left the "k" out of "sickle."

R. H. Darsey, who knows better now, spelled it "phnuemonia," while Fred Sanger is the guy who left the "r" out of "wrestle."

Mrs. C. R. Griffin and several others got considerably mixed up on "scarlatina."

Another contest will be held at an early date.

24-Pound Carp A Record Breaker

JEFFERSON, Ga.—A carp weighing 24 pounds, was caught by Mr. C. S. Jacks last week, and exhibited on our streets. Several weighing between 6 and 14 pounds, had been caught previous to this by different people, but the success of Mr. Jacks has knocked all hope of the other local aspirants for the fish catching honors of the season into a cocked hat. Mr. Jacks' big catch was made in Oconee river, and all the local followers of Isaac Walton are now to be found on the banks of the Oconee river. Messrs. T. A. McElhannon and M. A. Bailey carry off the honor of catching the greatest number of large carp.

Saddle Horse Dead At Age of 38 Years

ANDREWS, N. C.—"Button," the famous saddle horse of Mr. J. E. Coburn, died a few days ago at Valleytown, aged 38 years, a length of life that is rarely attained by a horse. For the past eight years Button has enjoyed a pension provided by his owner in appreciation of his valuable services in the past.

Button first saw the light of day in Scott county, Virginia, in 1877 and was brought to Graham county in 1892 by Dr. Howard and later bought by Mr. Coburn. As the infirmities of age came on, instead of being turned out to die, as is so often the case, Button was tenderly cared for until he departed for the new fields and pastures green beyond.

Georgia Doctor In France Writes Of Horrors Of War.

Letters from Dr. Henry Slack, of LaGrange, Now in France, Tell of an American in the Foreign Legion Who Died from the Bite of Vermin; of a Soldier Who Lay 36 Hours on the Battlefield; and of the Lost Babies.

DR. HENRY SLACK, JR., of LaGrange, Ga., serving with the American Red Cross at Pau, France, tells in letters to his parents and his grandmother, how:

An American in the Foreign legion of France recently died from the bite of vermin—"seam squirrels," as the soldiers call them.

How a wounded Frenchman brought to Pau had lain thirty-six hours in a heavy rain on the battlefield, his body resting on the corpses of two dead Germans, and he himself unable to move.

He mentions a heavy windstorm that swept over Pau; and, smashing the window of a hospital bathroom, caused one of the patients soaking there in hot water to be badly cut. The fellow wanted to return the next day to his regiment; preferring the trenches, he said, to a Pau bath tub.

The approaching hot weather, says Dr. Slack, will make the disposal of the dead a problem; already the flies are increasing noticeably.

He speaks of a row in the hospital when a French patient beat up an Arab; of a Parisian Apache, who forgot his wound, and rounded up a lazy attendant; and of the babies that are being born fatherless.

"Isn't it sad," he writes, "that many a one will be born without ever having a chance to see its father—in France, England, Germany, Russia?"

Dr. Slack, who is a graduate of the University of Georgia and who has many friends in Atlanta, as well as in LaGrange, enlisted in the Red Cross soon after the outbreak of war and was sent to Pau, France, where he is yet stationed.

In one of his first letters home, he says of the war:

"It's a terrible struggle, and apparently there's no end to it. The most optimistic French people are hoping that September will see the close.

"Today was Easter Sunday. The patients in ward B bought a big bunch of flowers, and one of them made a presentation speech to the doctors and nurses of the American Red Cross. It was quite touching, especially when one realizes that these fellows are paid 1 cent a day, and a bunch of flowers like that must represent four or five days for each of them. My patients presented me with a large bunch. I was really very much touched by their sentiment and thoughtfulness, and they seemed so pleased at my appreciation.

"In the afternoon the mayor made us quite a pleasant visit. He has always been so kind and courteous and helpful in every way. Easter Monday is a great holiday over here, about as much so as Christmas is at home. Everybody is out in holiday attire, no shops open—kind of a family day. When I was through with my necessary work I took the bicycle and rode about twenty-five kilometers. Went out to the aviation field and watched them fly. It surely is marvelous to see those 'big birds' rise from the ground, soar into the clouds and sail down again.

"Met two Americans who are with the aviation squad here at Pau. They were in the Foreign legion as common soldiers, and life with them was quite different from what it was and is with the regular French soldier. Spaniards, Italians, Russians and twenty-six Americans composed the legion. They suffered many hardships and deprivations, terribly infested with all varieties of vermin. They said that one chap went raving crazy and died on account of lice—"seam squirrels," they are called. They are much pleased with conditions in the aviation corps, the life is pretty fine in comparison.

"In addition to a rather full day," writes Dr. Slack, "we have had a grand finish. A nurse came running to me saying they had a fight on in their ward. I ran down at once and found a little Frenchman ruining his fists on an Arab. The way he beat that Arab up was a sight. Don't know how the row started, but I know the Frenchman got decidedly the best of the argument; gave the Arab two black eyes and a mashed up nose in less time than it takes to tell it.

"The weather is wonderful now. We surely appreciate the balmy spring days after the terrible winter. But we are so busy we scarcely have time to enjoy it.

"I must tell you about 'Tet,' a Parisian Apache, one of my patients who had tetanus. Last night I was on the ward about 12:30 to see a very sick patient. Some one had called for the orderly and no orderly came. 'Tet' woke up and immediately took hold of the situation—jumped out of bed, looked around, not finding an orderly he charged up the steps, two a clip, cussin' every step, and yelled better believe that orderly came down quick. It was too funny!

"February 22. This has been some day—as regards weather—one that the people of Pau will date things by. At least four persons (that I didn't know at all) stopped me on the street and told me they had never seen the like—never. It was a regular cyclone; ripped off roofs, shingles, signs, uprooted trees, rained in torrents. As these people rarely see a wind they didn't know how to act, and they were scared, too. One of our wounded was hurt by the storm. While taking a bath a flying timber crashed through the glass roof, and he was badly cut by the broken glass. He tore out of the bath room, very scantily attired (a necktie and a pair of socks), bleeding all over his back, arms and legs, literally scared green. He didn't stop till he got under his bed. Said he'd rather take his chances in the trenches than in a Pau bath tub!

"Last night there was a concert at the Municipal theater. The mayor's box was given to the doctors of the American Red Cross and the Irish Volunteers. As public entertainments of any kind are so rare I availed myself of this opportunity to hear some good music.

In letters to his father, Dr. Slack says:

"These days are surely 'humerus!' To give you an idea, I worked in the operating and dressing rooms till after 7 p. m. on several compound fractures of humerus—nasty cases, but opened them up thoroughly and hope to save them. Another case with a piece of shell in his arm, right on humerus; gave him a whiff of chloroform and took it out, together with a lot of wood. I asked him if he was behind a tree when wounded; he said no, it was the parapet of the trenches. Did skin-graft on a sergeant's arm—had a wound of 8x4 C. M. on lateral surface. He is an electrical engineer and quite an intelligent fellow—well up on all topics. He was asking me about Carrel's work. He had read a lot about it.

"One poor chap had no luck at all. He was wounded in his own trench by the accidental discharge of a comrade's gun. What that bullet did for his thigh at close range was pitiful. After fracturing his thigh, the ball ricochetted and tore up another man's hand.

"March 1. One very intelligent man with badly fractured femur tells how he woke up on the battlefield lying across the bodies of two dead Germans, and he lay there thirty-six hours before he was rescued, and it was raining all the time.

"We are very busy these days in the operating room—not amputating, but trying to save; quite a bit of bone planting and skin-grafting.

"Yesterday, in addition to the stir of new arrivals, we were in the operating room plating a femur in a badly infected fracture. The patient nearly died on the table, but after much hard work we managed to bring him around. For twelve hours it looked as though he would peg out. Last night a priest appeared, but it happened that a very sensible Catholic nurse was in charge. She said she didn't want to get her patient excited, so she sent for me to handle the priest. I'm glad for these poor chaps to have all the comfort they can get from their religion, but when there is a battle for life, why it's the doctor's time to hold the fort. This patient is much better now, and I surely am glad, for several French doctors witnessed the operation.

"Took a great big piece of shell out of the floor of the mouth at base of the tongue; the patient was wonderful, and the proudest thing you ever saw. The piece was all tied up in nerves and blood vessels.

"In yesterday's bunch one poor fellow had scarlet fever following typhoid. I hustled him out to the hospital for infectious diseases at once.

"Some of these patients were badly torn up. They were all wounded in the trenches about Rheims, mostly by shrapnel.

"A number of bullet wounds in the upper thigh have yielded some interesting observations. In all, the sciatic nerve was touched. In one there was complete paralysis of the foot, below the ankle, with loss of sensation, but could move the knee and hip perfectly. In another the thigh alone was affected, moving the knee and foot perfectly well. Another had the knee alone affected; another had control of all muscles except extensors of foot, but an intense neuritis along the anterior tibia.

"Recently there arrived at Pau 100 wounded for one hospital which had just been emptied of wounded Germans. Ninety-nine of the number had received anti-tetanus serum—the one hundredth man flatly refused to have it. In thirty-six hours after arriving he died of tetanus. All our patients receive from one to three doses when they get here;

Seamstress Shares in Million Dollar Estate

Mrs. Mary White, of Savannah, Has Received a $16,000-Check as Part of Her Interest in the Ware Fortune.

SAVANNAH, Ga.—Mrs. Mary White, a seamstress and repair woman at a local apartment store, has fallen heir to an estate valued at three million dollars, left by the late Washington Ware, of Knoxville, Tenn., an uncle of Mrs. White, of whose very existence she was unaware until lawyers employed to trace his relatives found her here.

Washington Ware died recently, and not knowing he had living relatives, the courts directed that an administrator take charge of his fortune. Following an investigation, it was learned that he had once lived at Athens, Ga., the former home of Mrs. White. Mrs. White and her sister, who now lives in Athens, married brothers. They are the only heirs that can be found.

Mrs. White was a Ware before her marriage. She has records to establish the fact that she is a member of that branch of the family to which Washington Ware belonged. Washington Ware was a brother of Samuel Ware, who was Mrs. White's father. Washington Ware left home when a mere boy and joined the army. Neither friends nor relatives ever heard of him after that.

Mrs. White already has received a check for sixteen thousand dollars as a part of her interest in the estate, with the promise of much more when the affairs of Washington Ware finally can be adjusted. Washington Ware was a shrewd business man, and accumulated much property in and around Knoxville.

Mrs. White is the mother of four children, with whom she will divide her unexpected wealth. These are Mrs. Edward Paine, of Savannah; Mrs. J. W. Eberhadt, of Athens; S. L. White, of Muskogee, Okla., and Charles White, of Salt Lake City, Utah. All of these will come in for a share of the vast estate, which Mrs. White says is much more than she can possibly use during the remainder of her life.

Mrs. White insists that she will retain her position at the store and continue her daily work. You can't learn an old dog new tricks, she says. Mrs. White has lived next door to poverty through the better part of her life, and the acquisition of sudden riches is already beginning to be troublesome to her.

Recently she went on a visit to relaties in the west in regard to the fortune left by Washington Ware. It was while she was in Oklahoma that the check for sixteen thousand dollars reached her. She immediately divided what she had with her children, retaining an equal part for herself.

Mrs. White's greatest delight now is to take the salesgirls out every day and treat them to ice cream and soda. It is said the manager is getting uneasy for fear she will disorganize his working force, but he has not the heart to stop here. She says she is going to devote the remainder of her life to helping working girls—that is, so much of it as may not be taken up by her duties at the store.

Mrs. White's children are anxious for her to retire, but she will not hear of it. She says she has worked hard all of her life, and that idleness in her old age would be a burden to her. Mrs. White is now fifty-eight years old. She has been a widow for many years.

Washington Ware is said to have built a home for himself in Knoxville that is a palace, in which he lived all alone. Mrs. White's attorneys have suggested to her that she go there to live, but she will not listen to it.

Took Letter Seven Years to Arrive

MACON, Ga.—Nick Christophules has received a letter that was mailed to him seven long years ago, away across the continent in Redding, Cal., for a cousin, who was in quest of a job in Macon. The cousin, Christophulos, has long since secured his job, left it, gone away and returned once more. It happens that he was working with the Macon Greek when the tardy application was received.

The letter was dropped into the postoffice at Redding August 7, 1907, following the 'quake and fire in San Francisco in 1906, which wiped out the cousin's $7,000 business and left him in serious straits. It was postmarked April 15, 1915, and therefore is believed to have rested those seven years either in that Redding postoffice, or rambling round over the country in the postmaster's pockets.

Fisherman Catches 100 Boxes of Snuff

MACON, Ga.—Tom Watts, a fisherman living on Water street, in East Macon, made a rich haul in his nets the other day, when he pulled about 100 boxes of snuff out of the muddy waters of the Ocmulgee river, half way between the Fifth street and Spring street bridges. Three or four times as much as he recovered floated away down stream and he was unable to salvage it.

The snuff had been in the water but a short time, many of the pasteboard boxes being not wetted through when he investigated. The snuff was Devoe's Scotch in quality. Watts immediately notified the police of his find.

It may have been dumped into the river by a car-breaker working in the Southern yards, who found that he had something he didn't want.

THE "JIMMY" THIEF ATLANTA'S NEWEST BRAND OF BURGLAR

He Operates in the Daytime When the Housewife Is Away Shopping. Doors and Windows Are Alike Easy to Him. Police Records Show Less Burglary Now Than Last Year.

A "Jimmy" slipped just above the lock is the favorite means of entrance.

A BIT of steel or iron, eight inches long, flattened at one end to the thinness of a blade—concealed in the pocket as easily as a fountain pen!

That's the key which has opened many Atlanta homes in the past few months. Burglars and policemen call it a "jimmy."

It is 10 o'clock in the morning, perhaps, when a decently dressed stranger rings the doorbell on the front veranda or presses the button in the corridor of the apartment house. If the bell is answered, it is a "mistake in the number," or an offer to sell some household novelty.

If the bell is not answered the jimmy comes into play. Inserted between the door and the jamb, it takes but a little pressure to force the ordinary lock through the flimsy socket which holds it, or to press back the door so the bolt may be shot back. The thief enters and closes the door behind him.

A neighbor, watching idly from next door, could not have told whether the door had been opened to a caller. There has been no violence; no noise.

In a few moments the thief emerges as he entered, but with pockets far heavier. He has gathered up bits of jewelry, silverware, perhaps stray bits of coin hidden in dresser drawers. The "jimmy" thief knows just where women love best to hide their valuables, and goes straight to the spot.

An hour later the woman of the house returns from a shopping expedition and discovers her loss. She calls the police.

They come and look over the ground. But there's absolutely no clew worth while. It's only in detective stories that thumb prints and visiting cards are left behind by thieves.

"Three-fourths of the burglary reports are received in the mornings. Most residence and apartment burglaries occur between 9 and 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when everybody is away," says Newport Lanford, chief of the Atlanta detective force.

"The jimmy thief hangs about until he sees the women of the house leave for the shopping district. Then he rings the bell and waits to see if a maid or cook is on guard. If there isn't, his work is easy."

There appear to have been an unusual number of burglaries in the past few months, but the records of the department show this isn't true. Fifty fewer cases were reported to the police in the first three months this year than for the same period in 1914. The records show fifty-seven burglars bound over, with ninety-seven cases charged against them. Fifteen of them were white boys between sixteen and twenty years old. They had thirty-five different cases registered against them.

Apartment houses have been visited more frequently by "jimmy thieves" than residences. Perhaps it's because so many persons are moving about apartment corridors that a stranger is less likely to be noticed; or because flat-dwellers are less likely to keep a servant, having less housework to be done.

"The apartment house thief is usually a dope-fiend," says Chief Lanford. But he didn't explain why.

"Some thieves will take only money—which isn't easily identified," he continued. "They will leave jewelry and silverware absolutely alone. That's why many persons discover signs of a thief's visit, but nothing missing."

What's a detective to do when he finds valuables gone, burglar gone, no clew?

Sherlock Holmes would have sat down, smoked a pound of tobacco, put a bit of dust under a microscope, and said:

"Lestrade, take two men and be at the third pillar on the Washington street viaduct at 11:29 tonight. A man will approach. He wears a brown hat, a cast in the left eye, a bruised knuckle on the fourth finger of the other hand, and he cannot pronounce the word 'biscuits.' He is the thief."

And it would have worked out perfectly, for a detective can make facts fit clews—in a book.

But a real detective! What can he do?

Well, what would you do? He has no more superhuman powers than you. Merely a little more training and experience.

Not having second sight, he goes through the pawnshops and makes the proprietors show him all the jewelry "hocked" since the robbery. Perhaps he finds some of the stolen articles—perhaps the fruits of several such robberies. These go back to their owners. The pawnbroker is seldom able to remember the appearance of the man who pawned them.

That doesn't catch the thief. So the stoolpigeon is called in.

The "stoolpigeon" is the police spy, a poor devil of a negro—infrequently a white man—who "turns up" criminals among his acquaintances. Why? Because he is afraid. The detectives "have something on him." They have caught him in some crime for which they could send him to the chaingang, but have preferred to put him to better use. He hates them, they hold him in contempt. But he serves his purpose. The negro whose mouth is closed in a white man's presence will talk freely among his own kind. The negro with money delights to exhibit it. With a drink or two, or a bit of cocaine, he will boast of his burglaries. The stoolpigeon, drawing from him the story, hastens furtively to his protector on the force. The arrest follows.

There have been comparatively few night burglaries recently. They are dangerous, and difficult. It means twenty years to be caught in an occupied home at night. It may mean death if the householder happens to awake. And Atlanta folk are locking up their homes more securely since the "burglar scare."

"The worst time is just before daylight," said a policeman on a suburban beat. "I'll tell you why. If we see a strange man prowling about after midnight and before dawn we naturally want an explanation, and he'd better have a good one.

"Bust just before daylight there are hundreds of servants going to their work. They are on an honest mission, and there are so many of them that we can't question them all. So it is easy for them to enter a yard, slip around to the back, find or pick up what may happen to be lying loose in plain sight. Most people sleep pretty soundly just before sun-up, too."

Raiding the houses of suspects is one of the few practicable methods of catching thieves.

Lawsuit Ends After Being In Court 38 Years

HOMER, Ga.—Bob Crump collected a few dollars here last week on the settlement of a lawsuit between himself and his two brothers, which has been pending for thirty-eight years and has cost Bob about $3,000.

It was all over forty acres of land that wasn't worth much to begin with, and it was settled by the judge awarding Bob two-fifths of the acreage, one brother two-fifths and the third one-fifth.

This is the outcome of a lawsuit that began when Bob Crump was sixteen years old, and wasn't settled until he was fifty-four years, one month, and two days old.

The whole trouble really started forty years ago when the three brothers were just boys. They quarreled about a wagon wheel—there was some little dispute over it that didn't amount to anything—and since that time Bob hasn't spoken to the other two and they haven't spoken to Bob. All those forty years they've lived within sight of each other, and two of them, "Mem" and John, haven't spoken to Bob, and Bob hasn't spoken to them.

Thirty-eight years ago they went to court over forty acres of land, "Mem" and John saying it was theirs, Bob saying it was his. In the courts this suit remained, see-sawing back and forth, never being decided, and neither side being willing to give up.

Two of these brothers hated the third, and he returned the hatred, so that all were willing to spend three times the worth of the lawyer's fees just to win. There never has been a case where the contestants were so stubborn. The result is the suit has gone on year after year, year after year; and now the land's been divided up so that two get an equal share, and John just one-fifth less than the other two.

Still they're living in sight of each other, and still they're not speaking.

Brady Runs His Own Postoffice Now

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla—J. W. Brady was for seven years postmaster at Haskell, Okla. He lost his job, and friends gathered to offer condolence for Brady had no other occupation and his finances were known to be limited.

"Don't worry about me, I'll start a postoffice of my own," said Brady to sympathetic friends.

Brady personally owned the fixtures in the Haskell postoffice and a few days later he loaded them on a big wagon and hauled them over to Oiltown, a few miles distant—a rapidly growing oil center which had been overlooked by Uncle Sam in the distribution of postoffices. Residents of Oiltown, prior to the arrival of Brady, had been getting their mail at Jennings, seven miles away.

Brady charges 15 cents a week for box rent, 1 cent additional for handling each individual's mail, 25 cents for delivering a parcel post package and 5 cents for two-2-cent stamps. If a person rents a box he must pay the 15 cents per week in advance, and in addition he must pay 10 cents a week to get his mail. Brady has 300 boxes and they are all rented. As a part of his postal routine he makes a daily trip to Jennings, where he receives all the mail for Oiltown in bulk. Incidentally, he operates a hack line between Oiltown and Jennings.

It is probable that Brady is the only man who has ever owned a postoffice. And it is also probable that no other man would have adopted the method he did. And yet it shows that wherever there is a will there is a way. Brady had the will and he found the way.

Now, in the course of time Oiltown will be recognized as a point of sufficient importance for Uncle Sam to establish a postoffice. When this happens Brady may get to be postmaster for the government, or some other fellow may land the job.

But, even if he should lose in a race of that sort there is reason to believe that Brady will be able to take care of himself.

The friends of Brady will have no occasion to worry about him.

Old Mexican Coin Found by Children

MR. FRED L. LEWIS, of Stamp Creek, has a coin of a rare type. It was found by his children while at play under the house of Mr. Monroe Goodson.

The coin is a Mexican coin of the size of our silver dollar. It is a combination metal seemingly silver alloyed with brass or copper or both. It has on one side the inscription "8 R 1, 1840. O. M. 10 D! 20c." On the other this: "Republica Mexicana."

Friends of Mr. Lewis have assured him they believe he has a coin of much value, owing to its age and apparent rarity. No one can tell how the coin could have got where it was found.

Clothes Here Change From Barbarism To Art: Powder Puffs Are Becoming a Memory??

By Angus Perkerson

CLOTHES this year are 'paintable.' A year ago they were atrocious—tight, awkward, gaudy, every woman so bound-up she stumped along as though about to fall on her nose.

"I believe the too-gay colors increased our powdering and painting, and that the more modest dress this year has left us with 'natural' faces and not 'Indian' visages.

"At opera I noticed fewer 'fixed-up' features—in every way, we had better dressed, and prettier audiences."

IN fact, an interview last week with Miss Virginia Woolley, of 89 East Park Lane, on the artist's view of Atlanta styles, was approval—entire, complete—of this year's fashions, and a shudder—long drawn out—at last year's fads.

Miss Woolley, by paintings of unusual technical excellence and sympathy that gives her work a warm, likeable quality, is most prominent among the artists here.

She has studied at the chief American art schools and in Paris, and has a critical knowledge of art.

"Clothes," she agreed, "are an important consideration in painting. They are as important to the model as face and expression. Take all back through the years, clothes have expressed the time and the character of the person as much as his appearance and manner.

"The clothes in Atlanta last year were the most 'unpaintable' I can conceive. They had harsh, severe lines, they were stiff, they were uncomfortable, the colors were vivid and unpleasant, women couldn't walk, they stumbled along. Every now and then you'd expect one to fall on her nose.

"But what a change there has been. This year everything's comfortable and graceful. It is because of this comfort and this grace that people like the styles and not because they repeat the fashions of our grandmothers. Anyway, that's my opinion.

"You hear people say: 'Why, we're going back to the old fashions,' I think the truth is we're going back to grace and good sense.

"I think, too, we're getting away from paint and powder. Last year it seemed that women here painted themselves up more like Indians than white human beings. But I believe this partly was due to the fashion of dress.

"Colors were so harsh, lines were so unpleasant, the whole effect was so 'fast,' that to paint and powder was in keeping with the clothes.

"But now you don't find it that way. Modesty, quietness, good taste are characteristics of appearance. As I said at first, never were styles and the wearers more 'paintable.'

"I'm delighted with the manner of dress in Atlanta this season, with the grace and the comfort of it, and I intend this summer to paint costumes—such as you see here on the streets.

"I believe it is true that the harsh colors last year caused atrocious combinations of dress and hair. With such vividness of coloring, discords were very probable unless much care was given to harmonize gown, hair and complexion.

"This season women can dress better with less effort because the softer colors are less likely to contrast harshly with features or coiffure.

"Anyway, I think colors in the spring should be subdued and that red and orange should be left for autumn and winter.

"What we need really to understand color is an art museum. Atlanta is more in need of nothing else. Take my pupils, for instance. I can tell them about a picture and they can read of it, but they don't really understand what I've said or they've read until they see the picture or a copy.

"Savannah has an art museum, and a sum is put side there every year, as in European cities, for the purchase of new pictures. It's not very much, but every year the Savannah art gallery is increasing.

"We have a lot, given us at Piedmont Park by the city to be used as the site for an art gallery. But the gift, as I understand, will be withdrawn unless the gallery is begun this year. Why can't we at least make a beginning, build a part of it, get a few pictures, and add to the museum as the opportunity offers.

From here the talk changed to Europe and the effects the war there on art.

"They'll be just as eager for art works after the war as they were before," said Miss Woolley, "because they need art. You have no notion how eager they are in France for the purchase every year of the pictures for which the government sets aside a large sum.

"While I was in Paris we would take week-end trips to the small towns, and each one had its art gallery, towns that in America would never think of such a thing. In some ways they are far ahead of us, in others, just as far behind. The French people impress me as grown-up children.

"The center of art in America is of course New York, though the best 'foundation' schools—schools for the first three years' study—are in Chicago.

"Here in Atlanta there's much to paint, much that's picturesque, even poetic. Take Ponce de Leon avenue, looking toward Peachtree, with the Georgian Terrace and the Ponce de Leon apartments looming up. I can't say, however, I painted that scene with a great deal of pleasure. I happened to pick out a day when there was a baseball game, and everyone who went to the game stopped on the way back to look at me painting. People here seem to think you're queer if they see you with a paint brush in your hand. When I get on a street car now with a palm box I want to wrap the box up for fear of seeming odd.

"And there's no more picturesque spot in Atlanta than Piedmont Park lake. With the sparkle of the sun on the water, and people splashing about, it's a subject worthy of any brush."

Miss Virginia Woolley and one of her pupils.

Georgia Doctor, In France, Writes of Horrors of War

it seems they are giving it to everybody now, but it must be optional.

"Among my last patients was a sergeant who has made the whole campaign since August 1, and was wounded at B. Said they counted at least 1,000 German corpses right in front of their lines. Now that the hot weather approaches it is going to be a tremendous problem to care for the dead, because, unless methods are changed, epidemics are bound to break out and play havoc. The flies are already increasing very noticeably."

In letters to his grandmother, Dr. Slack writes:

"The mufflers and little socks you made for my wounded came yesterday, and I am glad they arrived at this particular time, for some of my patients were just going back to the front and I could give them a parting present; and so pleased to tell them my grandmother made them. And the baby socks made the biggest hit of all. Had two patients in my ward with youngsters recently arrived, and those two men were just too pleased for words to have something to send home to the kids they had not seen. They sent them right away to their babies, with the message they 'hoped they would be seeing them soon.'

"Today on the ward a nurse showed me a picture of a baby, and right straight I named his 'daddy'—for he was his 'spittin' image' as Mammy Jane used to say. If I can get hold of one of those pictures, will send it to you. It is a dear little baby. Isn't it sad to think that many a one will be born without ever having a chance to see its father—in France, England, Russia and Germany?

"It is difficult to say how the French people observe Lent, for this is not a fair year to judge them. There are so many, many homes visited by the angel of death, there is, of course, an element of sadness in all public gatherings. They are very religious now; people who never went near a church, I am told, now attend mass regularly, and there is a general return to religion.

"One afternoon recently, while off duty I went out to pay some dinner calls. At one place I met Lady N——, just returned from England. Among other things she was discussing the different attitude that prevailed in England, contrasting it to the general gloom prevalent in France. I think I have written home how this had impressed me, and sent some interesting clippings on the subject.

"We sent out a bunch of patients yesterday morning, and we surely did hate to see them go, but not as much as they hated to leave. Two poor chaps wept freely. One to leave was my favorite sergeant, only twenty-two. The poor boy feels so entirely alone in the world —his family in the hands of the Germans, and he has not heard a word from them since last September. It almost broke Sister G's heart to see him leave (he was in her ward). He said when we stopped hearing from him we would know he was dead or captured.

"It surely is hard to send these boys back to that terrible carnage, especially when they have been wounded two or three times. But we have instructions to evacuate as fast as possible, and they are sending them in just as fast as we get them out. They are trying to have the fighting forces replenished as rapidly as possible.

"I saw about as pathetic a death yesterday as one could imagine. Chap badly shot up, developed pneumonia. He was married and had two children, but none of his family could get here. He put up one of the bravest, gamest fights I have ever seen, but to no avail. Gave him oxygen all night. About 2 a. m. he called for his box, took out a card, scribbled a farewell to his wife, asked what time it was, and said he would be dead at 3 o'clock. But we managed to keep him alive until 6:20. From the time he came to us he was very sick, and he realized it fully, but he never uttered one word of complaint.

"Was talking to a man today about the different points of view that prevail in the United States and in Europe. Over here a man strives and saves (but never in the incessant, feverish manner that characterizes our people) until he has a certain sum that will yield him an income—not always large—then he lives. We have many things that we can learn from these people, and there are other things we can teach them. In looking over the death list for Pau each week, I have noticed that practically all deaths are under fifteen months, or over seventy-five or eighty years.

"March 11. There has been considerable excitement in our unit over prospects of going to Serbia. They had a bad epidemic of typhus fever and smallpox—one of our A. R. C. doctors, Donnally, died of typhus—and the conditions are so terrible Serbia called for help from the allies. The French are taking steps to send out 100 volunteers and the British likewise. Dr. Kirby Smith received a cable from Washington Red Cross asking if one surgeon and three nurses would volunteer for service in Serbia—suppose that they selected our unit because we are nearer in point of time. Of course, everybody wanted to go, but Dr. Kirby Smith, our director, is going himself and he has picked out his nurses. They cabled him to proceed at once and take charge of one of the posts, so they will get away day after tomorrow. It is a wonderful opportunity and I am hoping that I may yet have a chance to get into it.

"In addition to the Serbia excitement there have been daily arrivals of wounded. We have every bed full and the majority of cases are bad. All the patients we have received lately are from Perthes —they are making some progress there, but it is costing dear.

"Many of the last convoy have been wounded the second time. They can tell some terrible tales.

"April 11. Yesterday we had a visit from the mayor and prefect. They came at 3 o'clock and stayed until 6 o'clock. They spoke to every patient in the hospital, inquired about their wounds, their occupations and homes, encouraged them in every way possible. They were the quintessence of politeness and courtesy. When the prefect left he assured us that his position had called for many visits in hospitals all around, but he had seen none better than the American Red Cross. That the wounded who came under our care were indeed fortunate and that he was proud to have us at Pau. Also said that they had received notice from the minister of war to provide 500 additional beds at Pau, and that they would put in as many as possible at the American Red Cross. You remember that I wrote you that in October we put in 300 beds, and if it became necessary, and we made good in our work, we had room to double that number. Since the first of March we have had the greatest rush, full all the time, with orders from headquarters to send out convalescents as fast as possible to make room for others, and at present there is not a single vacant bed."

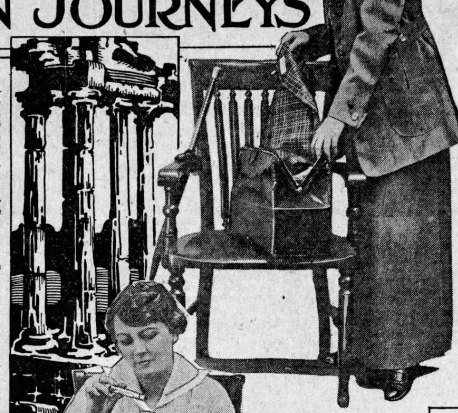
CONCERNING HEALTH AND BEAUTY

BY MRS. HENRY SYMES

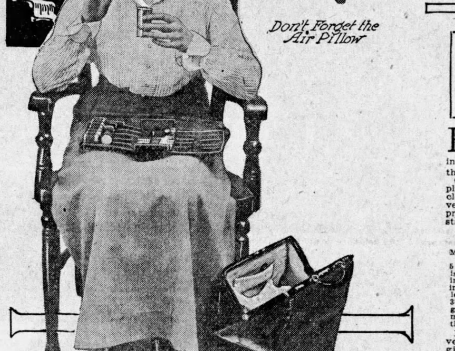
COMFORT AND CLEANLINESS ON VACATION JOURNEYS

Dark Glasses Will Rest the Eyes

The Pullman Apron Is Most Convenient



Don't Forget the Air Pillow



A Medicine Case Proves Valuable in an Emergency

Use Alcohol to Cool and Cleanse the Skin

TO SOME it may seem early to be talking about vacation journeys, but it is not only to the summer vacation that this little talk has reference; it applies also to the week-end trips one takes to rest the mind and body after five or six days of hard toil. Such a short visit is truly an intermission of procedure—which is one meaning of a vacation.

For the health, beauty and comfort of the individual it is expedient to make practical preparations for the journey to be taken. A sense of comfort and cleanliness has a wonderful effect upon the disposition; and since a congenial and happy disposition is essential to outward beauty, it behooves every reader to bear the following suggestions in mind:

There are times during the journey when one would like to rest the head for a few minutes. A feather or pine-filled pillow cannot always be included in the traveling bag because there isn't enough room; but the kind of pillow shown in the photograph can easily be tucked away in the leather bag and blown up to proper fullness when the desire for a pillow arises. I know of one woman who always takes an air pillow away with her on her journeys, especially in the summer. She says that it is of great service on extremely hot nights, when a feather pillow is too warm and one feels the need of some kind of an elevation for the head.

Have you ever been traveling over land or water and had the sunlight blind your eyes so that your face was drawn up into thousands of tiny wrinkles? If Forethought had been your middle name you would have taken on your journey a pair of dark glasses that were large enough to keep the rays of the sun from reaching your eyes. The next time you go off on a journey do not forget to take along a pair of dark glasses. At the seashore they are a great blessing when one is sitting or walking on the beach. Remember that the habit of drawing the face up into hard lines is a fine beginning for permanent wrinkles. And you don't want them, I know.

A small quantity of alcohol should be carried on the journey; also a supply of absorbent cotton. By bathing the face with the cotton, saturated with alcohol, you will cleanse the skin and feel wonderfully refreshed for the rest of the trip. After each application of the alcohol the cotton can be thrown away without any sense of wastefulness.

Out of kindness for your fellow-travelers and for your own convenience you should by all means have a pullman apron to accompany you on your journey. The kindness will be demonstrated by your having all your toilet articles conveniently tucked away, so that when ablutions are over you will be ready to leave the dressing room and will not have to spend several minutes picking up the various articles. You can buy a pullman apron or you can make one from rubberized cretonne.

Do not fail to include a medicine case of modest size in your baggage. Perhaps you will not have need for it on every journey, but you remember the old saying about the ounce of prevention. There are all sorts of medicines that might be packed into the case, but every person knows her own weakness best, and is the only one to decide what shall be tucked into the case. One thing that should not be forgotten, however, is aromatic spirits of ammonia. Although you may not need it, you might have an opportunity to play the good Samaritan to one or more of the traveling company. The leather cases are rather expensive, so that if you wish to secure something that costs a little less, it may be better for you to make a case of rubber-lined material.

Instead of the usual kimono a woman will feel less conspicuous if she will wear one of the new pongee kimonos which resemble a pongee or linen duster. Indeed, they are so much alike that the new kimono might well be worn on automobile drive. Some of the kimonos are provided with hoods. It would be practical to have one of this variety, for then the hood could be slipped over the head in place of a boudoir cap as one passes from her berth to the dressing room.

Did you ever stop to think that gormandizing on the dining car is often the cause of car sickness? A traveler should not eat more than is absolutely necessary to allay his or her appetite. There are some people who become car sick without eating anything, but to allay this feeling they should take a lemon along on the journey. This often acts as a cure and sometimes as a preventive. There are some women who find that a piece of brown wrapping paper or writing paper pinned over the chest will prevent car sickness. Whether there is medicinal value in the paper or whether mental suggestion plays an important part in such a case I cannot say, but the treatment has proved efficacious in many instances.

When traveling with children it is a good idea to slip a never-ail apron over their dresses so that at the end of the journey they will look just as clean as they did at the beginning. Do not forget to prepare some sort of amusement for the children. Railroad journeys are tiresome to grown-ups, and they must be more so to the little ones.

It is also advisable to have pieces of cheesecloth or crepe in your traveling bag to use as washcloths and towels. These can be thrown away when they have served their purpose, and one of the rules of sanitation will be thus obeyed by a thoughtful traveler.

ANSWERS TO BEAUTY QUERIES

REPLIES to letters to the writer of this department will be printed in regular order; but no replies in print may be expected in less than three or four weeks.

Correspondents desiring immediate replies to queries may get them by inclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope. Personal inquiries will receive prompt attention if accompanied by a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Good Proportions

My Dear Mrs. Symes:

I am a young girl of 19 years. I am 5 feet 5 inches tall, weigh 127 pounds, bust is 32 inches, shoulders 40 inches, wrist 6 inches, ball of arm 11½ inches, waist 26 inches, bust 33 inches, hips 38 inches, calf of leg 13 inches, ankle 8½ inches, shoes size 3½ and 4, and gloves size 6½-6¾. Am I in good proportion? If not, what measurements are not good, and how may I correct them?

BLACK EYES.

I think your proportions compare very favorably with the proportions given by medical authorities for the woman of five feet six. The calf of the leg may be a trifle large, that charted for a woman five feet five being only fourteen and a half inches; but this is no serious difference.

Blushing

My Dear Mrs. Symes:

Will you please tell me how I can cure myself of blushing? Also, what can I do for an oily face?

BLUSHER.

Blushing is a result of self-consciousness. You don't think so much of what others are thinking of you, develop your mind and forget yourself. For an oily face try the following lotion:

Skin (Oily)

Sulphate of zinc	2 grains
Compound tincture of lavender	2 drops
Distilled water	1 ounce

For Oily Skin

Banish all rich and greasy foods, for diet has a great influence on the condition of the skin. Wiping off the face occasionally with diluted alcohol (25 per cent strength) is beneficial in the case of an oily skin. A few drops of ammonia or a pinch of borax in the water with which the face is washed is also helpful.

Wearing a Corsage

My Dear Mrs. Adams:

I have accepted an invitation for dinner and the theater from a young man. What I want to know is, whether one should remove a corsage from the coat when dining and whether wraps must be checked at the theater?

PEG.

You may remove the corsage either in the dressing room of the hotel or restaurant or where you leave your coat or at the table when you slip off your coat and pin the flowers to your waist. It is more comfortable to check wraps in the theater, but not necessary.

Procedure at Wedding

My Dear Mrs. Adams:

Kindly give the procedure at a wedding when there is to be a maid of honor and two bridesmaids, a best man and ushers.

ENGAGED.

The ushers walk first upon entering the church, followed by the two bridesmaids together, the maid of honor alone, then the bride on the arm of her father or whoever is to give her away. They meet the groom and best man at the chancel steps, where the father relinquishes his daughter to the groom and returns to his seat. During the ceremony the party form a crescent, with bridesmaids and maid of honor at left and ushers and best man at right. After the ceremony, the bride and groom proceed, followed by the maid of honor and best man, the bridesmaids each on the arm of an usher.

Suffers From Bashfulness

My Dear Mrs. Adams:

I am a young man of 19. When introduced or when in the company of ladies, I am very bashful, timid and embarrassed. Please tell me by your column what I can do to overcome this.

R. T. K.

Bashfulness is self-consciousness, and this comes from thinking too much of the impression you are making upon other people. Try to forget yourself. Be sure, in the first place, that your manners cannot be criticised; study an etiquette book, if necessary, and then forget them entirely. Take an interest in the conversation of others about you; this will help you forget about yourself.

Wedding Garb

My Dear Mrs. Adams:

Should I wear a veil on my wedding hat and how should it be arranged? If married in my going-away suit, should I wear the coat of it at the ceremony? Should the groom keep his gloves on for the wedding ceremony?

TRIDIM.

I would not wear a veil on the wedding hat; that can be added later if you are going directly upon your wedding trip. Wear the coat of your suit by all means, unless the day is very warm and the suit is a three-piece one with an elaborate waist of the suit material. The groom removes his gloves before the ceremony, and gives them, with his hat, to the best man to hold.

Large Pores

My Dear Mrs. Symes:

Will you please tell me what makes large pores on the face, and how I can get rid of them?

I also have a number of blackheads on my forehead, which, though I keep my skin perfectly clean, I cannot get rid of.

R. L.

Some persons are naturally coarse-skinned or large-pored, but this condition is usually the result of the use of too much soap upon the face without the final cold douche. After washing the face, always rinse well with cold water to close the pores, and try the following lotion:

Lotion for Enlarged Pores

Boric acid	1 dram
Distilled witch hazel	4 ounces

Apply with a piece of old linen or a bit of absorbent cotton.

The following treatment for blackheads is recommended very highly:

Green Soap Treatment for Blackheads

Tincture of green soap	2 ounces
Distilled witch hazel	2 ounces

Let this mixture stay on only a few moments, then wash off with hot water.

If the green soap irritates the skin, as it sometimes will, use every other day. Apply a cold cream.

Green soap may be purchased at any drug store. It is not a regular "cake soap," but is of about the consistency of custard.

Open each seed acne with the point of a fine camphic needle. The hardened mass must be pressed or picked out. The empty sac of the gland should then be bathed with a little toilet vinegar and water, or with a very weak solution of carbolic acid and water. Sterilize the needle before using it by dipping into boiling water, as the use of any instrument, unless it is kept well at the needle is thoroughly cleansed, is always dangerous.

For Light Hair

My Dear Mrs. Symes:

Will pure lemon juice make the hair lighter? My hair is a sandy or ruddy copper color, and I would like to have it lighter without dyeing my hair. Can borax or peroxide be used? KATIE L.

The juice of a lemon strained into the last rinse water will help somewhat to make the hair much lighter. I would not advise using the lemon juice undiluted. Borax will also lighten the hair, but it is very drying. Peroxide is excellent, if not so harmful, but I would not experiment with it otherwise.

Too Dark

My Dear Mrs. Symes:

I am a young man of oriental descent, with very dark hands and face. Is there any harmless bleaching drug that I could use? Also, please tell me how I may increase my weight.

If you inherit a dark complexion, there is nothing you can do to lighten it. The natural pigment of the skin cannot be changed as you can bleach tan or freckles. To increase your weight you should exercise freely in the open air to induce sleep, and cultivate the appetite. Eat only nourishing foods, and masticate your food thoroughly. Do not fret.

Premature Wrinkles

My Dear Mrs. Symes:

I am quite young, but have quite a few wrinkles underneath my eyes. What can I use to remove these wrinkles? I also have very large pores, and I would like a remedy for them.

EVY E.

You should massage the face with a good skin food. The following is very good for wrinkles:

Cream of Sweet Oranges

(A Skin Food)

Sweet oil of almonds	2 ounces
Orange-flower water	2 ounces
White wax	1 ounce
Oil of sweet orange	1 dram
Spermaceti	½ ounce

Half fill a saucepan with boiling water. Stand a jam jar in this. Shred the wax and spermaceti into the jar. Let it dissolve. Heat almond oil and add to the wax. Heat orange-flower water and add a teaspoonful at a time, beating the mixture quickly. Lift the jar out of the saucepan. Beat mixture well until white. Heat and add oil of sweet oranges. Whisk cream until it is cold. Put in pots and cover with parchment.

For large pores, take care that you always rinse the face well with cold water to close the pores and use the following lotion:

Lotion for Enlarged Pores

Boric acid	1 dram
Distilled witch hazel	4 ounces

Apply with a piece of old linen or a bit of absorbent cotton.

Ingrowing Nails

My Dear Mrs. Symes:

Please tell me what causes ingrowing toenails and how I can prevent them.

Mrs. R. R. V.

Ingrowing toenails are caused, like most foot troubles, from improper footwear and from the improper method of cutting the nails. If the shoe is too short or too narrow, or the nail is cut too short, especially at the angles, the skin is forced over the nail, and when the nail grows it forces its way into the flesh. The toenail should be cut in a concave form, the outer angle projecting beyond the toe. If the flesh has a tendency to grow over the nail it should be pushed back and held this way with strips of adhesive plaster. If your feet are in a very bad condition I should advise you to consult a good chiropodist until you feel that you can do your own prevention at home.

ADVICE ON SOCIAL CUSTOMS

Miss Chester Adams most cordially invites her friends to bring to her their Social Problems and Perplexities by letter at any time.

[If a personal reply is desired, a self-addressed stamped envelope should be inclosed.]

COURTESY BETWEEN MOTHER AND DAUGHTER

"WHAT'S wrong with our daughters?" mothers have been asking for at least two generations; but only a few radical daughters have dared to put the counter question, "What's wrong with our mothers?" Both are right in asking the question, and both are wrong in the answering. It seems almost like begging the question, or reasoning in an absurd circle, to state that if our mothers would wake up, we daughters would show more filial deference, and if we showed greater consideration and sympathy at home our mothers would realize their shortcomings. But the fact remains that mothers and daughters are growing apart and that only mutual efforts will bridge the situation.

Every generation, your grandmother will tell you with a quiet smile, grows apart in time; it is only the natural sign of progression. But daughters have been progressing at such a hair-raising clip for the last few years that it is a breathless proposition for the most "advanced" mothers to keep pace. Progression is a fine thing—if it takes tolerance along; and conservative old age is beautiful if tolerance is with it at the end of the journey. But it is this essential quality that mothers forget and daughters ignore, and the lack of which is responsible for the absence of that mutual deference which should be the basis of the relations between mother and daughter.

Mothers forget that unmarried daughters ever grow up. The married daughter is admitted into the maternal body of hollies as a fellow married woman, though even here a mother is apt to make the mistake of over-zealous care for the new household, forgetting again that youth must learn from experience and not from too evident advice. But the unmarried daughter is just as much of a baby to the mother as when in the crib. One mother I know actually plans the wardrobes, superintends the pleasures and keeps the bank accounts of two daughters both over 30, one a school teacher with ten years' experience and the other the secretary of a large business concern. These daughters fuss and fume under the maternal yoke, but because of their love and respect for the mother have uttered no protest. Such a situation can lead to only two outcomes, that described and the other where, the daughter protesting too much and the mother still unyielding, a continual warfare of personalities results. If mothers would only remember that their daughters are women and that after a certain age the difference of twenty years or so shrivels up completely!

There is the other side to be considered. The daughter has been away to school or college. She comes home to find her mother shabbily dressed, slipping into an occasional grammatical error, and too tired from household pressure to enjoy a good concert or a new book. The daughter throws up her hands, says "Poor mother is so frightfully impossible," and starts on a crusade of Paris fashions, grammar correction (often in public) and improving lectures to which mother submits humbly, but with a rebellious heart. The daughter is trying in a tactless, tactless way to pull the tired mother along the road of progression with her, while the mother, held back by age and generations of unbroken conventions, is inwardly irritated by the line the daughter is trying to tell her things that she has known for years.

The ideal balance will come when daughters remember to stop occasionally in their mad onward rush to consider their mothers with that tolerance which should be the earmark of all progression and education, and in that when their time comes to watch their daughters pass them by to admit the importance of youth and to respect its power and understanding.

Is this too Utopian, too impossible? Well, at least it is an ideal toward which we will all be the better for working.

SOLUTIONS TO SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Leaving Cards

DEAR Mrs. Adams:

I have recently married and a lady called and left two cards. Should I leave one for my husband and one for myself when I return the call?

LOUISE.

If your caller is a married woman you should leave one of your own cards and two of your husband's. The reason for this is that a woman never leaves cards for the masculine portion of the family, while a man will leave cards for both husband and wife.

"Company-Keeping"

My Dear Mrs. Adams:

I have been keeping company with a young man for the last seven years. Although he seems to give me lots of attention, we are not engaged and he has never told me that he intends to marry me. Would you advise me to ask him what his intentions are or to simply discontinue our company-keeping?

ROSE.

If by "company-keeping" you mean that you accept no calls or invitations from any other man, you are making a big mistake to allow this to go on as long as you have without being engaged to the young man. He is very selfish if he has no intention of marrying you, and even if he does intend to do so he is putting you in rather an embarrassing position. I would certainly break up such a situation, but I would not ask. The young man will tell his intentions after. Merely let him see that you resent his timidity or his fickleness, whichever it is. This may wake him up.

Returning Photos

My Dear Mrs. Adams:

I have two photographs of a girl. We "broke up" several months ago, and I have not been requested to return them. I do not know what to do. I want to do what is right about it. Please advise me.

QUANDARY.

If the girl has not returned any of your gifts or pictures and has not asked for her photographs to be returned, it would really be more courteous if you did not return the photographs to her, but allowed the matter to drop without any more allusions to it.

A Theater Treat

My Dear Mrs. Adams:

I have received an invitation from a young lady whom I have known for several months to accompany her to the theater, using two tickets which she has herself purchased. I am in doubt whether to accept and pay for the tickets or what to do. Will you kindly advise me?

Many girls do this thing nowadays, and there is no reason why you should not accept the invitation without offering to pay for the tickets. There may be reasons where a girl is situated so that the only way she can return kindness from a man is to buy the tickets for the theater, but it seems like stretching a point, as it is apt to put the man in an embarrassing position. Tickets that are given to a girl or those which she has been obliged to purchase for charity, etc., are a different matter.

In a Gift Necessary?

My Dear Mrs. Adams:

My friend and I (also our husbands) have been invited to a wedding at the church only. Neither we nor our husbands are acquainted with the bride-to-be, and our acquaintance with the bridegroom is slight, although our husbands are employed by the same firm as the bridegroom. Kindly inform me if a gift is necessary.

IN DOUBT.

If your husbands are intimate with the groom a gift might be expected, but if the acquaintance is slight and only a business relationship the gift is not necessary.

Congratulating the Bride and Groom

My Dear Mrs. Adams:

I am going to a church wedding. Will you kindly tell me how I should congratulate the bride and groom and what I should say to them?

MRS. B.

Unless you are invited to the wedding reception, there will be no chance to congratulate the bride and groom at the church. If you should have the opportunity of speaking to them, congratulate the groom by saying, "Let me congratulate you, Mr. Blank," and to the bride, "My best wishes for your life-long happiness."

Accepting a Seat in Car

My Dear Mrs. Adams:

What is the opinion of rising in a crowded trolley to give your seat to an older man or woman? I have had the very unpleasant experience of offering my seat to a considerably older man or woman, only to have them indignantly reject it. I think a young girl should rise for an old man or woman, don't you? But I do not like to be "squelched."

EIGHTEEN.

The error is with the unreluctant man or woman, who should have accepted your seat with thanks. Do not make the mistake, however, of offering your place to a woman or a man who is only middle aged, for there is a certain unreasonable touchiness very often at this stage in life when a man or woman resents any inference that he or she is approaching a feeble state. Keep up your respect for the aged; it is pleasant to see and hear about it.

A Letter of Introduction

My Dear Mrs. Adams:

A man friend of mine is going to another city to work. I have friends in that city whom I would like him to meet and who would make things very pleasant for him. How shall I bring them together?

MARIE.

Give your friend a letter of introduction, saying that this is Mr. So-and-So, a good friend of yours. You would esteem it a great favor if Mr. and Mrs. Blank and their family would give him a welcome in Spokane. To Mr. and Mrs. Blank write a note saying that you are sending the young man to call upon them and hope that they will be able to make things very pleasant for him.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

THE OLD MOTHER AS A MONEY MAKER.

CORNERITES probably recall a letter which was printed in this department some weeks ago from a mother well along in years who wished to do something to increase her income. She lived with her married daughter and had undertaken to earn a little money by selling small useful articles such as would be of service to housekeepers and obtaining subscriptions for magazines. But the daughter objected to her doing this, on the ground that it looked as though the mother was not adequately cared for by her children. The mother wrote to ask the judgment of the Cornerites in the matter.

Her letter opened up the whole question of how much the old mother shall be permitted to do for herself by her children. Although she has done her share of the world's work she may still feel equal to occupations of various sorts and she longs to do something to earn a little money, either that she may lighten the burden of her support to her sons and daughters or that she may have a few dollars of her very own, for which she has not had to ask any one and for which she is not accountable to those upon whom she is dependent.

I put the question as to what should be done in the matter at the time the correspondent's letter appeared, and a number of replies have come to me which I am sure will be of interest not only to other mothers in similar positions but also to the sons and daughters of such mothers.

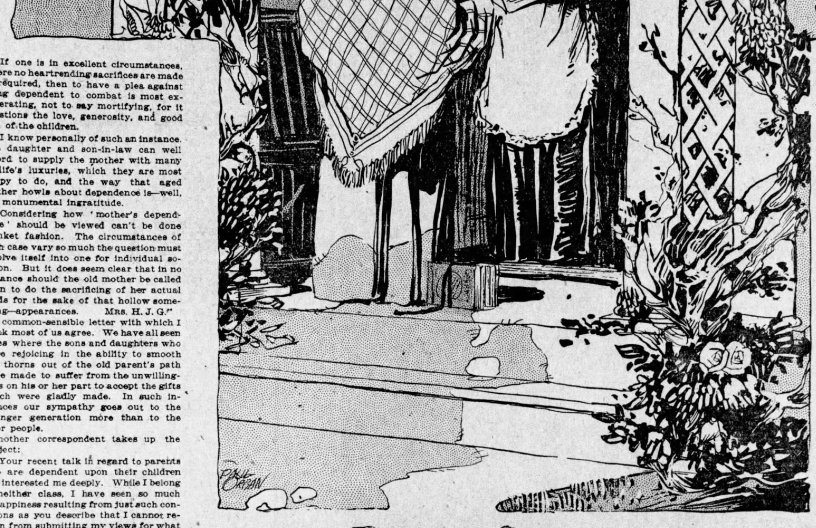
"What a gigantic selfishness on the part of Mrs. M. M. G.'s children! At the sacrifice of their mother's needs and comforts they keep up a pretense of maintaining her. Her happiness should be paramount to aught else. 'Disgraceful for a crippled mother to be selling household articles.' Nonsense! It is far more disgraceful that she must become 'resigned to doing without the things she needs' when such resignation means a mortification of the spirit which at her age she should not be called upon to undergo. Were she given the comforts her heart and mind crave, a cry against being 'dependent' would be ungrateful, or were immense sacrifices being made for her, if they fell short of their accomplishment of her needs the shortage would be unmitigated just the same.

"Of course it would be deplorable, but must the aged mother bear the brunt of the children's incapability adequately to provide in order that they may falsely keep up appearances? Either the children should give the mother what she needs or in their failure bear their own burden of inefficiency and its attendant consequences.

"In the instance of being forced to accept a dependence when the dependent one must daily witness sacrifices of the welfare of the rising generation, is it fair to the old mother? Isn't it curtailing her liberty? Should she not be given the privilege of choosing to 'live her own life' unto the end?



"If one is in excellent circumstances, where no heartrending sacrifices are made or required, then to have a plea against being dependent to combat is most exasperating, not to say mortifying, for it questions the love, generosity, and good will of the children.

"I know personally of such an instance. The daughter and son-in-law can well afford to supply the mother with many of life's luxuries, which they are most happy to do, and the way that aged mother howls about dependence is—well, it's monumental ingratitude.

"Considering how 'mother's dependences' should be viewed can't be done blanket fashion. The circumstances of each case vary so much the question must resolve itself into one for individual solution. But it does seem clear that in no instance should the old mother be called upon to do the sacrificing of her actual needs for the sake of that hollow something—appearances. MRS. H. J. G."

A common-sensible letter with which I think most of us agree. We have all seen cases where the sons and daughters who were rejoicing in the ability to smooth the thorns out of the old parent's path were made to suffer from the unwillingness on his or her part to accept the gifts which were gladly made. In such instances our sympathy goes out to the younger generation more than to the older people.

"Your recent talk in regard to parents who are dependent upon their children has interested me deeply. While I belong to neither class, I have seen so much unhappiness resulting from just such conditions as you describe that I cannot refrain from submitting my views for what they may be worth.

"In the first place, some one must make a sacrifice. Shall it be the aged mother or the daughter? If the daughter is invalided and will be able to cope with condition that hurt her pride and upset her overwrought nerves the mother should put aside the desire for independence and try to be happy in her daughter's home. She is the stronger of the two.

"However, the case is usually different. The mother is the weaker one, the one less able to endure disappointment, she has so much less time to live, so few opportunities to go abroad and get mentally refreshed, as it were, by contact with others. In consequence of this, little worries and irritations weigh heavily upon the mind and require as much fortitude to bear as the heaviest burdens youth may have to shoulder.

"Work and a purpose in life will make anything bearable. Without either life is a cruel load. I think a daughter's love should be great and deep enough to make her unwilling to rob her mother of the joy of living, no matter what the cost to her own pride might be. Her reward will be sure. The sooner we cease to take into account what others will say, the happier and more successful will our life be.

"I shall look forward with great interest to the continuance of this discussion.

"M. E. B."

Another valuable letter on the consideration of the matter. A third correspondent expresses her views from the standpoint of the mother:

"Your appeal for an answer relative to the mothers who are dependent upon their children has touched a spot in my heart, and being in the same boat I will give you my opinion of the matter.

"I was left a widow with two small children and only a little amount of money, but I was strong and capable and was able to keep a few boarders and this enabled me to keep out of debt. My principal worry was how to educate my children and keep them in a good neighborhood. To do this I sold at a sacrifice ten years ago a piece of property which would have made me independent today. But I am not sorry, for I see my children grown up, refined, and self-supporting.

"Still, my advice to mothers is to live your own life independent of your children and never be a burden upon them. My counsel relative to your question is that it would help the dear old lady to while away the time that hangs heavy on her hands and her children should take good naturedly her desire to earn a little spending money. Why should she not be humored in anything that would give her pleasure? In this country old age is not respected as it ought to be.

"HENRIETTA."

This writer looks at the question from the kindly attitude of consideration for the woman well along in years and with few pleasures. This would undoubtedly make for the happiness of all old mothers placed in the same position as the one whose letter started this discussion.

Another Cornerite holds the same standard:

"I read with great interest your letter about the old mother in the home. If I had that dear old mother and she employed selling little articles I would give money to poor women so that they could come in and buy, and words of cheer would be spoken on both sides. I would have, say, two hours set aside each day for that would brighten the life of the dear lame mother and would not hurt any one. We are not all of the same mind and it is too bad just because she is an old lady that she cannot carry out some of her own plans.

"E. D. McN."

So far all the letters have taken much the same view, which makes the following more interesting:

"I have read your talk about the poor old mother who wishes to add to her income by doing work such as selling trifles and getting subscriptions to magazines and I would like to express my ideas on the matter, even though you may not agree with me.

"I am as sorry as I can be for the mother, but I confess to a great sympathy for the daughter, who is put in the position of not being able to take proper care of the old lady. I wish the latter would for a moment put herself in the daughter's place and try to think how she would have felt in the same circumstances. Suppose that when she was young and her own mother was along in years the old lady had wanted to add to her income in some such ways as you have described. Do you suppose the daughter would have enjoyed having it known everywhere among her friends that her resources were so limited that her crippled mother had to peddle periodicals and house articles in order to get a little spending money for herself? I don't believe the daughter would have enjoyed it a bit and now that she is old herself she ought not to forget how she would have felt years ago in the same conditions.

"Of course, it is hard on the mother, but she should recollect that she has lived her life and done as she pleased for a good many years, and now that age has come she should reconcile herself to the same measure of dependence her own parents probably had and that the daughter herself may have to endure one of these days. I suppose I sound hard-hearted, but I don't mean it that way. My only desire is to show that after all there is something to be said for the daughter.

"MARION B."

While there is no space for the other letters received on this subject, those I have given are fairly representative. It strikes me as rather significant that only one takes the side of the daughter, that all sympathize with the mother. The writer of the first letter offers the nearest contribution to a solution of the problem when she says that this cannot be settled "blanket fashion." Judging from the opinions offered, each case must be decided from its individual aspects.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

Offered to Fancy Workers.

"INCLOSED you will find the address of the correspondent with whom I wish to be put in touch. If you have any other addresses of Cornerites who want crochet or embroidery things or any kind of fancy work, please send me their addresses.

"L. O."

The address requested was sent at once, but the inquiry of L. O. for others who wish fancy work is printed in the expectation that some of the Cornerites will be ready to respond to it. Her name and address will be sent on application.

Fancy Sewing for a Change.

"A correspondent signing herself Marie B. says she has some linen squares to give away. I should be so pleased to get a few, as I seldom go out and have seven little ones to do for. It would make a change for me from darning and scrubbing if I could do a little fancy work. If you will give me the address I will be glad to write to Marie B. and to hear from her. MRS. C. W. F."

Unfortunately the squares offered by Marie B. had been given away elsewhere before the above letter was received, but surely there are other women who do fancy work and who will be moved by this appeal to send some materials to Mrs. C. W. F. All of us who have known the monotony of housework when one is kept closely at home will sympathize with her desire to introduce a little variety into her steady occupations. Apparently she will like anything in the line of needlework or other fancy work which can be supplied to her and I am positive she will not ask in vain.

Wants Shorthand Book.

"I note in the Helping Hand Corner that Clara S. has a shorthand text book to give away. Will you please send me her address? Do you or any of the Cornerites know the proper way to send a story to a magazine? Ought it to be typewritten; and should I place a price on it, or take what the editor will give me if the manuscript is accepted? Please let me know as soon as possible. MARY R."

Another case of where the application came too late. I regret to say. In there not some one else with a shorthand text book to give away who will bestow it on Mary R.? As to the proper method of sending a manuscript to a magazine, the directions are simple, but they should be followed closely. The manuscript should be clearly typewritten, or well written in ink, and on only one side of the paper. It should be sent flat or folded, never rolled. With it should go a letter to the editor, inclosing stamps for answer or possible return and an offer of the story "at the usual rates of your magazine." Unless one is a well known author, it is not well to put a price on the story. May I add a word of caution? When sending a manuscript bear in mind that the editor of any magazine receives many such communications and do not bother him with a long letter or make life difficult for him by arranging your manuscript in any but the simplest fashion. Also recollect that with the flood of printed matter which is being issued every day your story should be well worth printing if it is to have any chance of competing with the work of practiced writers. Many persons can write letters who cannot produce material fit to print.

Song from Old Collection.

"In the paper I saw a request for a song, sent by Aunty B. It is 'The Revolutionary Tea,' the words by Seba Smith and music by H. D. Munson. I have it in an old collection printed in 1857. The books belonged to my mother. I have copied the music as best I could, and I also send the words. M. H. H."

I do not find the name of Aunty B. on the files and so print this on the chance that it may catch the eye of the person who wished the song. I have not received the music for it, but the copy of the words is here and will be held until called for.

Asks Aid for Needy Mother.

"I know how many applications for help come to you and that you cannot print them all, but I wish you would make an exception in this case. There is an urgent need of assistance for a mother of twins 4 months old, of a boy 21 months old, and another 4½ years old. Has any one of our readers a little trundle bed or a child's chair that the worn out, hard working mother could have? She sleeps with a twin in bed on either side of her and the 21 months child at her feet. When she might get a little rest from the twins, the one at her feet is restless. She cannot afford to buy beds or bedding. I have made some clothes for the family and will make more, and if any one has any odd pieces of outing flannel or wash goods or anything that can be used for the little ones it will be most acceptable. She lives twenty miles from a railway, and so anything that is to be sent would have to come by parcel post. A folding baby carriage would be a great help. MRS. G. W. W."

I do not know how the trundle bed could well be sent by parcel post, but no doubt the writer could give instructions by which such an article could be forwarded. I shall be happy to supply the address to any one who wishes it with a view to sending assistance of any kind to this needy mother.

Easy Ways in the Kitchen.

"Will you kindly send me the address of the Cornerite who offered to give small linen pieces and thread to some shut-in and said she would tell her where she could sell the articles when finished? I am a shut-in; I can crochet, etc., and would be so glad to know of a place where I could dispose of some of my work. Though I do not make elaborate patterns, I feel sure they could be of use if I could find a market for them. I have been badly ruptured and need a truss for support and I wish I could give some of my handiwork in return for it. I have derived so much help and pleasure in so many ways from the Helping Hand Corner that I want to tell my ways of doing a few things in the hope that they may appeal to some one. When washing dishes I like to use plenty of good warm water, not hot, and good white soap. If you will do this your hands will never chap. I have two dishes and use warm water and soap in one, and then after washing the dishes well I put them all in a larger pan, pour over them really hot water, and then wipe them immediately. I always have plenty of clean, dry towels. The dishes will then be as sweet and clean as any one need wish; the silver will be as bright as new and the glassware will glisten almost as much as if it were cut glass. In preparing a steak for the table I rub in a little sugar and then pepper, just a few minutes before putting it on the hot pan. The sugar adds a delightful flavor to the meat, and when you pour in a little water and add a pinch of salt and a little thickening, you will have a delicious gravy to serve upon rice or hominy. M. M."

I am always glad to get such household hints as these. The idea of using a little sugar in cooking steak is not altogether a new one to me, for I was told of it years ago by a woman who understood cooking thoroughly and who proved the value of the sugar by giving me steak prepared with this addition. Of course the sugar must be used with great caution or it will spoil the dish. The suggestions as to the dish washing are also good, although I confess to a fondness for hot water first, last, and all the time in dish washing, and I find that the use of a handled mop spares the hands. I am sorry M. M. does not give the signature of the correspondent who offered the information she desires. Without this I cannot help her. I trust the truss she asks for may be sent to her.

Likes Crochet Samples.

"I crochet a good deal and would appreciate any crochet samples any one could send. I will return the favor. I have several pretty, simple crochet patterns for scarfs, and guest towels, and centerpieces, but I would like a sample for a square for a dining table. I have besides several pretty embroidery patterns for pillow slips which I will copy for any one sending postage. The following is a good and inexpensive recipe for ginger snaps: Two cups of black molasses, one level teaspoon of baking soda. Beat this into the molasses until the latter turns light in color. Two level cups of sugar, one egg. Beat these together until smooth. Butter the size of an egg and lard twice the size; four tablespoons of ground ginger, half a cup of water or of buttermilk. Add flour to make a dough easy to roll. Roll this out thin; cut the sheet into rounds and put them into a greased pan, half an inch apart. Bake in a hot oven. If you like hot ginger snaps this dough can be saved for six or seven days and you can bake from it when you wish. Keep the dough in a bowl or crock well covered so that a crust will not form on top of the dough. I kept on experimenting with the ginger snaps until I got them as I like. Every one who tries my cakes wants the recipe. I have a soup recipe I made up myself which I will send at some other time if those directions I have already sent are used. I may say, by the way, that my ginger snap cutter is one I made myself from a 5 cent cream can by melting off the rim at the end where the can is opened, leaving the other end in. Drive a few nail holes in the solid end.

"MRS. W. J. W."

Any one who can send as practical directions as these and is as ready with her offers of assistance, should certainly have a favorable reply to her own requests. I trust she may have her crochet samples sent to her quickly and liberally.

Dahlia Bulbs Appreciated.

"If any Cornerite has dahlia bulbs to give away, the red, pink, or yellow would be much appreciated by me, as well as any potted plants. I am fond of flowers, and this is my only chance to get them as I like best. V. McQ."

Can any one supply this Cornerite's desire?

Making Scrapple; Canning Fruit.

"I saw the notice in the paper of some one who had a square to donate. It would be appreciated by a widow who is 53 years of age, was operated on four years ago, and cannot do any scrubbing or heavy work. I would gladly pay the transportation on it. In reply to the request of Mrs. C. R., I wish to say that the way in which I make scrapple is as follows: Boil the liver and lights of a hog until tender. It must not be permitted to boil dry. Mash the cooked meat thoroughly, sift in enough cornmeal to thicken it, and mold as you would headcheese. When cold, slice like cornmeal mush and fry. Here is my method of canning fruit: Clean the jars, scald and drain them. Wrap every part of the jars except the mouth in a large cloth, doubled and wrung out in cold water. Dip the boiling fruit out of the kettle with a large spoon, shake the jar at first as you fill it. Remove the cloth from the jars, put them on the table and seal them with rubbers which have been first dampened and then dipped in flour. I never boil a jar and never lose any fruit.

I wish this correspondent had given the signature of the friend who offered the square. As it is, I cannot tell if the piece has already been given away or not, and I have no means of getting on the trace of the correspondent referred to by Mrs. H. V. H. Perhaps her letter may call attention to her desire, and in that hope I will put her letter by and await her application. We are all grateful to her for the recipes she is so good as to send.

Patterns for Children's Clothes.

"I have a few patterns for little girls' clothing for children from 8 to 14 years of age that I would be glad to give to some mother who makes her children's clothes. I have also a few women's patterns that I hope may be of help to some one. S. B. D."

Thank you very much for this kindly offer. It will be put on file, and I have no doubt you will receive plenty of requests for the patterns. Your letter had the correct address added to it and was forwarded immediately.

Use for Stale Cake.

"A good way to use a leftover stale sponge cake is the following: Dissolve one package of gelatin in a little cold water and add half a pint of boiling water. Peel two medium sliced apples, put them over the fire with a little water, and cook them until they can be mashed. Sweeten them to taste and add the juice of one lemon. Mix the gelatin and apples while both are hot, slice the cake, and lay it in a pudding dish, pour the gelatin and apple mixture over it and set away to cool. Serve with whipped cream or plain cream, or with a vanilla or lemon sauce.

"MRS. G. S."

I am always delighted to receive and print ways of using leftovers advantageously. Another trifle to be made with stale cake I ate the other day was prepared by lining a glass dish with the sliced cake, spreading the pieces laid in the bottom with strawberry or raspberry jam, scattering a few blanched and chopped almonds over this, and then filling the cake lined bowl with whipped cream and the white of egg beaten stiff and slightly sweetened. It was delicious. If desired, the cake may be softened with sherry wine or with grape juice.

When Hanging Clothes.

"I tried the recipe for Cornish pasties sent in by 'An Optimist' and found them delicious. Here is an idea which was presented to me not long ago, which I would like to pass on: When hanging clothes on the line or taking them down use an abandoned go-cart or baby wagon to set the clothes basket in. Push the basket along as you hang up the clothing. The cart brings the basket even with the worker's waist and saves a stoop for every garment she wishes to put on the line or lay in the basket.

A. G. M."

Thank you for the idea. Anything which will simplify the housework is always welcome.

The Diamond from the Sky

By Roy L. McCardell

C. D. Davidson

$10,000 for 1,000 Words or Less for an Idea for a Sequel to
"THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY"
The American Film Manufacturing Company's Picturized Romantic Novel in Chapters.

This is the photoplay selected as the best of over 19,000 submitted in a $10,000 prize contest. The manuscripts came from many sections of the United States and Canada.

The theme of the successful manuscript was so fascinating and the developments of the story of such heart interest, that the American Film Manufacturing Company decided to offer a further prize of $10,000 for a suggestion as to the sequel to the winning scenario.

The contest is open to any man, woman, or child who is not connected directly or indirectly with the Film Company or the newspapers publishing the continued story. No literary ability is necessary to qualify as a contestant.

You are advised to see the continued photoplay in the theaters where it will be shown—to read the story as it runs every week, and then send in your suggestion.

Contestants must confine their contributions for the sequel to 1,000 words or less. It is the idea that is wanted.

The most interesting situations will be pointed out from time to time in the synopsis of the story which will precede the chapters after the opening.

By following the narrative in print and observing the action on the screen, one will be given a splendid opportunity to supply a suggestion for a sequel.

A board of three judges will decide which of the suggestions received is most acceptable. The judgment of that board will be absolute and final.

PROLOGUE.

"THE FALLEN STAR."

It is June in Virginia, June in the year of our Lord 1615! Through the primeval forest a cavalier rides in haste. His steed drips with foam that stains the handsome trapping of the panting charger.

Sir Arthur Stanley, wild and reckless, rides for his life. Though but 22, an adventurous career has been his. Leaving Oxford at 17 in disgrace through an escapade of gallantry, he had gone to the court of King James, where, as the second son of the powerful Lord Cecil Stanley of Stanley castle, Warwickshire, he had been feted and courted, loved of women, and the king's favorite. In an evil moment he had gained the disfavor of the gloomy king by some harebrained feat of gallantry and had been forthwith banished from the court of James to the uttermost wilds of America, to what was then known as the king's plantations of Virginia.

In the wilds of the king's plantations of Virginia other desperate and broken gentlemen adventurers spoke of him also as "The Fallen Star."

And now Sir Arthur Stanley, young and debonaire, "The Fallen Star," rides for his life. Again he has carried his desperate gallantries too far, and in the attempt has failed. He has ridden far from Jamestown to carry away by force the beautiful daughter of an Indian chief. But his fair captive had been wrested from him and signal fires by night have roused the warlike tribes to rise against the desperate white man far in the hostile hills, away from the sheltering fort of the white men's settlement at Jamestown.

The Indians, signaled of his coming, await him in ambuscade. As he rides for his life, crouched over his gayly caparisoned saddle, beneath the spreading branches of the great oaks across the faint and rocky mountain trail, an Indian brave drops from an extended limb where he has lain hidden in the leafage, full upon the flying horseman. Then ensues a struggle worthy of the reckless wars of white adventurer, and desperate savage foeman. Gripped in fierce embrace, as the horse stumbles on under his doubled struggling load, white man and red smite and strive.

Finally, with a superhuman effort, the white man grasps the savage with his right hand and arm back of the red man's neck and, exerting all the force of his sinews of steel, he brings the red man, still clutching and smiting, around over the shoulder of his lace embroidered riding doublet, and, holding the savage across his saddle bow, he ruthlessly bites off the tongue of the panting savage kills from his foaming mouth and his eyes stare in their sockets like a man in epilepsy. Then, with one mighty effort, the victorious white man casts his strangled foe down off his horse and turns, spent and worn as he is, to stare at the distant figure a looking farewell. But now his worn horse staggers and falters, and now a dozen dusky hands have seized on horse and rider.

The cavalier is caught in the trap of the last ambuscade, and Sir Arthur Stanley, buffeted, and struck, and battered, is dragged to the ground, a fallen star, indeed.

That night the torture fire is lit and the deep blackness of the moonless night is relieved by its first crimson glow. Suddenly, across the zenith, athwart the sable curtain of the sky, there gleams a meteor. The white man at the stake, with a mighty effort, tears one arm loose from his bonds and points to the blazing ball of fire as it falls. "My sign!" he cries, "a falling star!" Not 100 yards away, with a mighty detonation as it strikes the earth, the blazing meteor falls, hissing and gleaming in seething incandescence.

The frightened savages shrink back and cover their terrified faces. "An omen of the Great Spirit's displeasure!" they cry. "The Great Spirit sends his burning star to protect the brave white warrior!"

As debonaire as though advancing to lead a gaillard at a masque at the court of King James, Sir Arthur Stanley, who has wrenched himself loose, kicks aside the futile faggots and walks among the trembling red men, who kneel at his feet.

A week he stays among them, leading their hunts and feasts. A week he leads them at sunrise and sunset to make their oblations to the meteor and himself—two fallen stars. And then it is seen that in the dark bulk of the cooled meteor there gleams a brilliant crystal, half the size of a man's fist—it is a diamond beyond estimation of price—a gem to be known to the Stanleys for generations to come as "The Diamond from the Sky."

The trembling chieftain at the white man's bidding digs the great diamond from the soft iron of the cooled meteor and bends to do homage to the stranger as to the conquering paleface as the gift of the Great Spirit.

The white man's horse has been brought at his command. Taking the diamond from the shaking hand of the kneeling chief, Sir Arthur Stanley steps on the shoulder of the savage and mounts his rested and restive charger. Holding the great jewel in his left hand, the careless cavalier gives a sweeping salutation of farewell, his plumed hat in his strong right hand, and rides away enriched—but as he rode a gentleman unafraid.

Thus was the American branch of the noble line of Stanley in England established in fair Virginia three centuries agone. The diamond from the sky, by the will of the finder, was left to the eldest born son of the proud Stanley family he founded in Virginia.

With the deed that conveyed the diamond there ran the proviso: "When ye Englishe Stanleys are at an ende, and it shalle befalle that the heire to the ferldome of Stanley in Warwickshire shalle be a descendant of my bodye, then he shalle take with him to his earldome 'ye diamond from ye skye.'"

CHAPTER I.

"A HERITAGE OF HATE."

It is June in Virginia, June in the year of our Lord 1852. June in beautiful Fairfax county, summer in a land of women and brave men, summer in a proud old countryside that possesses a landed aristocracy and feudal traditions. The fields are green, the early blossoming of the honeysuckle gives a fragrance to the air.

At such a time, in such a scene and such surroundings, two horsemen meet. Both are men of striking appearance and proud presence and are in the maturity of their middle manhood. Each is attired in correct riding costume of the day and both are mounted on Virginia thoroughbreds. They are Stanleys, cousins in blood. The one on the bay hunter, Judge Lamar Stanley, is smooth of face that is marked with cruel and heavy lines. His carriage is haughty and set and the grim lines of his countenance set the grimmer at the approach of his kinsman, Col. Arthur Stanley. The latter rides his chestnut gelding like a soldier. Judge Stanley's seat is that of a huntsman. Even as they ride they differ. Col. Stanley's face is kinder. A white mustache and imperial adds to his soldierly appearance. In the civil war, now less than twenty years agone, these kinsmen served the confederacy as became their types and stripes.

In Richmond, during the war, Judge Lamar Stanley had been high in the councils of the cabinet of President Jefferson Davis. In the field his cousin, Arthur Stanley, followed the fortunes of the confederate arms as a member of the staff of Gen. Lee.

Then in their youth, as now in their maturity, these men held a heritage of family hate. Crossing each other in love, crossing each other in martial, civic, and social ambitions, their mutual hatred grew with their growing years. There were deep causes for all this in the thwarted social ambitions of the judge. As the scion of the elder branch of the American Stanleys, springing from their common ancestor, Sir Arthur Stanley, a gentleman adventurer who came to America in 1615, Col. Stanley held possession of the precious family heirloom, "the diamond from the sky."

The family tradition ran that this great gem had fallen in a blazing meteor at the feet of Sir Arthur Stanley three centuries ago just as he was about to be burned at the stake by the Indians, whom he had in some way affronted and aroused.

The legend was that the Indians had deemed the falling meteor an omen from the Great Spirit that the white man about to be tortured was under the favor of his protection.

In the age stained family archives kept in the strong box at Stanley hall, the great mansion home of Col. Stanley, this strange story of the diamond was set forth in the quaint handwriting of the finder of the great jewel and the founder of the Stanley family in Virginia. There also was the will of the wild Sir Arthur, and at its end there was a strange prophetic clause. This clause read that when the noble line of Stanleys became extinct in England and an heir of the old Stanley earldom was sought among the elder sons of the American family of Stanleys in Virginia, "the diamond from the sky," the heritage of the elder son of the elder branch, should be worn back to England by the American earl when he came into his English earldom.

At the time we write, that is, in June, 1852, the last of the earls of Stanley was a bachelor invalid and recluse, without hope or desire of an heir.

Col. Arthur Stanley of Virginia, as head of the elder American branch of the family, held possession of the priceless heirloom, the great jewel that was said to have fallen to earth in the meteor. But he had no son to succeed to the earldom in England. He was married to a fair young wife who expected shortly to become a mother. Were this child a girl, it could have no claim to the English grant title in the family nor to ever possess "the diamond from the sky."

On the other hand, Judge Lamar Stanley had a son, a sturdy boy of 5. His proud wife, equally with himself, dreamed of a day when this boy should bear the honors and have the vast estates of the Stanley earldom.

Such were the hates and hopes that had sundered the Stanley family in Virginia and such were the portentous matters that were hinged upon an unborn child—this June day in 1852, when these two horsemen, kinsmen and bitter enemies, rode down upon each other in a smiling Virginia lane.

Neither would swerve his horse a hair-breadth for the other. Into each other, full tilt, their blooded horses charged, and then the superior horsemanship of the soldier, skilled in cavalry encounters, told. A brief, plunging shock of horses rearing breast abreast, and then the iron grip of the colonel's hands upon the rein of his hunter caused the well trained horse to swerve just as the soldier of the judge had reared his highest. Over went horse and man into the dust of the road, and with a mocking laugh and not deigning to look back at his fallen kinsman who arose and cursed and shook his fist at him, Col. Stanley rode on.

The judge, discomfited in the dust, turned as he cursed and kicked at his horse to see if his fall and humiliation had been witnessed. He saw the dark face of a gypsy grinning at him through a hedge near by. The hedge was on the property of Judge Stanley. This was the first thought that occurred to the angry, embittered man. Mounted on his horse again, he now saw a gypsy van on the other side of the hedge. Judge Stanley, quivering with rage, rode into the gap of the hedge and hoarsely ordered off the intruders.

"But, yo' see, it is like this," expostulated the gypsy. "I am alone here with my wife, Ai'. Our people have gone on. My wife is very sick. We can't go on, sir."

"What do I care what ails your wretched wife?" snarled the judge. "Drive your horses off my land and get out of this county. If you even dare to camp by the roadside, I will see you are both committed to jail for a long term. I am judge in this county."

"Mebbe you are president of the United States, too," grumbled the gypsy. "As for camping by the roadside, do you think you own the roads because the gentleman that just rode by knocked you off your horse on the road?"

Roused to a burst of fury, the judge drove his horse at the gypsy and lashed him cruelly with the heavy riding whip he always carried. A wan but handsome gypsy woman, clutching at her side as though in pain, tottered out from the van as though to protect the gypsy from the sheer brutality of the horseman. In his rage, and even in his calmer moods, Judge Lamar Stanley had never been known to spare man or woman who crossed him. He struck the gypsy woman across the face, leaving a livid weal.

"The bitterest disappointment of your life and a death that will be a buzzard's feast for you for that blow!" she cried.

The judge faltered and wheeled his horse, but turning again to the gypsy man, he cursed him again and rode on.

Meanwhile, Col. Stanley had ridden to the village of Fairfax and had halted his horse at the gate of a pretty cottage. A sign by the gate bore the words, "Dr. Henry Lee." The colonel called and Dr. Lee came out. The doctor was an amiable man of some 60 years, inclined to corpulence. He had been a surgeon in the confederate army. During the war the colonel had saved the doctor's life. The tenderest bonds of friendship existed between the two. A further bond between them, if others were needed, was the mutual hatred they bore to Judge Lamar Stanley, who through some legal chicanery had impoverished the doctor in his old age. They clasped hands, and in answer to the old physician's question, the colonel whispered, "Yes, doctor, come at once. My wife will need you tonight."

As the colonel neared his estates he was aware of a strange procession approaching. It was a gypsy van, on the driving seat of which were two figures, a man and a woman. The colonel noticed the woman had fainted from pain or weariness. He had just time to wheel his horse close and catch her as she fell from the seat.

In a few words the gypsy explained their miserable situation. The kindly heart of the colonel was touched. The fainting woman had now revived and was listening apathetically.

"So Judge Stanley has ordered you off the earth?" remarked the colonel. "Well, my good man, that little copse of woods right over there, not far from my house, belongs to me. Camp there as long as you wish, and I will see that your sick wife gets every attention. She expects a child, you say? Ah, the curse of Eve falls alike in hut and mansion. We expect this same momentous event at my house. For that reason, Judge Stanley has treated you as he usually treats the helpless. You are doubly welcome. I will send Dr. Lee, our family physician, to attend your wife. You can name the boy after me, Arthur Stanley."

The gypsy woman now spoke for the first time. She said: "For your kind heart I read your fortune. A bitter disappointment and a bitter triumph over those you hate the most comes to you, sir."

"Well, better fortune than that to the child you expect," said the colonel, with a kindly smile. "And here is $20 to buy christening clothes and found the fortune of my expected namesake—if he is a boy."

"I do not wish to take your money, though you mean it well," said the gypsy woman. "There is bad luck to me and mine in money from great folks."

"Take it, you fool woman, when the kind gentleman offers it!" snarled the man.

Seeing the colonel still offering the money and that he sat with bared head as though to a great lady, the gypsy woman muttered her thanks and took the money reluctantly. Bowing again to the gypsy woman on the wagon seat, Col. Stanley gave one last, distrustful glance at the husband and rode on his way.

Arriving at the gateway of Stanley hall, the grand old mansion, the colonel again raised his hat as he entered his horse up the splendid wide driveway.

He smiled to observe his flower faced young wife, Ethel, in a garden chair swaddled in silken shawls and carefully attended by her old colored nurse, Mammy Lucy.

The old negro man servant, Ned, appeared on the piazza and called loudly to a colored lad to take the master's horse.

The colonel and the old nurse gently supported the young wife from the lawn to the portals of the great mansion.

It must not be thought that any overwhelming desire for title or exalted position for themselves or for their expected child actuated Col. Stanley and his fair young wife. In fact, the colonel was not only contented but proud in his position as head of the Stanley family in America and master of Stanley hall. It was only the grasping snobbery of his cousin, the judge, and the judge's upstart, ambitious wife to gain both "the diamond from the sky" and the succession to the English earldom of Stanley that now seemed imminent that had led the colonel to encourage the hope that his wife might bear a son.

For the proud elder branch of the Stanleys—the Lord Stanleys of Warwickshire, England—only survived in the person of a testy old bachelor invalid. As the dashing adventurer of 300 years ago had foreseen, a time had come when the noble house of Stanley must seek its perpetuation from the transplanted line in America. The next of kin and in direct line for the earldom of Stanley was Col. Stanley of Virginia, and failing his surviving or his having a son the earldom would go to his cousin, Judge Stanley, or the judge's son, Blair, now a child of 3.

This was a matter of much moment to all concerned, as has been stated. Especially did it concern the last Lord Stanley, the testy old invalid.

It was a sore point with him that had always hated women, after a love disappointment in early manhood, and had never married, and now the succession would go to what he denominated as his "Yankee relatives."

But "the diamond from the sky" was a comforting thought, in a measure, to the old earl. Vast as were the possessions of the Stanleys of Warwickshire, this great gem, a monarch's ransom, had always been in the possession of the "Yankee relatives." It gave these "Yankee relatives" a prestige that even an earl might envy.

For some time past the earl, through his solicitor, Marmaduke Smythe, had been in correspondence with the aforesaid "Yankee relatives."

Marmaduke Smythe was a long, lean, lank, dry as dust British barrister. He was versed in knowledge of the mighty and fabulous value of "the diamond from the sky." But to his timid mind, far off America was still a wilderness, peopled by savages, and in his mind's eye he saw the American Stanleys half Indian in appearance and customs.

So it had been with much trepidation and much nervous exhausting of the inside of his sidewhiskers that Marmaduke Smythe, barrister at law, Temple chambers, London, had received orders from his distinguished patron, Cecil, eighth Earl of Stanley, to depart for America and arrange for the concession, in the event of the earl's demise, with the heirs apparent and prospective among the "Yankee relatives."

In the preliminary correspondence concerning this matter, Lawyer Smythe had been gratified to note that one of the Stanleys near of kin in Virginia was a judge. To Lawyer Smythe's insular British understanding, being a judge in the jungles of Virginia was to be an uncouth, tobacco eating, hoarse voiced, red faced individual, with trousers in boots and coatless, who presided over such summary backwoods punitive affairs as hasty lynchings and burnings at the stake "among the aborigines" and white border ruffians.

So it was with heavy heart and luggage in keeping Lawyer Smythe set out for barbarous America to confer with Lord Stanley's Yankee relatives. But he first purchased an elephant rifle and a brace of heavy revolvers. The lawyer had written to the judge, and hard upon the heels of his letter he had come.

"I had better keep my pistols and elephant rifle at hand," he said to himself, "for in a day or so I shall be on the veldt or in the jungles of Virginia."

In such a state of mind he had arrived at the little railroad station of Fairfax in the dusk of the day in which the judge and the colonel had encountered the gypsies. The evening that preceded the night when it was decreed a child would be born to the proud master of Stanley hall, and also a child in a gypsy tent in the woods nearby.

All the barrister saw when he alighted from the slow local train was a shambling negro with a private pouch attached to a strap over his ragged shoulder.

Lawyer Smythe looked up and down the platform in vain to see cowboys or a prairie wagon, or some sort of a backwoods person to greet him or vehicle to convey him to Judge Stanley's ranch. He finally summoned up courage to inquire of the station agent-postmaster, as that individual was looking up for the night.

"Judge Stanley?" repeated the station agent. "Why, his nigger, Zeke, just got the judge's mail and has gone. The judge couldn't have been expecting anybody, or he would have sent his carriage. But mebbe Zeke will tell him he saw you, and you will be sent for. You had better wait right here."

A DEAL IN DESTINIES.

In the somber living room that was part law office and chambers or Judge Stanley, the heavily black walnut bookcases looked upon the judge and his family stern visaged spouse. The early Virginia supper was over, and the judge and his wife were awaiting the evening mail on the last train down from Richmond.

In a few minutes Zeke, the colored handy man of the household, drove up on his horse and alighted and entered with the judge's mailbag. From the usual correspondence on legal and other matters the judge was expecting he eagerly separated a large, formally addressed envelope bearing English stamps.

The judge opened it, glanced at it hurriedly, and handed it to his wife. "It is from the earl's lawyer, Marmaduke Smythe, you see. He says he may arrive at about the same time that this letter reaches us. Why doesn't the fool telegraph if he has reached New York? It would be just like an English lawyer to come by the same train that bears the letter." The judge noted that the negro who lingered by the door, expectant of further orders. "Did you see a strange man get off the train—looked like an undertaker—chap against harm." And then she sank back upon her pillow.

The old nurse tugged and gazed fixedly at her mistress; then, with a scream of grief and terror, she threw herself beside the babe and mother.

"She is dead!" shrieked the nurse. "My sweet mistress is dead!"

In the library an hour later, Dr. Lee stood over the shattered colonel. "Listen to the truth," said the doctor. "It is idle for you to rave. I have told you, you have aneurism of the heart and another attack like this may be your death. You cannot hope to live to marry a wife who may yet bear you a son."

"I will never marry again!" cried Col. Stanley in anguish. "I have loved but one woman, could love but one woman, and she is dead! But, by heaven, I will cheat Lamar Stanley and all his brood! I have $5,000 in yonder safe. I will buy the male child born to the gypsy woman. I will hide away my own flesh and blood, my little daughter, and have her raised tenderly, yet in secret. And the gypsy's brat, at any death, shall be the Earl of Stanley in England and possess "the diamond from the sky." That will be fine for Lamar Stanley and his vermin offspring."

"I mean it, doctor, and you must help me. You hate Lamar Stanley, for he ruined you. Mammy Lucy hates him; he killed her twin brother in cold blood. Come!" and he strode to the strongbox and, with trembling hands, took a mass of bank notes and a canvas bag of gold coin from it.

In the glow of his campfire, Matt Harding gazed greedily at the wealth beyond his wildest dreams that Col. Stanley had roused him from his fitful slumber to pour into his lap. Swiftly he gathered the import of the proffered bargain, he crammed the money in the bosom of his ragged shirt and crept to the tent.

Hagar, roused from her fevered dreams, felt her babe being lifted from her bosom. The husband gagged and bound her and emerged carrying the swaddled babe, which he handed to the colonel.

Back at Stanley hall the doctor and the colonel entered secretly by the library window and bore the babe upstairs to the waiting nurse. The colored woman wrapped the gypsy child in fine linen and hung about its neck the diamond from the sky, while the little daughter, born to Stanley hall, whimpered beside its fair dead mother.

In answer to the summons to Stanley hall came Judge Stanley, the kinsman enemy, and the English barrister.

Over the dead mother, within the sound of a human call from Stanley hall, a bereft and frenzied mother tore herself those fearful hours. Like a tigress she threw herself upon her husband and demanded her child. When he told her of the bargain and showed her the money that came from it, she turned and, with gold and, seizing a jagged, burning billet from the fire, she struck Matt Harding down and, leaving him prone on the ground, she rushed to Stanley hall to regain her first-born.

The backs of the judge, the English lawyer, the doctor, and the nurse were to the door, but Col. Stanley stood behind the library table facing the door.

"Yes," he was saying, "there is the newborn baby, a son; do you hear, a son!" And then his eyes opened wide with horror, for there, struggling at the open door, were the gypsy woman and her husband.

Col. Stanley clutched at his heart and fell senseless forward across the library table.

Commerce MelonPatch Is Planted Under Arc Light

Bill McConnell Believes the Electric Rays Will Be Good for Keeping Off the Two-Legged Bugs.

COMMERCE, Ga.—Mr. "Bill" McConnell believes in plenty of light, whether artificial or natural. In selecting ground for his 1915 watermelon patch, he measured off a tract near a beaming arc light, on the city's suburb. The advantage of such a plan, he says, is that lightening bugs are attracted by an arc light and on going to his patch at night for the liquid fruit, he will be able to find it without the use of a lantern. Another advantage—two-legged "bugs" seldom bother melons where light is too plentiful and radiant.

Meal Sack Good After Thirty Years

ROYSTON, Ga.—Among the regular visitors to Carruth's Mill over in Madison these days is a striped meal sack, more than thirty years of age. This sack was spun and woven by Miss Sarah Carruth, we believe years ago. It has been a regular visitor to the mill for all these thirty years, and yet is in splendid condition, there being but one or two small patches on same. It now belongs to a Mrs. Hutcheson.

Here's a Clew to That Lost Trap

ZEBULON, Ga.—That steel trap may have been the one lost by D. C. Williams at Meansville. Here is his notice:

"I saw in last week's Journal that Mrs. Terrell caught a hawk that had a steel trap clamped on one leg. My son lost a trap last fall after catching two hawks, one jay bird and one blue bird. He also shot a hawk which measured fifty inches from tip to tip."

The trap Mrs. Terrell recovered may be the one Mr. Williams lost. (Supposedly carried off by some kind of a bird.)

Cost of Living 65 Years Ago

FORSYTH, Ga.—Mr. L. B. Edwards has brought to the Advertiser a copy of an old paper, dated August 5, 1850. The paper is yellow with age and is interesting indeed in comparing the prices therein with some of our present day prices. Some of them are as follows:

Bacon, per lb., 6 1-2 to 7c; butter, per lb., 10 to 12 1-2c; flour, per bbl, $4 to $5; coffee, per lb., 12 1-2 to 15c; cotton yarn, per lb., 19 and 20c; molasses, per gal., 35 to 40c; rice, per lb., 5c; sugar, per lb., 7 to 11 1-2c; beef, per lb., 3 1-2 to 4c; whisky, per gal., 30c; lard, per lb., 7c; cornmeal, per lb., 1c; oats, per lb., 1c.

The paper also contains a notice that the next day, August 10, has been set apart by the citizens of Danville to pay funeral honors to the late Chief Magistrate of the Nation, General Zachry Taylor.

Homerville Jail Without a Tenant

ASHVILLE, Ga.—For the first time in a year the county jail of Clinch, at Homerville, is without a boarder, and the doors are wide open. Last week a short session of the county court cleared the jail of the few prisoners not disposed of at the recent session of the superior court. Leaving jails wide open is no new experience in this section, however, several counties frequently having had no prisoners.

Daughter's Wig Burned; No Living With Her Now

E. G. BAKER, JR., says that recently a negro cabin on his father's plantation was destroyed by fire, and the old negro who occupied it, in bewailing his loss, gave the following lamentation: Yas, suh, de fire jest nachully 'stroyed everything dat we had, and maybe we mought have stood up under it if de wussest thing of all had not happened. My oldest gal's wig wuz in dat fire an' got burned up, an' now dar ain't no livin' with her.'—Natchez (Miss.) Democrat.

Hawk Battles With Woman Near Baldwin

BALDWIN, Ga.—While washing clothes the other day, Mrs. Annie Nunnally saw a hawk swoop down among her chickens. A fierce old "setting hen" engaged the bird, and, in the melee, the hawk had its wing broken.

Mrs. Nunnally, with a "battling stick" in her hand, started toward the marauder. The bird, too crippled to get away, turned to fight. Only after a real battle was it killed.

LUTHER SAWYER was among those present at the auditorium during the grand opera week. Luther did not mingle with the brilliant assemblage that gleamed and glistened out there in front, nor did he lend his dusky presence on the other side of the footlights. He was neither fashion flower nor wondrous warbler; yet in his humble way he helped, and certainly he granted an appreciative ear to the strains of the world's greatest composers.

If grand opera had been a circus, Luther's job would have been carrying water to the elephants. As it was; he bore beer back and forth for certain thirsty souls behind the crimson curtain. In this capacity he heard all of "Carmen," three acts of the "Three Kings," and an aria or so of Mozart.

"An' when he come home at night," said Luther's wife to Judge Johnson, "dat nigger tekken him er jew's harp an' squat down by de bald an' commence ter playin'. He say hit wuz opry, but hit soun' lak squallin' ter me."

"Shet yo' mouf, nigger!" he commanded. "Ef you kain't 'preciate sho' nuff music, keep silence fo' yo' betters."

Mrs. Luther tossed her head, and continued: "I done kep' silence twell I'm 'bout ter bust! Jedge, hit's scan'lous fo' dat nigger ter come in at fo' erclock eb'ry mawnin' an' wake me up; but when he set down an' commence twangin' dat ere harp er his'n, mah limit's done reached."

"Don't go fo' ter be hard on me, jedge," pleaded Luther. "I'se natchully er musical man, an' dat brass ban' whut dey got down at de naughtytorium play de sweetes' chunes I ebber heerd. Jedge, you jest oughter heah me knock off dat 'Oyarman' music on de jew's harp. I sho' kin rag it."

The judge let Luther go, after admonishing him to confine his operatic studies to daylight hours.

Monroe's Modesty

Monroe Bryan's wife had the time of her life.
When she took hubby's garments and hocked 'em.
This was rough on Monroe, oh, exceedingly so!
For the neighbors came in, and it shocked 'em.

—Darktown Mother Goose.

* * *

WHEN Monroe Bryan was brought into court he was indignant. His indignation appeared in little beads on his black forehead and rolled down his swarthy cheeks. And no wonder! His was indeed long sufferance.

It was a delicate charge against Monroe. Neighbors had complained to the police, and when an officer arrived on the scene he found the defendant crouched in a rain-barrel in the rear of his dwelling. He was all ready for bed with the exception of his pajamas.

"Hit wuz her fault," declared Monroe, pointing an accusing finger at his wife. "She done tekken mah cloze erway!"

"How was that, auntie?" the judge inquired.

"Well, suh, hit wuz diserway," began Monroe's partner in weal or woe. "Monroe got roamin' habits, jedge, an' I boun' ter cure him by mekkin' him stay in nights. Look lak nothin' gwiner keep dat nigger at home, so I remove his garments to er hidin' place, an' when he git ready ter leave he kain't. Dass all 'twuz."

"But that doesn't explain the peculiar position in which you were discovered, Monroe," objected the recorder. "Why the little outing in the rain-barrel?"

"Whut she tole you am true, jedge," replied Monroe; "but she ain't tell de whole truff. She tek mah cloze, an' 'bout two minutes later in come er passel ob ladies callin' on her. Dey ain't but one room in mah house, an' I wuz fo'ced ter retire. I skin out in de back yard, an' de rain-barrel bein' handy, I jes' crawl in. An' dem dawggone ladies stay jawin' inside fo' two hours! Dar wuz nails in dat barrel, too."

"Monroe," ruled the court, "you have been sufficiently punished. You can go."

—Bar Beast Ballads.

"HE was the most curious drunk I ever handled, your honor," declared the call officer, while Ben Blue, colored and kinky and quite collapsible, bowed his wooly head in shame before the bar of justice.

"He insisted on walking around on all fours," continued the policeman. "And he grunted most horrible. Every now and then he ran into a post. It didn't seem to hurt him, for he would sheer off and butt his head into a wall or a tree. And the most remarkable thing was that I couldn't smell liquor about him anywhere."

"Were you drunk, Ben Blue?" inquired the judge.

"Yassuh, jedge, I wuz all 'zined up."

"You were all lit up, you mean, don't you?"

"Nassuh, jedge, I wuz all 'zined up. Lawdy! I sutinly wuz 'zined."

"What do you mean, 'zined?'"

"Benzine, jedge; I git drunk on benzine. I'se er presser in er gem'um's dry cleanin' shop. I say ter myself I'se gwiner tek er dram ob dat stuff whut I clean cloze wid. I tek one dram, an' hit went down so slick I emptied de bottle. Hit wuz de mos' outrageous liquor I ebber tech."

Ben took the benzine pledge, and the stockade wagon took Ben.

The Legend of Killes' Heel

The tale that I shall tell to you was told by Jackson's Joe,
Who got it from his father full fifty years ago;
Joe's father got it from his dad, who said the tale was so.

Befo' de days ob Adam de world wuz fuller folks
Whut called dyrselves de Trojans, de Greeks an' udder smokes;
An' mostly dey wuz scrappin' when dey wuzn't swappin' jokes.

Er nigger name ob Paris ruled de Trojans roun' erbout;
Ob all de coons in dem days he wuz bes' beyon' er doubt;
He weighed almos' two hun'erd poun's f'um eatin' sauer kraut.

Er li'l piece f'um Paris lived de Greeks, er scan'lous bunch!
A. Killes wuz de gang's big boss; he run er hot fish lunch
An' 'lowed dar warn't er man in town could beat him to de punch.

When Killes wuz er pickaninny on his mammy's farm
She ducked him in de Ribber Styx an' say er pow'ful charm
Whut keep erway de knives an' knucks dat mought er done him harm.

Not wishin' fo' no drownin' to mix up in de deal,
She grab him by de foot de whilst she watched de waters heal;
A. Killes git wet eb'rywhar exceptin' dn de heel.

An' so when Killes git long pants an' wuz er man full grown,
He laff at all de sticks an' bricks de Grecian snow-birds thrown,
An' wore er pa'r ob numbah nines erroun' dat ankle bone.

Some way an'ur—I done fergit just how de rucus start—
Dis Killes man an' Paris wuz rivals fo' de heart
Ob Helen Troy, er yaller gal. She kep' 'em bofe apart

An' Paris come ercallin' on whut wuz Killes' night;
Widout no' mo' formalities, dey whirl right in to fight.

Fust Killes zooned er rock or two, den Paris git to rakin';
But nary one wuz winnin', an' hit look lak dey wuz fakin'
When Killes run behin' de do' bekaze his cawns wuz achin'.

'Twuz den dat Killes spilled de beans; er flyin' brickbat struck it
Right on de spot whut missed de bath—an' Killes kicked de bucket!

This is the thing that makes me think there's something in the story—
It never hurts a darky's head to pound it till it's gory,
But hit a nigger on the heel, and watch him leave for glory.

THERE was trouble in Devil's Dip one night last week, and sixteen scared and scarred negroes in recorder's court next day.

"Us Dippers," she said, "wuz projectin' erroun' as behavin' as you ebber seed. Hit wuz 'long 'bout ten minutes to ten, an' de j'int wuz calm as er seminary. Fust thing I knowed, zip! come er rock th'ough de winder. Bang! come an'ur. Kerwhallop! say forty-lebben mo'. We pile out in de street, an' dar wuz 'bout fifty snow-birds f'um Cocaine alley standin' at de corner zoonin' brickbats an' stones. We gib 'em as good as we got, but de pat-rol gits us all. 'Cosen we th'owed, jedge; but dem snow-birds done started hit."

"I reckon dey did, jedge; I reckon dey did!" she whooped. "Dem Dippers come scramblin' outen dey houses lak de debbil wuz inside. We sho'ly made 'em hump!"

"Indeed!" remarked the recorder. "And what was the cause of the feud, Lulu?"

Nine-toed Lu snickered to herself.

"Warn't no cause, jedge. Us jest fly into er snowstorm down in de alley an' 'cide we'd tek er li'l sleigh ride down by de Dip. Time we git dar some nigger say hit would be right entertainin' ter roust out de Dippers, so we jest start out in de street an' buzz rocks at de houses. Hit wuz jest er sociable call, jedge, das all," concluded Nine-toed Lu.

Lu and the other Cocaine alley folk are now at home to their friends on various avenues in a state of repair about the city.

Snow White 'Possum at McRae Is a Hant, Say Negroes

It Is the Same Size 'Possums Usually Are, But Instead of Being Iron Gray, Is White With Pink Eyes.

MCRAE, Ga.—One of the most interesting freaks of nature ever displayed here was a snow white 'possum which Mr. I. D. Coombs brought to town with him yesterday morning. The animal is about as large as 'possums get to be but instead of the usual iron gray color he is perfectly white and has pink eyes. In contrast to most of his fellow beings he is perfectly tame and will allow anyone to handle him. It is the nature of the o'possum to "sulk" when handled, but this one refuses to do anything of the kind. Mr. Coombs says it has been in captivity about two months and is very partial to chicken. The negroes of the community in which Mr. Coombs lives, think the animal is a "ha'nt" and do not care to hang around it.

Town of 728 People Has Nine Religions

CANON, Ga., is about midway between Elberton and Toccoa. It is not as large compared to towns as the name is to guns but is unsurpassed in many things for a town of 728 inhabitants. It has nine distinct religious denominations, six of which have a place of worship and monthly appointments. There has been a great falling off in preachers, only have eight left. Canon has a quarter of a hundred widows of the white race and three of the same name.

She has eleven men over seventy years old, has four gins, two banks, two drug stores, three blacksmith shops and two machine shops.—Royston (Ga.) Record.

Husband Asks Judge To Get His Wife Back

WAYCROSS, Ga.—A Waynesville, Ga., man recently was having trouble in his family, and he wrote to Judge T. A. Parker, of the Brunswick circuit about it. He explained that he still loved his wife and wanted her at home, provided she would let the other man in the case alone. He wound up his letter by making the judge promise to consider.

He said: "Judge, what I want you to do is to send me a divorce or get my wife back for me. If you can do this, make that man (using the name) leave my wife alone. I will appreciate your attention to this matter for me at once."

Judge Parker wrote to the man and explained how a divorce could be obtained.

Oldest Alumnus of Emory Is 90 Years Old

ELBERTON, Ga.—Captain W. B. Henry recently celebrated his 90th birthday anniversary in Elberton, Ga. He was a captain in the Confederate army, graduated from Emory college Oxford, Ga., 70 years ago, and is, perhaps, the oldest alumnus of that college now living. He has been a member of the Methodist church for 70 years, and for 47 years has been secretary of the First Methodist Sunday school at Elberton, from which he is never absent.

He was married 65 years ago, and his wife is still living, in good health, and like her husband, is active mentally and physically, though she is 82 years old.

Captain Henry has led a temperate life. He has avoided whisky, but chews tobacco and enjoys a good cigar.

Jim Willingham Has A Theory About Sap

JIM Willingham believes that the sap in trees rises and falls each month with the increase and wane of the moon.

"I can't explain it any other way," he said the other day. "I have noticed it time and again that if you cut on the side of a tree any month in the year while the moon is on the increase there will be more sap than if you cut on the wane of the moon."

Point in Methodism At Trial for Arson

ADEL, Ga.—A point in Methodism was raised at Nashville, Ga., recently at an arson trial. Several students were charged with burning the dormitory of Sparks Collegiate Institute. Judge Covington, for the defense, objected to Methodists or those related to Methodists being members of the jury. He took the position that since the property burned was owned by the Methodist church, every Methodist was a part owner of the property. He was overruled.

Watermelons Are Ripening; Pickaninnies Are Smiling

IT TAKES a July sun to make the heart of a Georgia watermelon look its reddest. And it's a long way to July. But Florida is growing some gourd-like substitutes that will be along in a few weeks; so we may say—and almost fool ourselves into believing it—that the watermelon season is nearly here.

Already every incoming freight car that looks as though it might be loaded with melons, is scrutinized by a committee of patched, woolly-headed, and yearning pickaninnies. A knotty, thick-rind melon that has known so little real sun it is only a second cousin to a real watermelon, would taste to them as delicately as ambrosial food.

The photograph here shows you how it is when the sure enough watermelon season begins. The pictures were made late in the good month of June, when the geen sides of a melon thumped right, and the heart was blood red.

The sun shone, the melons were cool, the shady side of the freight car took the edge off the heat, a striped melon was sliced the long way, and happiness was complete.

It really will need the warmest days of June to repeat such bliss. But a palid foretaste of the melon season will be had in a few weeks.

We Think Too Much Of Education; Too Little of Religion

By Bishop Warren A. Candler.

IT is said that the President of the University of Utah in engaging recently a professor to teach ethics and psychology warned him that he ought not to mention the word "religion" in the class-room lest discussion follow that might give offense to the community.

The editor of the New York Independent, commenting upon the incident, says:

"This reminds us of the secularization of the French textbooks which was so thoroughly done that even the sentence 'Notre Dame is a church' was struck from the primer. An overzealous minister of education in Australia went quite as far when he changed 'Christian mother' to 'anxious mother' in a poem of the reader and cut out from 'The Wreck of the Hesperus' the stanza that even his ingenuity could not sufficiently expurgate:

Then the maiden clasped her hands and prayed
That saved she might be:
And she thought of Christ, who stilled the wave
On the Lake of Galilee.

The Utah professor must have found his task considerably lightened, for taking out all reference to religion would not leave much of ethics and would make a big gap in psychology. It would be much the same thing as ordering an instructor in mechanics not to mention the steam engine."

This case of the President of the University of Utah is a fair specimen of a species of folly which has been quite prevalent in the West, where a heterogeneous population might be expected to give rise to such notions, and which has obtained some currency in the older States, where we might suppose the majority of the people are not raw enough to accept such nonsense.

Multitudes of people are over-estimating mere education, and under-estimating religion, which alone can furnish a rational basis for morality or inspire sufficient moral energy in the individual to conform his conduct to correct moral standards after he recognizes them.

It is said "Knowledge is power," and so it is. But knowledge may be good power or bad power according to the motive which controls it. Electricity also is power, and when it is used according to law it serves the ends of propelling machinery, lighting cities, and cooking food; but it may be used also for committing the worst of crimes, such as burglary, arson, and murder.

No lesson is more clearly and constantly taught by human history than that mere increase of knowledge alone, separated from religious motives, does not tend to promote the virtue and welfare of men and nations. Sir Archibald Allison in his "History of Europe During the French Revolution" points out in the most striking manner that during the revolutionary period the spread of knowledge in France was followed by the increase of immorality and disorder. He says, "It is knowledge detached from religion, that produces this fatal result. * * *. The reason of this corrupting tendency in morals is evident, —when knowledge is so detached from religion it multiplies the desires and passions of the heart without an increase to its regulating principles; it augments the attacking forces without strengthening the recruiting powers, and thence the disorder and license it spreads through society. The invariable characteristic of a declining and corrupt state of Society is a progression in the force of passion and a progressive decline in the influence of duty."

The present state of Europe exemplifies and enforces these profound observations of the great British historian. Europe was never so enlightened and never so inflamed with passion. Every consideration of right and duty is set aside in order to allow political aspirations and commercial ambitions to assert themselves in the most awful war recorded in history. Secularized learning has set the world afire.

The people of our country should not fail to learn the lesson which is thus written in lines of blood and flame. In our country education was never so common and restlessness and crime were never so prevalent. Men were never so tenacious of their rights and so indifferent to their duties; the idea of liberty was never so warmly and widely asserted, and the idea of self-sacrificing love was never so tepidly accepted. The cries of ambition and the shrieks of discontent are heard on every side, while the voices of conscience are utterly hushed, or else uttered in whispers. If revolution is to be averted, we must bring the power of religion to bear on the country in something like the same proportion that the people are being educated. We have already enough —yes, too much,—anti-Christian and unchristian education. We need more education of a nobler kind. Nothing less than this will suffice to remedy the dangerous conditions which now disquiet and imperil the social system.

Even Huxley, with all his sceptical views perceived the peril of education detached from religion. He said: "There must be a moral naturalism to a child's education to make it valuable, and there is no other source from which this can be obtained at all comparable with the Bible." And yet we have men like the President of the University of Utah who would not have the word "religion" so much as mentioned by teachers in our schools and colleges. Such theories are charged with the most inflammable elements of social disquietude and political revolution.

Moreover, there is an international phase of this subject which ought not to escape attention. The great Oriental nations—such as Japan and China —are acquiring very rapidly what they call "the Western learning." Which is in the main mere secular science. Japan is already far advanced on this road of secularized education, and China is following rapidly along the same way. There was a time when Christian teachers in Christian schools were the only instructors of the Japanese in "Western learning;" but the churches did not move fast enough in the matter, and Japan imported from Europe and America education tainted with modern materialism. As this evil education spread the old religions of the country declined in influence without a better faith rising up to take their place. Whatever evils are now brewing in Japan which threaten international conflicts, may be traced to a religionless enlightenment which has invigorated the moral powers which are required to restrain such passionate aspirations.

The case of China contains even greater possibilities of peril. The population of China is about eight times as great as that of Japan. Thousands of Chinese students are now in the United States for their education, their expenses being met by the Chinese Government from the money of "the Boxer Indemnity" which the United States returned China a few years ago. Many others are attending at their own expense American institutions of learning because they cannot at this time attend German Universities. But most of these Chinese students in the United States are attending institutions in which wholesome religious influences operate most feebly; they are in the secularized, unchristian institutions. This means no good for the world. When they return to their own lands they will propagate a secularized and godless type of education. The old faiths of China are falling into decay and neglect. It is important to the Chinese and to the world that Christianity advance in the "Celestial Empire" as rapidly as the "Western Learning." If China is educated before it is evangelized, the inevitable outcome will be disorder there and dangerous disquietude throughout all the Orient.

It is of supreme importance that more Chinese students be drawn speedily into the evangelical institutions of our own country, but this cannot be done unless the colleges and universities of the evangelical churches of the United States be made without delay as strong as the strongest of the secular institutions of the land. This matter involves the well-being of mankind; for as a most thoughtful man has recently said; "The battleground for Christianity in the world during the next fifty years is in American colleges and universities."

It is impossible to have institutions that will serve the ends of evangelical Christianity unless the Churches erect, endow, own, and control such institutions. States cannot make such institutions, and irresponsible boards (miscalled independent) will not. Only the Churches can and will.

In this matter Southern Churches have peculiar obligations. The South is pre-eminently the home of evangelical Christianity. The nerveless forms of rationalistic religion have never been able to take root and flourish in our section. Southern Churches, therefore, can make evangelical institutions of learning more easily than can the Churches of other sections. The Southern atmosphere is friendly to the growth of such establishments. Herein is a great responsibility of our section, which our people cannot proceed to discharge too soon or too earnestly. We must assert the primary of religion in education.

ATLANTA'S BIG PLAYGROUND OPENS

TWO fishermen at Piedmont Park, and a group of little girls doing nothing much but smiling at the camera.

HOW did we do before there was a Piedmont Park—a place to swim, to fish, to rest, to listen on pleasant Sunday afternoons to band concerts?

What an incomplete—one might almost say, what a joyless place—Atlanta must have been when Piedmont Park was merely a clump of fair buildings put to use once a year.

There was then no place to swim, no ball grounds, no tennis courts. Today Piedmont Park is the city's playground —the spot where the whole of Atlanta goes to rest. In the way of recreation it reaches thousands of people. Unless you've been to Piedmont Park on a sunny afternoon you can have no idea of its picturesqueness, of just what it means to the city.

Other playgrounds are important, but Piedmont Park is the center for the city's out-door pleasures.

Already the tennis courts are crowded every day, the baseball diamond is put to constant use, fishermen are thick along the banks of the lake, and the swimming season soon is to begin.

Of course bathing is the chief thing at Piedmont, and until swimming begins the season at the park doesn't begin to hit its stride. But already it's well "opened." You can find that out for yourself any afternoon, particularly Saturday.

Children of every age are there, grown people, tennis players, fishermen (who catch little fish the length of your finger), artists to paint all this color and joy and good time, little girls with pigtails and big bows and no other purpose, it seems, than to fall into the water and be pulled out, boys scampering around and itching to go swimming, the sun warm and June-like, and the whole creation of things in tune.

There's nothing now like Piedmont Park.

125 Miles By Auto With a Dead Man

VALDOSTA, Ga.—An automobile from Madison, Fla., passed through here one night last week, carrying five passengers—one a dead man. He had died the afternoon before at Madison. There was no train to be had immediately, so the funeral trip of 125 miles to Unadilla, Ga., was being made through the night by automobile. The dead man was borne in the laps of two of the living.

Miss Merrell Flies Across Tampa Bay

CARROLLTON, Ga.—Miss Estelle Merrell was a passenger recently in a hydroplane across Tampa Bay, at a height of six hundred feet above the water, making the trip in sixty minutes. She describes the sensation of such a flight as thrilling, and recommends same to all baldheaded people as the greatest hair-raiser she has ever tried.

Must Shoot, Not Shoo, Courtyard Scratchers

Fight With a Monster Devilfish

PUNTA GORDA, Fla.—A party has just returned here after a perilous search for devilfish. In the party were Russell J. Coles, of Danville, Va.; Charles Willis, of Morehead City, N. C., and J. J. McCann and Luther Dixon, of this city. Their trip was a scientific expedition fitted out at Mr. Coles' expense.

The devilfish in these waters are fifteen to twenty feet wide and several feet thick. On the head are a pair of movable lobes, sometimes called cephalic fins, and only in the lower jaw are there teeth. Mr. Coles, with Mr. Willis and Captain McCann, last June caught two specimens of the male. But this year they wanted principally females.

They made their first catch April 6—a male, 13 feet 2 inches wide, which they landed in eight minutes; and on the same day a second male, 14 feet 1-2 inch wide.

On April 11 they got a female that was 18 feet 2 inches wide, and was nearly six feet between the eyes. There was more excitement in taking the big female than in catching any other devilfish landed by the party.

The male mate, of about equal size, stayed with the female, and apparently tried to help the latter fight off her would-be captors, thus making it dangerous for the men. The big male ran into the boat several times, lifting and knocking it about, and there is little doubt that he would have made short work of any man who fell overboard. There were four other devilfish within a radius of three-fourths of a mile at the same time, one of them over twenty feet wide, but, as it was the female that was wanted, the others were not bothered.

The time to kill the two taken on the 6th instant, with the time added in killing the two taken in June of last year was 3 minutes and 10 seconds.

Mr. Coles uses a specially designed harpoon for these fish, and with it he is remarkably successful.

The female devilfish was towed to shore—it took two launches 10 hours and 30 minutes to convey it twelve miles. It broke one heavy whale harpoon line and weighed over three tons.

Georgia Boy With Canadians as They Face German Drive

Anxiety Felt for J. G. Powell, of Lincoln County, Cousin of Hardy Ulm, Governor Slaton's Secretary; Last News from Him, March 20

LINCOLNTON, Ga.—J. G. Powell, of this county, is serving in France with the Canadian troops who suffered severely in the latest drive by the Germans for the French coast. Whole companies of the Canadians were reported lost, and the battery of which Powell was a member, is said to have been exposed to heavy fire.

No news has been received from him since March 20, and great anxiety is felt for his safety.

Powell is a son of W. C. Powell, a former representative of Lincoln county in the Georgia legislature;, and a cousin of Hardy Ulm, private secretary to Governor Slaton.

After finishing preparatory school, he studied law at the University of Georgia. Before graduation he enlisted in the United States navy; later, he joined Villa in Mexico; and, at the outbreak of the European war, he went from Mexico to Canada, where he enlisted with a Canadian battery soon to leave for France. He since has become a bombardier in this battery. The latest news from him is the following letter to a friend in Lincolnton:

"Somewhere," in France, March 20.

Mr. James. H. Boykin,
Lincolnton, Ga.

"Dear Sir: I have received the bundle of papers you sent me, and can say I never appreciated anything more. It may sound strange to some people when I tell you I can read absolutely every word in them, including the advertisements, and enjoy it very, very much; for it is all about people I know more or less, and, best of all, our southern papers have a decidedly southern flavor that can never be fully appreciated until one is many miles from the cotton belt.

"I have often wondered how Uncle Zeke Samuels, Colonel Toombs Cullars, Uncle Billy Flanagan, and scores of others of our civil war vets, would take this war. For wars now are fought and won under far different circumstances and with far different guns and mechanical contrivances than were ever thought of when the battle of Gettysburg was fought half a century ago. For instance, today alone I have seen a dozen or more aircraft. I have seen shells bursting from the big German "Jack Johnsons," and replies being sent over our heads from equal, if not, superior guns.

"A few miles to the rear, at almost any point, miles of mechanical transports have taken the place of the old-time wagon trains. Swift armored trains work on railroad tracks with guns that could not be moved over the ground.

"The little machine guns look from innumerable places along the steel-lined trenches, from tree-tops, houses and other places of concealment. The telephone has taken the place of the dispatch rider to a large extent. I want Reid Nash to bear in mind that our telephone squad can, and does, put down telephones, wire, instruments and all at the rate of about eight miles an hour with three men. Tell him to wake up.

"We Americans don't give the English full credit as a fighting nation, partly on account of the Boer war; but my opinion is that no country could have done better here than the English have done. I don't think much of the French, but after an Englishman wakes up he delivers the goods. Very few people have any conception of what a war like this really means. They have no idea of the number of men, guns, ammunition and food supplies needed.

"We get three good meals a day and have a good, stiff jolt of rum every night; plenty of good, warm clothes, and cigarettes and tobacco is given us gratis. We get our mail every day. In fact everything is 'jake.'

"The only kick we have is not being allowed nearer the German trenches. For the day of individual bravery is past. The soldier who exposes himself gets into trouble instead of into glory. The best soldier of this war is the one who never gets hit.

"I had scrambled eggs and buttered toast for breakfast this morning. Ask Uncle Zeke Samuels where he did he feed like that under Stonewall Jackson?

"Of course, times may change. We are going ahead now; we may have to come back, but it will take more than the German empire to make us do so. The facts are well known here that the war can't last very much longer. But whether it is over by the time you get this letter, or within a year, or ten years, I am coming back to the states to stay. I have tried the American as well as the English service, to say nothing of my experience in Villa's army in Mexico, and have had enough.

"Will appreciate any papers that you may send. Write.

"Respectfully yours,
"BOMBARDINE J. G. POWELL.

Velvet Beans Prove Good Money Crop

McRAE, Ga.—Mr. W. A. Clark, living near Jacksonville in this county sold nearly ninety bushels of velvet beans here a few days ago at from $4 to $5 a bushel which he grew on his farm. It seems that should be an object lesson to our farmers. The general complaint here this spring has been that velvet beans could not be had at any price. Our farmers should make a few to sell instead of having to buy them. Mr. Clark realized between $300 and $400 on this lot of beans and when he put it, it was a "clear pick up," they having cost him practically nothing to produce.

Some Hogs Raised In Evans County

CLAXTON, Ga.—Captain James S. Hagin has presented the Enterprise a tusk that he removed from a hog's head that formed half of a 17-inch semi-circle. Evans is some county in which to raise swine—only a few months since we reported that Sheriff Rogers buttered one that weighed 832 pounds and C. W. Harvey one a close second in size that tipped the scales at 763.
